b. Expenditures are classified by administrative unit, but some small units are not shown separately.
c. Expenditures are classified by administrative unit, but a significant number of units are not shown separately.
d. No expenditures classified by administrative unit are presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment). |

Additional information is presented at the program budgets of the ministries which are part of the budget 2007 documentation and are available at: http://parliament.bg/pub/budget2007/start.htm

Comment:
The answer demonstrates an improvement in performance from the 2006 round of research since the government started producing and publishing program budgets for the ministries.

Researcher’s response to this question was “a.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b,” because the small units are just listed and their financing is not explicitly stated. Some of these small units sometimes accrue a considerable amount of budgetary funds.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire, “a.” We retain our view that “a” is the most appropriate answer. All expenditures are classified by first-level spending units.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “b” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.
2. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by functional classification?

   a. All expenditures are classified by functional classification, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
   b. All expenditures are classified by functional classification, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.
   c. Some, but not all, expenditures are classified by function.
   d. No expenditures classified by function are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Comment:
   The categorization is not compatible with international standards especially in the subgroups of the major functions.

3. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by economic classification?

   a. All expenditures are classified by economic classification, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
   b. All expenditures are classified by economic classification, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.
   c. Some, but not all, expenditures are classified by economic classification.
   d. No expenditures classified by economic classification are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

4. Does the executive's budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for individual programs for the budget year?

   a. Program-level data are presented for all expenditures.
   b. Program-level data are presented for at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures.
   c. Program-level data are presented, but for less than two-thirds of expenditures.
   d. No program-level data are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
The answer demonstrates an improvement in performance from the 2006 round of research since government started producing and publishing program budgets for the ministries.

Researcher’s response to this question was “a.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “c” as some individual programs are just mentioned and the data related is more optimistic than realistic.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire, “a.” We retain our view that “a” is the most appropriate answer. Data is provided for all programs. Program budgets are official documents, supplementing the draft state budget.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “a” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries. This question does not ask about the credibility of the data.
5. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, are estimates of the aggregate level of expenditure presented for a multi-year period (at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   a. Yes, multi-year estimates of aggregate expenditure are presented.
   b. No, multi-year estimates of aggregate expenditure are not presented.
   c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation:

   Comment:
   “Budget Forecast for 2007-2009” is not released alongside the budget, and is not based on the same macroeconomic assumptions as the budget, nor do the projections reflect the same levels of revenue and expenditure in years in which they overlap.

   Peer Reviewer One Comment:

   Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

6. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, is more detail than just the aggregate level presented for expenditure estimates that cover a multi-year period (for at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   a. Yes, multi-year expenditure estimates are presented for all individual programs, and for one or more expenditure classification (such as functional, economic, or administrative).
   b. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented for one or more expenditure classification (such as functional, economic, or administrative), but only for some individual programs.
   c. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented, but only for a portion of one or more of the expenditure classifications (such as some functions, or some administrative units) and/or for only some individual programs.
   d. No, multi-year estimates are presented for aggregate expenditure only, or they are not presented at all.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

7. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation identify the different sources of tax revenue (such as income tax or VAT) for the budget year?

   a. All sources of tax revenue are identified individually.
   b. Sources of tax revenue amounting to at least two-thirds of, but not all, tax revenues are identified individually.
   c. Sources of tax revenue amounting to less than two-thirds of all tax revenues are identified individually.
   d. No sources of tax revenue are identified individually.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:
In the “Report on the 2007 Law on the State Budget of the Republic of Bulgaria,” (page 47) all major tax revenues are identified. However, the data is too aggregated and less than two-thirds of taxes are identified individually by their source. There is no detailed data (except of the aggregate totals) on different excise taxes, social security taxes, and the property taxes are not shown at all (they are part of the “other taxes” category).
The report is available at: http://minfin.bg/document/2852

Comment:

Researcher’s response to this question was “a.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: Property taxes are municipal taxes and they normally are not shown in the state budget. Even from these years they are gathered separately.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire, “c.” We retain our view that “c” is the most appropriate answer. The draft budget report covers the consolidated budget, including state, municipal and all other budgets of government bodies. Property taxes are included in the “other category” with other taxes. There is no detailed data (except of the aggregate totals) on different excise taxes, social security taxes.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “c.”

Comment:
See question 5.

Researcher’s response to this question was “b.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” Aggregate revenue estimates for two years beyond the budget year are presented on page 42 in the Report on the Three Year Budget Forecast for the Period 2007 - 2009.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire, “b.” We retain our view that “b” is the most appropriate answer. There is a 3-year budget forecast, but it doesn't qualify for the purpose of this questionnaire as it is not released alongside the budget, and is not based on the same macroeconomic assumptions as the budget, nor do the projections reflect the same levels of revenue and expenditure in years in which they overlap.

   c. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented, but only for some individual sources of revenue.

11. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present data on the total government debt outstanding for the budget year?

   a. Yes, the data reflect the outstanding debt both at the start of the budget year and at the end of the budget year (and thereby reflect the net borrowing requirement of the budget).
   b. Yes, the data reflect the outstanding debt at the end of the budget year.
   c. Yes, the data reflect the outstanding debt at the start of the budget year.

Comment:

Researcher’s response to this question was “a.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b.” The information in this part does not overlap with the real situation on the market. For example the oil price is set at $30 per barrel, which is ridiculous.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire, “a.” We retain our view that “a” is the most appropriate answer. The question asks about the scope, rather than the quality, of the macroeconomic assumptions. The fact that the reviewer knows about the "ridiculous" assumptions is indicative that they are published.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “a” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries. The question asks about the scope, rather than the quality, of the macroeconomic assumptions.
15. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation show the impact of different macroeconomic assumptions (i.e., sensitivity analysis) on the budget (including expenditures, revenues, and debt)?

a. Yes, extensive information on the impact of macroeconomic assumptions on the budget is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.

b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the impact of the major macroeconomic assumptions, but some details are excluded.

c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.

d. No, information on the impact of different macroeconomic assumptions on the budget is not presented.

e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

There is detailed information on the effects of corporate tax reform (both narrative and calculations), some information on the effect of the excise increases (proposed change and aggregated effect on revenues), as well as for the changes in the customs duties and income tax. The answer demonstrates an improvement in performance from the 2006 round of research since government started producing and publishing program budgets for the ministries.

19. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the year preceding the budget year (BY-1) that are classified by functional classification?

   a. All expenditures are classified by functional classification for BY-1, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
   b. All expenditures are classified by functional classification for BY-1, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.
   c. Some, but not all, expenditures are classified by function for BY-1.
   d. No expenditures classified by function are presented for BY-1.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

21. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for individual programs for the year preceding the budget year (BY-1)?

   a. Program-level expenditure data are presented for all expenditures for BY-1.
   b. Program-level expenditure data are presented for at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures for BY-1.
   c. Program-level expenditure data are presented, but for less than two-thirds of expenditures for BY-1.
   d. No program-level expenditure data are presented for BY-1.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

In their program budgets most ministries present expenditures for individual programs for the budget year and for the preceding year. However, there are exceptions - for example the Ministry of Economy and Energy does not publish program level expenditures for the previous year; the same is for Ministry of Health. http://minfin.bg/document/2852

Peer Reviewer One Comment: The proper answer should be “c” since there are more talking than real programs.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire, “b.” We retain our view that “b” is the most appropriate answer. The question is not about the substance of the programs, but concerns the availability of data.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “b” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.
22. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, how many months of actual data are reflected in the expenditure estimates of the year prior to the budget year (BY-1)?

- a. All BY-1 estimates have been updated from the original enacted levels to reflect six or more months of actual expenditure.
- b. All BY-1 estimates have been updated from the original enacted levels, but reflect less than six months of actual expenditure.
- c. Some BY-1 estimates have been updated from the original enacted levels to reflect actual expenditure.
- d. The BY-1 estimates have not been updated from the original enacted levels, or no BY-1 estimates are presented.
- e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comprehensiveness

35. Does the executive's budget or any supporting budget documentation present information for at least the budget year on extra-budgetary funds?

- a. Yes, extensive information on extra-budgetary funds is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
- b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting key extra-budgetary funds, but some details are excluded.
- c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.
- d. No, information on extra-budgetary funds is not presented.
- e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:
Appendix 10 of the draft budget presents a list of the extrabudgetary funds. There is information about the expenditurers of the state extrabudgetary funds in the 2007 draft budget and the “Report on the 2007 Law on the State Budget of the Republic of Bulgaria.” Both are available at: http://parliament.bg/pub/budget2007/start.htm

Comment:
Researcher’s response to this question was “b.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “c.” Listing them is not enough; there must be more information on these.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire, “b.” We retain our view that “b” is the most appropriate answer. There is not only a list, but also data for key funds (subsidy, expenditures, but not enough details).

36. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present information for at least the budget year on intergovernmental transfers?

- a. Yes, extensive information on intergovernmental transfers is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
- b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting key intergovernmental transfers, but some details are excluded.
- c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.
- d. No, information on intergovernmental transfers is not presented.
- e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:
Data for all transfers is available at the draft budget. The mechanism for defining transfers for the local authorities is part of the draft budget law. See draft 2007 Law on State Budget, Appendix 5 to article 10 (1).

37. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present information for at least the budget year on transfers to public corporations?

- a. Yes, extensive information on transfers to public corporations is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
- b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting key transfers to public corporations, but some details are excluded.
- c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.

50. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present non-financial data, such as the number of beneficiaries, for expenditure programs?
   a. Non-financial data are presented for all programs.
   b. Non-financial data are presented for programs representing at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures.
   c. Non-financial data are presented for programs representing less than two-thirds of expenditure.
   d. No non-financial data are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:
There is such data in most of the program budgets. For example, in the program budget of the Ministry of Labour in program 1. “Increasing the suitability for jobs and lifelong learning” there is non-financial data on number of people employed in ministry's employment programs, number of people attending professional courses, number of people to receive professional orientation etc.

Comment:
There is improvement because of the introduction of program budgets.

Researcher’s response to this question was “b.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “c.”

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire, “b.” We retain our view that “b” is the most appropriate answer. There is non-financial data for most, but not all of the programs.
51. Are the non-financial data presented useful for assessing how an expenditure program is performing?

   a. The non-financial data are very useful for assessing program performance.
   b. The non-financial data are mostly useful for assessing program performance.
   c. The non-financial data are somewhat useful for assessing program performance.
   d. No non-financial data are provided or they are not useful for assessing program performance.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
There is not much experience with program budgets and the focus of the data is not clear in many cases.

Researcher’s response to this question was “c.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “d.”

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire, “c.” We retain our view that “c” is the most appropriate answer. There is non-financial data for many programs and it is sometimes very useful.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “c” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.
52. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation contain performance indicators for expenditure programs?

a. Performance indicators are presented for all programs.
b. Performance indicators are presented for programs representing at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures.
c. Performance indicators are presented for programs representing less than two-thirds of expenditures.
d. No performance indicators are presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:

Comment:
There is improvement because of the introduction of program budgets - they made the existence of performance indicators obligatory.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “c.”

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire, “a.” I chose my answer because we retain our view that “a” is the most appropriate answer. Performance indicators are presented for all programs. Most of them are not well designed, but this is reflected in another question (q. 53).

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “a” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

53. Are the performance indicators sufficiently well designed, such that one can assess whether there has been progress toward meeting policy goals?

a. All performance indicators are well designed.
b. Most performance indicators are well designed.
c. Some performance indicators are well designed, but most are not.
d. No programs have performance indicators, or they are not well designed.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

- a. All performance indicators are used in conjunction with performance targets.

55. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present information on policies (both proposals and existing commitments) in at least the budget year that are intended to benefit directly the country’s most impoverished populations?

- a. Yes, extensive information on policies intended to alleviate poverty is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
- b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the impact of key policies intended to alleviate poverty, but some details are excluded.
- c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.
- d. No, information on policies intended to alleviate poverty is not presented.

   b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the rates and fees for major revenue sources, but some details are excluded.

Researcher’s response to this question was “a.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “c.”

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should be changed to “b.” I chose my answer because there is a small change in the methodology for the question compared to the previous study in 2006. There is a clear improvement in the transparency of concessions (for extractive industries etc.) - as a result of the creation of the online National Concession Register that is freely available to the public (http://www.nkr.government.bg). Still, there were cases with nontransparent concessions so we downgrade our initial response from “a” to “b” (however, “c” - suggested by the reviewer - is not justified as there is enough information in most cases).

Comment:
With few exceptions, the consultations are carefully picked to meet government’s own public relations needs. E.g. this might include press conference to present new tax priorities. However, this year the 3 parties in the coalition government decided upon tax proposals for 2008 without any prior notice or discussion.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “d.” The researcher’s answer is closer to d than b.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

There are, however, legal limitations on the discretionary power to spend. The Minister of Finance has authority to increase expenditure above the aggregate amount approved by the National Assembly up to 1.5% of the total revenue for the year, and only when revenues exceed the plan. According to the art. 34 of the State Budget Compilation Act (1996), art. 35 http://www.minfin.bg/document/3542 the Minister of Finance can shift funds between units only if the overall balance is unchanged (i.e. compensatory shifts) and only to follow the provisions of a normative act (law or decree of the Council of Ministers). The MoF also has to approve any internal shifts of funds within the budgets of separate units, even if they do not alter the approved budget of the respective unit.

As an indirect indication of this is the fact that several huge procurement procedures were contested at court or were dismissed or delayed several times by the procurement agency (e.g. the purchases of battleships for the navy, or computers for municipalities. According to our observations, there is a slight improvement compared to 2 years ago, although this judgment cannot be supported by any empirical study of ours.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “c.” Procurement is considered by many experts as one of the main governance field generating political corruption (see for example: Anti-corruption Reforms in Bulgaria: Key Results and Risks, Centre for Study of Democracy, 2007, p. 37-51 (http://www.csd.bg/fileSrc.php?id=2152). Over the last year there have been many media reports of corruption practices in procurement procedures, especially those involving EU financial assistance. The situation might have improved slightly (most probably in terms of procedures) over the last two years, but it is still far from the well established western standards.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should be changed as suggested by Peer Reviewer two, “c.”
98. When does the legislature typically approve supplemental budgets?

In some cases, the program level reports of ministries are formal, very brief and lack detail http://www.minfin.bg/bg/page/306. This should not be interpreted as deterioration compared to the situation 2 years ago, as we commented back then, explanation was provided only in cases where separate programs were accounted for. These however were a small part of the overall spending. Now, we have program-budgeting for all administrative units, but our view is that explanations are not sufficient.

Comment:
Reports on audits are usually produced within 12 months after the end fiscal year, but they are not all released to the public. The Supreme Audit Institution has discretion to publish the reports. It presents a report based on the audit results (but not separate audits of government departments/administrative units) to the parliament, which is publicly available.

Beyond the established year-end attestation audits, does the Supreme Audit Institution (SAI) have the discretion in law to undertake those audits it may wish to?

a. The SAI has full discretion to decide which audits it wishes to undertake.
b. The SAI has significant discretion, but faces some limitations.
c. The SAI has some discretion, but faces considerable limitations.
d. The SAI has no discretion to decide which audits it wishes to undertake.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
The SAI may audit any part of the executive, social and health security funds (the state-managed ones), budgets of municipalities, budgets of public universities, national TV and radio, the Bulgarian National Bank or any other budget, approved by the Parliament. Audits however should be included in an annual program of audits beforehand. Other audits can be performed only by decision of the parliament.

Researcher’s response to this question was “c.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b.” In my view, the SAI institution has enough power to initiate audits with some exceptions. There are some restrictions in the law, including the provision that the audits should be included in the annual program of the institution, but it would be too strong to call these limitations “considerable.”

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire, “c.” We retain our view that “c” is the most appropriate answer. The SAI cannot start an audit if it is not called upon, or if the audit is not included in its annual program. This means that it cannot make “surprise” audits if irregularities are suspected.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “c” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.
117. Who determines the budget of the Supreme Audit Institution?

a. The budget of the SAI is determined by the legislature or judiciary (or some independent body), and the funding level is broadly consistent with the resources the SAI needs to fulfill its mandate.

b. The budget of the SAI is determined by the executive, and the funding level is broadly consistent with the resources the SAI needs to fulfill its mandate.

c. The budget of the SAI is determined by the legislature or judiciary (or some independent body), but the funding level is not consistent with the resources the SAI needs to fulfill its mandate.

The parliamentary budget & finance committee debates the annual report on the audit activity of the Supreme Audit Institution. Other than that, the legislature has discretion to scrutinize whichever report it wishes to scrutinize; in practice, they view a limited number of reports, mostly ones that were requested by the parliament itself.
