Section Two: The Executive’s Budget Proposal

Notes on abbreviations:
BY = budget year (year for which the budget proposals are being made)
BY+1 = one year beyond the budget year
BY-1 = one year before the budget year

Please mark your answer by placing the appropriate letter in the box to the right of the question. For all answers marked “not applicable/other,” please provide a brief explanation indicating either why the answer choices provided are not applicable or why another response would be more appropriate.
1. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by administrative unit (that is, by ministry, department, or agency)?

   a. All expenditures are classified by administrative unit.
   b. Expenditures are classified by administrative unit, but some small units are not shown separately.
   c. Expenditures are classified by administrative unit, but a significant number of units are not shown separately.
   d. No expenditures classified by administrative unit are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation:
   The letters of appropriations (Regleringbrev) are found on the Swedish National Management Authority’s (Ekonomistyrningsverket) homepage:
   http://www.esv.se/snabblankar/statsliggaren/statsliggarensoksida.4.381a53100408a68b18000656.html

   Comment:
   In the budget proposal the expenditure areas are not classified ministry, department or the well over 500 agencies (myndigheter). A classification by agency is made by the government in its letters of appropriation directions (regleringsbrev) to the agencies soon after the budget proposal is approved by Parliament in December. Strictly speaking expenditure areas are therefore not administrative units.

   The budget is presented by 27 expenditure and 48 policy areas. Many of those can be linked to a specific ministry based on their title, but they are not presented by ministry.

   Researcher’s Response to this Question was “d.”

   Peer Reviewer One Comment: It is the final passage that contains the relevant information. Expenditure areas are not administrative units; agencies are.

   Peer Reviewer Two Comment: The budget has a functional, rather than administrative, classification of expenditures. While the detailed classification in an appendix lists a number of administrative units, some expenditure cannot be attributed to administrative units. Strictly speaking, therefore, the categories aren’t really applicable, since Expenditures are classified by administrative units but not all expenditures are classified unambiguously. Also, given that you ask specifically about the functional classification below, I would rate this as (e), alternatively (b).

   Government Reviewer Comment: See also response to Q2. I am not sure what you mean by administrative unit. On one hand you can say that the expenditure areas are by administrative unit as each ministry has one or more expenditure areas. On the other hand if you mean on an appropriation level, some appropriations are for administrative units, and some are for transfers, interest on government debt etc. These more economic classification type appropriations ‘belong’ to an expenditure area, and is under the responsibility of a ministry.
Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should be “d,” almost in line with Peer Reviewer two. If the question is to be taken literally the “d” is the correct answer. Appropriation directions are made several months after the budget proposal is presented and should not be taken into account according to the OBI methodology.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “b” to maintain consistency with the criteria used for selecting answer across countries.
2. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by functional classification?

   a. All expenditures are classified by functional classification, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
   b. All expenditures are classified by functional classification, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.
   c. Some, but not all, expenditures are classified by function.
   d. No expenditures classified by function are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
The Executive's Budget Proposal is broken down into 27 expenditure areas (utgiftsområden) and 48 policy areas (politikområden).

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A standardized presentation according to COFOG is presented ex post by Statistics Sweden.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: I would opt for "b" or "c." The classification with 27 expenditure areas and 48 policy areas is not an internationally comparable functional classification (like for example COFOG). Under the 27 expenditure areas there are more than 500 appropriations specified. At present, the budget cannot be automatically reconciled with COFOG, and such a classification of expenditures is not provided in the budget documents. Many expenditure areas and appropriations can be linked with a COFOG classification, but not all, and information for this is not provided. The expenditure areas and appropriations are a mix of functional-, program- and economic classification type. For example expenditure area 25 (grants to local government) and 26 (interest on central government debt) should be COFOG 01, and at the same time they can be said to be according to economic classification (general transfers and interest respectively). If you go the appropriation level, there are for example different appropriations for running the agencies (the cost for running them, wages, intermediate consumption etc) and the transfers (for example pensions, unemployment insurance) that the administer

Researcher Response: I agree, in line with the PR1 and Government’s comments the answer should be “b.”

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “b”
3. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by economic classification?

a. All expenditures are classified by economic classification, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
b. All expenditures are classified by economic classification, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.
c. Some, but not all, expenditures are classified by economic classification.
d. No expenditures classified by economic classification are presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment: The expenditures are not classified by economic classification in the Executive’s Budget Proposal (i.e. economic classification as defined by the IMF in the Government Finance Statistics Manual 2001).

The stated reason for this is to give the agencies flexibility: “To give the agencies the financial flexibility which is necessary for performance management, they receive yearly appropriations which are not subdivided into different expenditure categories. The framework appropriations permit the agencies to carry forward unspent balances from one fiscal year to another. They also permit agencies to borrow against the following year’s appropriation.” - page 5 in the Swedish National Financial Management Authority’s publication “Performance Management in Swedish Central Government”: http://www.esv.se/publikationer/trycksaker/publikationer/performancemanagementin swedishcentralgovernment.5.e1666ffde6cee0580005740.html

For analytical purposes of the government there are some very highly aggregated presentations of transfers, consumption and investments in the budget proposal. However, it is not what the IMF defines as economic classification, and the government agencies are not obligated to spend according to those figures. An example of such a presentation can be found in the Executives Budget Proposal, expenditure area 26 (Statsskuldsräntor), table 2.3 page 10. http://regeringen.se/content/1/c6/08/81/69/d9e18423.pdf

Peer Reviewer One Comment: Expenditure by economic classification is presented ex post by the National Financial Management Authority.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: I agree with the above, but "b" or "c" might be better. In the specification documents for the different expenditure areas, there is an overall distribution by economic classification. Given the flexibility mentioned by the respondent above, the distribution is based on historical outcome data for some expenditures (for example how much an agency will spend on wages, rents etc), but for appropriations that are only for investments or transfers, the actual economic classification is the one used (for a large part of the transfer system, for example to households and local governments, the full appropriated amount is a transfer – not for administering the transfers. This is the case also for the appropriation for interest on government debt).
Researcher Response: I chose to keep my answer “d” because the question relates to the executive’s budget documents.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “d” consistent with the researcher’s observation.

Comment:
As already said in question 2 the 27 expenditure areas are divided into 48 policy areas. The expenditures presented in relation to these policy areas in the document mentioned above - and the subsequent more than 500 appropriations (anslag) to the agencies - are at program level.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: This does not suffer of the same problem as Q1, even if some programs cannot be attributed to administrative units.

Government Reviewer Comment: As mentioned before, I would not call all appropriations programs, but I think that for international comparability you should keep the "a."

Researcher Response: Agree, keep “a.”

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “a” consistent with the researcher’s comment.
5. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, are estimates of the aggregate level of expenditure presented for a multi-year period (at least two years beyond the budget year)?

6. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, is more detail than just the aggregate level presented for expenditure estimates that cover a multi-year period (for at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   b. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented for one or more expenditure classification (such as functional, economic, or administrative), but only for some individual programs.

   c. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented, but only for a portion of one or more of the expenditure classifications (such as some functions, or some administrative units) and/or for only some individual programs.

   d. No, multi-year estimates are presented for aggregate expenditure only, or they are not presented at all.

   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
Yes, details for 2006-2010 are provided for programs (e.g. policy areas) and expenditure areas.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: The answer depends on what one understands by the term “program.” Some would probably consider policy areas too large to qualify as programs, but this is open to discussion.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: Agree with "a." Just some further information. Estimates for the full period (in the budget mentioned by the respondent for 2008) estimates for appropriation level (the lowest level that are decided by parliament) for the period 2008 to 2010 are provided.

Comment:

Expenditures by expenditure areas are presented for 2006-2010, however strictly speaking expenditure areas are not administrative units (see answer to Q1).

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response would be “c.” See comment above; expenditure areas are not administrative units. The most detailed presentation is at the budget appropriation level, from which expenditure can be reconstructed using the appropriations directives, but this requires some extra work.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: Same comment as to Q1.

Government Reviewer Comment: See Q2 and 3.

Researcher Response: Since the budget is not, strictly speaking, classified according to ministry, department - or agency - (see comment to Q1) the answer to this question should be “d” as well

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “c” consistent with peer reviewer observation.

26. Are the expenditure estimates for the years prior to the budget year adjusted, as needed, to be comparable with the budget-year estimates in terms of classification and presentation?

a. Yes, prior-year data are always adjusted to be comparable to the budget year data.
b. Yes, in most cases, prior-year data are adjusted to be comparable.
c. Yes, in some cases, prior-year data are adjusted to be comparable, but significant deviations between prior-year and budget-year classifications exist.
d. No, prior-year data are not adjusted to be comparable, or no prior-year estimates are presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:

Comment: I cannot find any such adjustments.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” Table 7.6 presents an overview which is adjusted for such changes as have been made in additional budgets. If items are moved between expenditure areas, previous data are normally re-computed.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: Maybe I don’t understand the question, but the way the data is presented in table 7.6 I would think that the same classification for 2006, 2007 (budget and projection) and 2008- is used. That would make it an “a.”

Government Reviewer Comment: In the Spring Fiscal Policy bill (pre-budget report) a table with expenditure on Expenditure area level is presented with adjustment to changes between expenditure areas to make the time series comparable. See pare 171 in http://www.regeringen.se/content/1/c6/08/02/54/ab03ee76.pdf (the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill 2007). I am not sure what response that table would give here. It is a separate table as the ‘main’ table of the bills follows the actual expenditure area structure.

Researcher Response: Agree with PR1 and 2 – the answer should be “a” by referring to table 7 in the government’s budget proposal. The answer to this question relates to the budget proposal only and the Spring Fiscal Bill can, however, not be considered.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “a” consistent with peer reviewer and researcher observations.

Comment:

   Researcher’s Response to this Question was “a.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: Same comment as in Q22. However, given that projections are presented both for 2006 and 2007 (BY-1), is it likely that current projections (09/2007) include six or more months of revenue estimates from 2007? Could easily be “b” here, and should be looked into.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire, “a.” See my researcher response to Q22.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer, “a” consistent with researcher’s observation.

Government Reviewer Comment: I would add that reason for not reporting BY-2 is that the final tax assessment from the National tax authority is not available at the time of the preparation of the Budget Bill. This is usually the case for most statistics. National Accounts and other data producers need a couple of year to get ‘final’ outcomes, before that outcomes are usually preliminary, with some elements of forecasts in them. This of course differs for different tax-types, with tax bases that use preliminary taxation and taxes that are assessed ex-post. I would be a bit surprised if many other countries answer BY-2 (if so, then they probably use a cash based system, not periodized or accrual ones which is the case in Sweden. And the page reference should be 148-149

Comment:

Researcher’s Response to this Question was “b.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: I would put an “a” here. The pension system is mandatory and not included as part of central government annual budget expenditures (but the expenditures are forecasted and noted) and it is funded by individual contributions and include an automatic adjustment mechanism reducing pensions if it is not in balance to meet liabilities. Individual contributions to the pension system are through employers’ contributions. Included in the budget though are transfers to the pension system from the budget. For example, individuals earn pension rights when on parental leave with remuneration from the parental leave insurance. As no pension contributions are paid when on parental leave, the government pays an amount to the pension system instead. This amount is noted in the budget. I would say that this is very transparent compared to many countries and also that the pension system is by Eurostat counted in the social security sector, not the central government.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose “b,” as information on the activities of extra-budgetary funds should be disclosed in the government’s annual consolidated budget presentation. Even if the pension system does not form part of the central government annual budget, information about the pension funds should be disclosed in the budget documents, consistent with OECD and IMF good practice guidelines.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: Maybe put an "e" instead. According to the budget law, all guarantees should be financed by fees that are set to cover eventual losses. Guarantees are managed by the national Debt Office and if the government decides to subsidize someone by accepting a guarantee, the fee should be given over the budget to the entity that then pays it to the Debt Office. More information is available on this in the Annual Report of the Central Government.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: Change to "e." It should be noted that civil servants receive their main pension from the same pension system as private employers. The pension system is mandatory, not included in the budget, and a PAYG notional account system financed by employers’ contributions. The government is liable though for a small top-up part that is negotiated between the employer and the unions. Accrued pension rights for this part are a liability for the government. A small supplementary labor union-employers organization pension (similar systems for private and public employees) is paid by the central government and is noted in the Annual report the central government.

Researcher Response: I see the point in the comment from government but still interpret the question as a “d.” The information is not presented.

Comment:
However, all existing tax expenditures are not presented in the above mentioned section. An overview of all tax expenditures is given in the appendix 2 (Redovisning av skatteutgifter) of the pre-budget statement, the Spring Fiscal Bill 2007.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” The presentation given in the Spring Bill is detailed. The fact that it appears there rather than in the Budget Proposal is immaterial; in fact it can be argued that it is more useful there because it can be used in the preparation and discussion of the new budget.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: I would say "a." I agree with the above, but would like to add that tax credits/expenditures that can be connected to a certain purpose are noted together with that expenditure area in the annual budget. Tax expenditures a reported openly and to get an international comparability, in my opinion, Sweden would qualify for an "a." Also, as an Appendix to the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill (http://www.regeringen.se/content/1/c6/08/02/54/d4466658.pdf) tax expenditures are presented in detail

Researcher Response: I fully understand PR1’s point - but the IBP instructions on how to answer the question says only budget documentation released on and soon after the budget proposal is officially released in the fall should be taken into consideration.

IBP Comment: IBP editor chose the answer "b." Questions 1-55 are specifically intended to evaluate the executive’s budget proposal and supporting documents, sometimes known as the country’s ‘annual consolidated budget presentation.’ The annual presentation should give a comprehensive picture of government budget and financial activities, including tax expenditures. This is essential to support appropriate legislative oversight and public understanding of trade-offs between activities.

According to the law (Lag om statsbudget, § 17), the general principle is that revenues should not be earmarked. An exception is the pension fund fee (Ålderspensionsavgiften), of which the major part is directed to the “AP-fond.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: There are earmarked taxes also in the environmental (batteries) and infrastructure areas (road tolls in Stockholm, the management of which is currently unclear).

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: Agencies are sometimes allowed to keep own revenue for services delivered which are not included in the budget. To be able to do this, they need the approval of the government. These revenues are generally fees for some kind of service that they produce. These fees are also reported in the annual report of the agencies. Still, I think that "a" is appropriate.
What percentage of expenditure in the budget year is dedicated to spending on secret items relating to, for instance, national security and military intelligence?

a. One percent or less of expenditure is dedicated to secret items.
b. Three percent or less, but more than one percent, of expenditure is dedicated to secret items.
c. Eight percent or less, but more than three percent, of expenditure is dedicated to secret items.
d. More than eight percent of expenditure is dedicated to secret items, or the percentage is not available to the public.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
The secret expenditure relates to national security and military intelligence. In the letter of appropriation regarding the Swedish defense “Regleringsbrev för budgetåret 2007 avseende Försvarsmakten,” under appropriation 6:1 (Förbandsverksamhet och beredskap), it is stated that “Högst 502 985 000 kronor får användas för den militära underrättelse- och säkerhetstjänsten (MUST) i enlighet med vad regeringen beslutar i hemligt beslut.” The total of the 2007 budget proposal was SEK 790 billion.

Comment:

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” There are obvious limitations to the assignment of goals, and Sweden’s level of detail and ambition is among the higher within the OECD area.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: In the international comparison of the OBI – which also include countries outside the OECD - maybe an “a” is the more appropriate. Comment:
According to my own estimate performance indicators are presented in just under 50% of the 27 expenditure areas of the Executive’s Budget Proposal. The majority of expenditure areas are subdivided into policy areas. There are goals attached to the policy areas. In just under 50% of the expenditure areas, there are different, more or less specified, performance indicators related to one or more of the goals. The detail and measurability of the goals and indicators vary.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: It is not clear what the figure “just under 50%” is based on. It seems as an underestimate. In any case, expenditure areas would have to be weighted. I have not done this calculation, but I would estimate that “b” is more adequate.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: Non-financial information is published more extensively in the annual report of agencies. A more thorough presentation in the annual budget is not possible due to constraints in the number of pages to keep a budget under control in terms of size. One could of course see a problem with that, but as budgets are often forward looking Researcher Response: I would like the answer “c” to remain. I see PR1’s comment about weighting and agree that would have been the best way. As I interpret the question, however, it is just about the number of programs, without taking their size or importance into consideration.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "c" to maintain the consistency of the data across the countries.
53. Are the performance indicators sufficiently well designed, such that one can assess whether there has been progress toward meeting policy goals?

   Peer Reviewer One Comment: Again, it is not clear on what this statement is based. There are indicators with no associated targets, e.g., the number of crimes of various categories. A more appropriate response to this question would be “b.”

   Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

   Researcher Response: PR1 has a point here, but I wish he/she could have been more specific and pointed to examples in the budget documents. I think I interpreted the question less strictly that he/she does. It is true that there are indicators presented in the budget documents that seem not to be directly related to a target. But should by default be down-rated? I will stick to my “a” response.

   b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the impact of key policies intended to alleviate poverty, but some details are excluded.

   d. No, information on policies intended to alleviate poverty is not presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:

There is no one report or section in the budget proposal by the Swedish government in the sense described above. However, several appropriations are intended to benefit those in Sweden with lesser means. Many parts of the social security system for example are directed towards people with the least, or no, income.

Appendix 3 of the Executive's Budget Proposal is about "economic distribution" (Fördelningspolitisk redogörelse).
http://regeringen.se/content/1/c6/08/81/69/b4bf7367.pdf

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: Given that outright poverty is less of a problem in Scandinavian countries, I actually think that the budget does a good job of explaining and presenting information on distributional issues, including information on people with “a relatively weak economic situation” (graph 2.2, Utgiftsområde 12). I would choose the answer “a.”

Government Reviewer Comment: In general I agree with what is mentioned above. There is no compilation of all measures to alleviate poverty. I would like to note though that Appendix 3 and also Appendix 4 (Distribution of economic resources between women and men) highlights the situation. And that in the parts on different expenditure areas and appropriations each measure is described. As the focus is not always on ‘poverty alleviation’ must also be seen in the context of Sweden’s economic development level and generous welfare system and to put the answer in an international comparable situation, an answer "a" might be appropriate.

Researcher Response: I see PR1’s point but after having read quite a few poverty reduction strategies of other countries I still think “b” holds.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "b" to maintain the consistency of the data across the countries.

Does the executive release to the public its timetable for preparation of the executive’s budget proposal (that is, a document setting deadlines for submissions from other government entities, such as line ministries or subnational government, to the ministry of finance or whatever central government agency is in charge of coordinating the budget’s formulation)?

Researcher’s Response to this Question was “d.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: I agree with that the executive does not hold formal consultations, but in at least democracies parties are interested in the views of the public. Information can of course be collected in a formal way, or an informal way through the governing parties organizations and local representatives. I find the difference in this question quite sharp between saying either "b," "c" or "d" (and also between “a” and "b" as "b" specifically mentions that ‘key’ constituencies are excluded). "d" for me sounds like no interaction with the public happens. Given that, I would say answer "c" instead of "d."

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose “d” to maintain consistency of assumptions across countries.

   Peer Reviewer One Comment:

   Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

   Government Reviewer Comment: A general comment. The Spring Fiscal Policy bill is, as I understand your description of pre-budget and mid-term review, a combination of both. In the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill, there is a macroeconomic update, estimates of expenditures and revenues given the new updated on expenditure area level. This information is then updated for the Budget Bill in the autumn (in both the spring bill and the budget bill for the present year and forecasts for the coming 3 years). Also, in both the Spring Bill and the Budget bill, there are updates of the implementation for the present year, including changes in macroeconomic and volume parameters and the effect of those on expenditure estimates (for the present year and the 3 coming years), and they both also include a supplementary budget for the present year.
   I agree that the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill is a pre-budget, but it also includes aspects of what you define as a mid-term review.
   Also, as April 15 was a Sunday in 2007, the SFPB was released on the 16th which is in accordance with existing practice.
72. Does the pre-budget statement describe the government’s macroeconomic and fiscal framework?

   a. Yes, an extensive explanation of the government’s fiscal and macroeconomic policy is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
   b. Yes, an explanation is presented, highlighting key aspects of the fiscal and macroeconomic framework, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, some explanation is presented, but it lacks important details.

The Standing Committee on Finance holds public hearings twice a year (around October and March) in which testimonies on the macroeconomic and fiscal framework are heard from the head of the Central Bank. However, no special invitation is extended to the public to participate in the discussion, and generally no one from the public make their voice heard at the meetings. The hearings are, however, made public on the Parliament's webpage. The latest hearing was held on 15 November 2007 - see: http://riksdagen.se/webbnav/index.aspx?nid=5414&utskutfrID=895&utskutfrrm=200708

Government Reviewer Comment: FYI it could also be added that the Riksbank (the Central bank) and KI (National Institute of Economic Research www.koni.se) makes forecasts that are publicly discussed and compared with the government’s view. So even if the use of hearings is not that developed as in some other countries, there is in my view and compared with other countries, good information available from different actors to be able to compare the government’s view on economic and also fiscal development.

Lag (1996:1059) om statsbudgeten:

Comment:
The process around the budget bill in Sweden:
- 20 September, the executive presents its budget proposal to Parliament (Riksdag).
- The Parliament has until the end of November to determine the total limit for central government expenditure, as well as the limits for each expenditure area.
- In mid-December the Parliament decides how the money for each expenditure area is to be allocated.
- The Parliament also takes a decision regarding the estimate of central government revenue.

The Parliament thus decides the limit of the government expenditure in November - i.e. in November it has the authority to set a higher or lower expenditure ceiling. Then in December when the Parliament decides on the budget for each expenditure area, it can no longer go beyond the ceiling it set in November. Any amendment of the budget of course also needs a majority in Parliament.

In sum, the legislature cannot make amendments which entail increasing expenditure above the set ceiling in December, and it cannot make amendments without a majority in Parliament.

However, the sequence of voting in parliament does not limit the power of parliament. It is the Parliament that sets the expenditure ceiling in Nov. Then it has to follow that decision in December. If the question is to be taken literally the Parliament does not have unlimited powers in December, but it is a consequence of its own November decision. A less strict interpretation, which I now find more reasonable is “a.”

Comment:
Most of the agencies’ activities are financed by the appropriations (anslag) of the enacted budget. However:

a) A large number of agencies provide services of different kinds for which they charge user fees. User fees are directly related to the services provided and must not, in the long run, exceed the estimated full cost of those services. The reason for putting a charge on a service provided is that the general public should not pay through general taxation for activities which are primarily of interest or benefit to specific organizations or individuals.

b) Expenditures which are not taken from appropriations by the commercially run agencies (affärsverken) are not included in the in-year reports. Currently, there are four such agencies: Luftfartsverket, Sjöfartsverket, Statens järnvägar (only partly), and Svenska kraftnät.

Only the activities which are financed by appropriations are covered in the in-year reports (see the comment for question 84). The expenditures related to a) and b) are accounted for in the year-end report (Årsredovisning för staten).

Citation:

Comment:
The executive does not release no one such mid-year review – hence the answer “d.” However, the Spring Fiscal Bill (Vårpropositionen) has aspects of a mid-year review but is not designed to specifically show detailed budget performance and macroeconomic data for the past 6 months (it does give some overview of such information though). The Spring Fiscal Bill is a pre-budget statement.

Agencies are, however, obligated to produce a mid-year review (delårsrapport) covering the period 1 January to 30 June if:
- their expenditures exceed one billion SEK
- their revenue only come from sources other than appropriations
- their revenue coming from other sources than appropriations exceed 30 million SEK
The deadline for the agencies’ submission of their mid-year reviews to the government is 15 August.

Not all agencies have their “delårsrapport” on their homepage. The “delårsrapporter” are available from the agencies on request.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “d” consistent with the researcher’s observations and guidance in the Guide to the Open Budget Questionnaire.

When a ministry, department or agency needs more money than anticipated in the central government budget approved in December, Parliament can amend the budget by proposing additional money in the budget. This is known as a supplementary budget. The government submits its proposed changes in April and September. In practice, decisions on supplementary budgets are taken by Parliament in relation to the government’s presentation of the Spring Fiscal Bill (in April) and Budget Bill (in September).

- According to Stefan Elg at Allego, Swedish procurements are generally handled well. He further says that around 1,200 cases are taken to court (Länsrätten) each year. The cases are taken to court before the procurement has ended. It is easy and free to take such a case to court. About 25-30% of the 1,200 cases are denied instantly by the court (most often due to the case being submitted too late - after the procurement process has ended, or that the supplier has withdrawn the procurement). Out of the 70-75% of cases taken on by the court, 25% are sanctioned (in part or in full).
Allego: http://www.allego.se

- Anders Svensson at the Swedish Competition Authority (Konkurrensverket) says that there is reason to believe that the number of procurements that do not follow an open and competitive process are larger than the number that are taken to court. New rules regarding public procurements are under way from the EU.

The database NOU (National Board for Public Procurement: http://www.nou.se) found at the Konkurrensverket’s homepage presents information on public procurements: http://www.kkv.se/t/Page___2096.aspx

Citation:

Comment: There is one contingency fund in the Executive’s Budget Proposal. See expenditure area 26 (Statsskuldsräntor m.m.) http://regeringen.se/content/1/c6/08/81/69/d9e18423.pdf, section 4, unforeseen expenditures (Oförutsedda utgifter). The fund amounts to SEK 10 million (0.000013 of the total 2008 budget proposal). When approving the budget proposal, the Parliament authorizes the government to spend the fund on matters that are of great urgency. Apart from emergencies the fund should only be used if the expenditures cannot be covered by other appropriations. The money spent is accounted for in the following year’s executive budget proposal. The expenditures of the fund are not presented to the legislature before the following year’s budget proposal.

In 2006, SEK 10 million were budgeted for this fund, and out of this amount 9.8 million was spent. In the above mentioned document it is explained on what the funds were spent. In 2007 it is estimated that the budgeted amount of 10 million will be spent.

It should be noted that when unforeseen expenditures occur the budgeted 10 million is most often not enough. The additional expenditures are then taken from granted appropriations – such as in the case of the Tsunami.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: More important then the contingency fund mentioned is the budgeting margin, which amounts to a few per cent of the budget at the aggregate level (increasing over time). The answer depends to some extent on the purpose for which this extra room was used, but “c” seems appropriate.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: The lack of contingency reserves is not due to a hope that no contingencies occur, but is a part of the strict budget discipline. Funds for such events are not pre-authorized in general but instead, if unforeseen events occur, funds will be transferred by the government from other appropriations in the first instance. As a second option the government can increase total spending to cover the need. Both these options need parliamentary approval. Using the limited amount mentioned in the comment above to give a response “c” does not tell the right story on how we work with contingencies. It should be an "a."

Researcher Response: I see the government’s point, but to answer the question strictly I would like to keep the answer “c.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: Such discussions are presented in the budget proposal.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: A discussion and follow up of agencies performance indicators is done in the individual annual reports of the agencies, not in the Annual report of the government.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “d” consistent with guidance in the IBP guide to the Open Budget Questionnaire.

109. Does the year-end report explain the difference between the enacted level of funds intended to benefit directly the country’s most impoverished populations and the actual outcome?

a. Yes, an extensive explanation of the differences is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
b. Yes, an explanation is presented, highlighting key differences, but some details are excluded.
c. Yes, some explanation is presented, but it lacks important details.
d. No, an explanation is not presented, or such a report is not released.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

118. Does the Supreme Audit Institution employ designated staff for undertaking audits of the central government agencies pertaining to the security sector (military, police, intelligence services)?

a. The SAI employs designated staff, and the staffing levels are broadly consistent with the resources the SAI needs to fulfill its mandate.
b. The SAI employs designated staff, but the staffing levels are a cause of some constraints to the SAI in fulfilling its mandate.
c. The SAI employs designated staff, but the staffing levels pose a significant constraint on the SAI in fulfilling its mandate.
d. The SAI does not employ designated staff for auditing of the security sector, or does not undertake audits of the security sector.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
According to Karin Holmerin at the Swedish State Audit Institution (Riksrevisionen), the institution conducts such audits and has enough staff to do it. However, the institution does not employ designated staff for this purpose. Notable in relation to this is that staff responsible for yearly audits will not have the same area of responsibility for more than 7 years -- in accordance with EU regulations.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Reviewer Comment: It is difficult in this question to see what you are actually after to be able to make some conclusions from all countries in this survey. In Sweden, there are no specifically designated staff for this kind of audit, on the other hand, there are staff working with audit and as far as I know, there is no lack of resources to perform audit (the Audit office budget is more ring fenced than other expenditures). Given that, the proper response (as you ask for 'designated' staff) is d. On the other hand, a d gives the impression that the sector is audited properly, which, in my view, is not the case in Sweden. Maybe both me and the respondent to the questionnaire understand ‘designated’ wrong? If you ask in general if staff of the audit office perform audit of this sector in a ‘similar way’ as other sectors, I would say that the response should be "a."

Researcher Response: I agree with the government comment, but would like to keep the answer "d" to answer the question as it is stated. A “d” answer to the question does, however, not capture that the sector is audited the same way other sectors are.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “d.” This question is intended to capture whether or not audit staff have been granted any special permission that might be required under national law to gain access to information that might be designated as “secret” or not available to public, and if they have sufficient expertise in security sector matters to effectively undertake regular financial audits of the sector, and to audit procurement.
119. Does the Supreme Audit Institution maintain formal mechanisms of communication with the public to receive complaints and suggestions to assist it in determining its audit program (that is, to identify the agencies, programs, or projects it will audit)?

a. Yes, the SAI maintains mechanisms of communication with the public, and received more than 100 communications from the public during the past year.
b. Yes, the SAI maintains mechanisms of communication with the public, and received less than 100 but more than ten communications from the public during the past year.
c. Yes, the SAI maintains mechanisms of communication with the public but it receives very little (less than ten) or no information from the public on potential subjects for audit.
d. No, the SAI does not maintain any formal mechanisms of communication with the public.
e. Not applicable.

120. Does a committee of the legislature view and scrutinize the audit reports?

a. Yes, all audit reports are scrutinized.
b. Yes, most audit reports are scrutinized.
c. Yes, some audit reports are scrutinized.
d. No, audit reports are not scrutinized.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
The mid-year report audits from the agencies are not always scrutinized, but the year-end audits are. There is no specific committee in Parliament that scrutinizes audit reports. Each standing committee handles reports specific to its area of responsibility.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: It should be mentioned that a substantial fraction of the SAI’s reports are not year-end audits but efficient audits are published continuously. These are as a rule read and commented on by the legislature.

The government reports on audit recommendations and findings in each expenditure area document of the Executive's Budget Proposal. The contents and of the reports vary.

The question does not ask whether the reports are extensive or not. It only asks if the executive reports. The executive reports on the steps but the reports could be more extensive.

Please note, in the OBI 2006 the answer to this question was "c.”

Comment:
All audit reports of the annual accounts are sent from the Swedish National Audit Institution (Riksrevisionen) to the Government - not directly to the Parliament or a relevant Parliamentary committee. Exceptions are those audit reports that concern agencies which are directly accountable to the Parliament (such as the Swedish Central Bank, the Swedish National Audit Institution, etc.). Those are sent directly to the Parliament.

To have an example to follow-up on I used one of the most secret parts of the public sector, the National Defense Radio Establishment (Försvarsmaktens radioanstalt/FRA). I talked to a number of people at the Parliament, the Parliaments Defense Committee, and the Ministry of Defense. It turned out that they did not remember the Defense Committee ever asking the government to give them the audit report for FRA. The defense committee said that they thought they would get access to the audit report if they asked for it. I therefore sent a hypothetical question to the Defense Ministry asking whether they would release the above mentioned audit report to the Defense Committee if it asked for it. Maria Gillberg at the Defence Ministry answered that the FRA audit report is not secret and would be handed over to the Defence Committee should it ask for it.

Based on the above I come to the conclusion that the best possible answer is “a.”

Section One

Table One: Citizens budget: I would note September 20 2008 instead of the comment provided. There are a couple of publication of ‘citizens budget’ that are more of that kind than budget summary type publications.

Table Two: See comment above. I would move the ‘Våra pengar’ (our money) reference to the ‘Citizens budget’ instead of having it under pre-budget report (or have it under both headings).
