About the survey

Government budget decisions – what taxes to levy, what services to provide, and how much debt to take on – affect how equal a society is and the well-being of its people, including whether the most disadvantaged will have real opportunities for a better life. It is critical that governments inform and engage the public on these vital decisions that impact their lives.

The Open Budget Survey (OBS) is the world's only independent, comparative and fact-based research instrument that uses internationally accepted criteria to assess public access to central government budget information; formal opportunities for the public to participate in the national budget process; and the role of budget oversight institutions such as the legislature and auditor in the budget process.

The survey helps local civil society assess and confer with their government on the reporting and use of public funds. This 7th edition of the OBS covers 117 countries.

Visit www.internationalbudget.org/open-budget-survey for more information, including the full OBS methodology, the 2019 Global Report, findings for all surveyed countries, and the Data Explorer.

Transparency

This part of the OBS measures public access to information on how the central government raises and spends public resources. It assesses the online availability, timeliness, and comprehensiveness of eight key budget documents using 109 equally weighted indicators and scores each country on a scale of 0 to 100. A transparency score of 61 or above indicates a country is likely publishing enough material to support informed public debate on the budget.

Kazakhstan has a transparency score of 58 (out of 100).

What changed in OBS 2019?

Kazakhstan has increased the availability of budget information by:

- Publishing the Citizens Budget online.
- Publishing the Pre-Budget Statement online in a timely manner.

However, Kazakhstan has decreased the availability of budget information by:

- Reducing the information provided in the Executive's Budget Proposal.

Recommendations

Kazakhstan should prioritize the following actions to improve budget transparency:

- Including in the Executive's Budget Proposal debt and policy information, as well as information from previous budget years. This includes publishing information on the composition of total debt outstanding (e.g., interest rates on the debt, the maturity profile of the debt, and whether the debt is domestic or external), estimates of how all new policy proposals affect expenditures and revenues, and expenditure and revenue information for more than one year prior to the budget year.
- Improve the comprehensiveness of the Citizens Budget.

Public Participation

Transparency alone is insufficient for improving governance. Inclusive public participation is crucial for realizing the positive outcomes associated with greater budget transparency.

The OBS also assesses the formal opportunities offered to the public for meaningful participation in the different stages of the budget process. It examines the practices of the central government’s executive, the legislature, and the supreme audit institution (SAI) using 18 equally weighted indicators, aligned with the Global Initiative for Fiscal Transparency’s Principles of Public Participation in Fiscal Policies ↗, and scores each country on a scale from 0 to 100.

Kazakhstan has a public participation score of 17 (out of 100).

Extent of opportunities for public participation in the budget process

few: 0 - 40; limited: 41 - 60; adequate: 61 - 100

Recommendations

Kazakhstan's Ministry of Finance has established a council during budget formulation and public consultations during budget implementation but, to further strengthen public participation in the budget process, should also prioritize the following actions:

- Expand mechanisms during budget formulation and implementation that engage any civil society organization or member of the public who wishes to participate.
- Actively engage with vulnerable and underrepresented communities, directly or through civil society organizations representing them.

Kazakhstan's Parliament should prioritize the following actions:

- Allow members of the public or civil society organizations to testify during its hearings on the budget proposal prior to its approval.
- Allow members of the public or civil society organizations to testify during its hearings on the Audit Report.

Kazakhstan's Accounts Committee for Control over Execution of the Republican Budget has established mechanisms for the public to assist in developing its audit program. It should prioritize the following actions to improve public participation in the budget process:

- Establish formal mechanisms for the public to contribute to relevant audit investigations.

Budget Oversight

The OBS also examines the role that legislatures and supreme audit institutions (SAIs) play in the budget process and the extent to which they provide oversight; each country is scored on a scale from 0 to 100 based on 18 equally weighted indicators. In addition, the survey collects supplementary information on independent fiscal institutions (see Box).

The legislature and supreme audit institution in Kazakhstan, together, provide adequate oversight during the budget process, with a composite oversight score of 67 (out of 100). Taken individually, the extent of each institution's oversight is shown below:

Legislative oversight

Audit oversight

weak: 0 - 40; limited: 41 - 60; adequate: 61 - 100

Recommendations

Kazakhstan's Parliament has adequate authority for budget oversight during the planning stage of the budget cycle and during the implementation stage. To further improve oversight, the following actions should be prioritized:

- The legislature should debate budget policy before the Executive's Budget Proposal is tabled and approve recommendations for the upcoming budget.
- A legislative committee should examine the Audit Report and publish a report with their findings online.

To strengthen independence and improve audit oversight by the Kazakhstan Accounts Committee for Control over Execution of the Republican Budget, the following actions are recommended:

- Require legislative or judicial approval to appoint and remove the head of the supreme audit institution.

The emerging practice of establishing independent fiscal institutions

Kazakhstan does not have an independent fiscal institution (IFI). IFIs are increasingly recognized as valuable independent and nonpartisan information providers to the Executive and/or Parliament during the budget process.

Methodology

- Only documents published and events, activities, or developments that took place through 31 December 2018 were assessed in the OBS 2019.
- The survey is based on a questionnaire completed in each country by an independent budget expert:

Janar Jandosova and Fatima Jandossova
Sange Research Center
27 Mamyр-1, Office 19, Almaty, Kazakhstan
janar.sange@gmail.com and fjandossova@gmail.com

- To further strengthen the research, each country's draft questionnaire is also reviewed by an anonymous independent expert, and in Kazakhstan by a representative of the Ministry of Finance.
