Comment:

There is a substantial amount of information on available on tax rates and fee schedules although it is scattered across resources such as the investment law, taxation law and the investment guide prepared by the Cambodian Investment Board.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “c” because while it is true that this information is contained in the Investment Law and in the Taxation Law, both of which are given free-of-charge to investors at the Council for the Development of Cambodia Information Desk, your average citizen does not really have access to this information. Case-in-point, a Cambodian citizen requiring a passport goes to the one and only Passport Office in Phnom Penh and there is no billboard showing the fees, etc... Transactions are done on an informal basis with varying prices. This is an official revenue source that has been “captured” by the Passport Office bureaucracy.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I chose to retain answer “b” as information regarding tax rates and fees is publicly available although I agree with referee one that it is not accessible for majority of Cambodians.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “c” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

Comment:

In Cambodia, there are no supplemental budget requests from the Executive to the National Assembly and therefore the question is not applicable in the Cambodian context. This does not mean that certain ministries systematically overspend their budget.

Researcher's Response to this Question was "e."

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "d" because overspending by some ministries can be as high as 10-40% of original budget allocations. This is a chronic problem and reflects the powerful ministries, for example, the Council of Ministers, the Ministry of Economy and Finance, and the Ministry of Defense.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: Over-expenditures for some ministries could be as high as 10% →35% I would pick "d."

Researcher Response: I chose to retain my answer as the question relates to supplemental budget requests which I think is a different issue than whether individual ministries overspend.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "d" to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

The Parliament has to approve the lump sum the first time, and specific expenditures the second time.	d
