Section Two: The Executive's Budget Proposal

Notes on abbreviations:

BY = budget year (year for which the budget proposals are being made)

BY+1 = one year beyond the budget year

BY-1 = one year before the budget year

Note 1: The Open Budget Survey research process was carried out over a 12-month period and the final version of the Open Budget Questionnaires reflect decisions made after multiple rounds of discussions between Survey researchers, peer reviewers, and the International Budget Partnership (IBP) (in several countries these decisions also considered comments received from governments). When peer reviewers or governments agreed with the answers provided by researchers, they often provided no comment. Thus for many questions, the section in the questionnaire that should contain peer reviewer comments is left blank. However, if the government did not provide any comments to a question (because it did not dispute the answer), the section within the questionnaire that is meant to reflect government comments specifies the answer that the government agreed with (by default).

Since the IBP continued its discussions with the researchers even after receiving peer reviewer and government comments, for some questions these discussions resulted in a mutual decision to change the answers, even if the peer reviewers and governments agreed with the original answer provided by the researcher. Such changes may have happened as a result of:

1. A more consistent application of the Survey methodology;
2. New information identified by the researcher or by IBP that had a bearing on the answer for a particular question; or
3. Decisions made to ensure cross-country comparability of answers.

For more information on these changes for any question please write to info@internationalbudget.org.

2. Does the executive's budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by functional classification?

- a. All expenditures are classified by functional classification, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
- b. All expenditures are classified by functional classification, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.
- c. Some, but not all, expenditures are classified by function.
- d. No expenditures classified by function are presented.
- e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

p 29 ff. contains tables where all expenditure for each ministry are classified by functional category

Comment:

a) Functions are not in all cases consistent with IMF standards (table 6.2 GFS manual). b) Note that comparisons between the proposed 2009 expenditure and 2008 estimated expenditure entered in the tables are not always straightforward, e.g. because of transfers of funding between ministries when a task is transferred from one ministry to another during the budget year.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: See the comment to question 1.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher's answer.

3. Does the executive's budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by economic classification?

- a. All expenditures are classified by economic classification, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
- b. All expenditures are classified by economic classification, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.
- c. Some, but not all, expenditures are classified by economic classification.
- d. No expenditures classified by economic classification are presented.

Comment:

The main budget document does not contain economic classification tables but the above cited documents do contain tables where broad economic categories are given. Some categories are compatible with the IMF standards but not all

Researcher Response to this Question was "c"

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "b." The main document does contain economic classification tables, cf. the Executive's Budget Proposal 2009, chapter 4, p 56 ff. Classification is for the most part consistent with GFSM 2001, however because the budget is cash-based, there are categories in GFSM 2001 that do not have their counterparts in the budget, such as capital depreciation and a distinction between accrual and paid wages. The four broad economic categories of the budget are operating expenses, investment, transfers (of which there are three types) and lending and borrowing. In addition, the chart of account is organized in a way that makes it simple to single out interests and expenses towards petroleum activities.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should be changed as suggested by the Government to "b." I chose my answer in order to maintain consistency across countries.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "b" to maintain consistency with the criteria used for selecting answers across countries, and within the questionnaire (see question 20).

Comment:

Whereas payments of interest and principal for central government debt are given in the Executive's Budget Proposal, the total stock of government debt outstanding for the year is not given. Detailed information is however easily found on the website of the Central Bureau of Statistics (web address cited above).

b

Researcher Answer to this Question was "d"

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." A complete overview of the central government's outstanding debt is available (in English) at:

<http://www.regjeringen.no/en/dep/fin/Selected-topics/economic-policy/the-central-governments-outstanding-debt.html?id=443404>, with the BY-2 ending balance available in April BY-1, and financing requirements for BY-2, BY-1, and BY given in table 2, available simultaneously with the budget proposal in October BY-1.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." Data about outstanding gross debt are readily available from Statistics Norway; I interpret this as "supporting budget documentation."

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." In an amendment to the fiscal budget (Budget Document 4) concerning the authorization to borrow on behalf of the Norwegian state, extensive data on government debt is presented. The document may be accessed here: <http://www.regjeringen.no/nn/dep/fin/Dokument/proposisjonar-og-meldingar/Stortingsproposisjonar/2008-2009/stprp-nr-5-2008-2009-.html?id=532771>

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire: "d." I chose my answer because the question refers to the executive's budget proposal. The comment from Peer Reviewer One refers to a webpage that is clearly not part of the executive's budget proposal. The Government refers to a document (St. prp. Nr. 5 (2008-2009)) that was released on the 17th October 2008 whereas the main budget proposal documents were released on 26th September 2008. Whether the St. prp. No. 5 document, that contains the requested data on government debt outstanding, can be considered a supporting document for the executive's budget proposal is however a moot point.

The OBI manual is not quite clear about this: It says a) that the phrase "supporting budget document" as used in the questionnaire refers to documents that are issued by the executive at the same time or within a few days of the time that it presents its proposal to the legislature. Using this criterion it seems quite clear that the document does not qualify as a "Supporting Document" since the time from 26th September to 17th October cannot be characterized as "a few days." But the OBI Manual also says b): that such (supporting) "documents must be released within a few days of the main budget document, so that they can be used to inform the debate on the budget before it is enacted by the legislature." By this criterion the St prp Nr 5 might qualify as a supporting document as the debate and committee work on the budget in the legislature goes on until well past the middle of December. I assume however that the former, more specific criterion will take precedence over the latter.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "b" to maintain consistency with the criteria used for selecting answers across countries, and within the questionnaire (see question 13). The researcher's initial assumptions were correct with regard to the Guide to the Open Budget Questionnaire, but have been aligned with the assumptions used for evaluation of answers in other countries.

12. Does the executive's budget or any supporting budget documentation present interest payments on the debt for the budget year? a. Yes, interest payments on the debt are presented. b. IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer "b."

14. Does the executive's budget or any supporting budget documentation present the macroeconomic forecast upon which the budget projections are based?

- a. Yes, an extensive discussion of the macroeconomic forecast is presented, and key assumptions (such as inflation, real GDP growth, unemployment rate, and interest rates) are stated explicitly.
- b. Yes, the macroeconomic forecast is discussed and most of the key assumptions are stated explicitly, but some details are excluded.

Comment:

Throughout the narrative description in the cited chapter of the "National Budget 2009" reference is made to the effect of alternative developments in macroeconomic assumptions. Ch. 2 also includes a brief section on uncertainties in economic forecasting. Only few quantitative estimates are included.

Researcher Response to this Question was "b"

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." There are 6 pages (46-51, Norw. version) in the National Budget 2009 on the impact of different assumptions and uncertainties in forecasts. The response "b" seems to indicate that this lacks important details. But supporting documents are available from Statistics Norway.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher's answer.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire: "b." I chose my answer because the supporting statistics from Statistics Norway mentioned by Peer Reviewer One are not part of the documentation for the executive's proposal and the reference to the National budget p. 46 to p. 51 must be misunderstood as these sections refer to the development in the Norwegian financial markets and the developments in the stock markets, foreign exchange markets and interest rates. These may be of relevance to the question asked but not an answer as such.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "b" as originally suggested by the researcher.

16. Does the executive's budget or any supporting budget documentation present information for at least the budget year that shows how policy proposals in the budget, as distinct from existing policies, affect expenditures?

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be that the functional classification of IMF standards may be derived from the budget. We regard it as an open question whether "a" or "b" is the appropriate marking here.

Researcher Response: I chose my answer because if an "a" may be gained by deriving the IMF standard qualification from the budget not considering which level of aggregation it is derived at virtually all budgets could obtain an "a."

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer "b."

Comment:

Expenditures are only classified by five broad categories that do not coincide with the IMF standard for economic classification. (Operating expenses, investment, three different kinds of transfers, interests, and expenses towards petroleum activities). Although all expenditures are classified in the four major categories in chapter 4, some of the sub items are not "economic" in the same sense as in the classification set out in the GSFM (see table 6.1 page 63) Even though insiders in the Ministry of Finance might know where an item would belong within an international classification scheme, this is not clear to the interested outsider. OBI is focused on the openness of the budget to the general reader and not to insiders.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "b" as originally suggested by the researcher.

21. Does the executive's budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for individual programs for the year preceding the budget year (BY-1)?

- a. Program-level expenditure data are presented for all expenditures for BY-1.
- b. Program-level expenditure data are presented for at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures for BY-1.
- c. Program-level expenditure data are presented, but for less than two-thirds of expenditures for BY-1.

Comment:

Total assets of the pension fund are presented in the cited table. This covers the overwhelming part of the state assets. There is little information on other financial assets.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." The citation has a link to the State budget, which is incorrect. Table 3.6 page 66 is from the (Norwegian language version) National budget, not the State budget. On the substance: the transparency of the financial assets is clearly higher than indicated by the "c." The Government Pension Fund - Global is the largest part of the government's financial assets (assuming that corporations in which the government holds a controlling interest are classified as non-financial). This fund's holdings at the end of each year is published approximately two months later, in full detail, including voting (related to equity holdings), cf. (for end-2008).

http://www.norges-bank.no/templates/report_73483.aspx

In the opinion of this reviewer, the transparency of this fund is exemplary, with discussions of purpose and estimates of market values, including discussion of methods for these estimates (in particular for fixed-income securities).

Previous decisions by the Storting (parliament) have established the procedures for investments, outside of the yearly state budget procedures.

The other major part of the government's financial assets is the State's Direct Financial Interest in the petroleum activity. This is covered in the budget proposal of the Ministry of Oil and Energy, p. 89f, cf.

http://www.statsbudsjettet.dep.no/upload/Statsbudsjett_2009/dokumenter/pdf/oed.pdf with a valuation of SDFI's potential market value. Listings of the SDFI assets, and thorough discussions of its purpose, are available in several public documents.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." Information about financial assets is available from the Statistics Norway webpage and can be interpreted as "supporting budget documentation."

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." The most important funds for financial asset management, the Pension Fund – Global and the Pension Fund – Norway, are given an extensive presentation in the budget documents.

Information on financial assets held by the government is also presented in several supporting documents.

The Ministry of Finance present a separate report to the parliament on the management of the Pension fund, you will find the English version at:

http://www.regjeringen.no/pages/2185603/PDFS/STM200820090020000EN_PDFS.pdf

The Ministry of Trade and Industry present a separate report on state ownership. The objective of the state ownership report is to provide an overview of the State ownership, the administration of this ownership and the developments in the companies in which the state owns stakes. You will find an English online version at: <http://www.ownershipreport.net>

Information on financial assets are also presented in the year-end report, see table 3.6.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should be changed to "b" taking in consideration the information on the oil industry assets pointed out by Peer Reviewer One. I chose my answer because the documents cited by the peer reviewers cannot be considered part of the executive's budget proposal. The first webpage referred to by Peer Reviewer One is simply the Annual Report 2008 of the Central Bank of Norway and has little direct relation to the Executive's budget proposal for the budget year 2009. The second reference by Peer Reviewer One is to a supporting document for the Executive's budget proposal. It covers the financial assets of the oil industry well. None of the two documents referred to by the Government are supporting documents in the sense of the OBI manual. The document on the management of the pension fund is dated 3rd April 2009. The "Ownership Report" reports (p. 3) that it was updated 3rd March 2009.

IBP Comment: Following the suggestions made by Peer Reviewer One and the Researcher, IBP editors chose answer "b."

40. Does the executive's budget or any supporting budget documentation present information on non-financial assets held by the government?
- a. Yes, extensive information on non-financial assets is presented, including a listing of the assets, and (where possible) an estimate of their market value.
 - b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting key information, but some details are excluded.
 - c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.
 - d. No, information on non-financial assets is not presented.
 - e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:

No mention of non-financial assets.

Researcher Response to this Question was "d"

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "c." The Ministry of Trade and Industry has a separate webpage, yearly, <http://www.eierberetningen.no/2008/> (including English translation), documenting the ownership of controlling interests in corporations and other forms of companies. This is an important part of the government's non-financial assets, but does not include all (or perhaps even much of) property, plant and equipment owned by the government (cf. the example from New Zealand in the IBP guide). In particular, there is no valuation of petroleum reserves in areas not yet licensed (but this is available elsewhere). This reviewer is in doubt whether "b" or "c" would be appropriate, but comparing with New Zealand, it is clear that important details are missing, implying "c." However, for those non-financial assets which are important in budgetary discussions of asset values, the information is quite comprehensive.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "b." As a special appendix to the budget a detailed listing of all state owned properties is given, cf. budget document nr. 5.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire: "d." I chose my answer because the documents cited by the peer reviewers cannot be considered part of the executive's budget proposal. Researcher Response to this Question was "b"

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would mention the information on the BY+1 - BY+3 development of the future civil service pension liabilities (Statens pensjonskasse), cf.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire: "b." I chose my answer because PR1 actually agrees that some details are missing and thereby will have to give a "d" rating.

Comment:

There is no mention of the word secret, confidential or the like in the executive's budget proposal. This would indicate that there are no secret items and thus justify an "a." However, items entitled "national security," "intelligence" and "military" appear in the document. They are fairly well detailed and may not justify the label "secret." If they are deemed to be secret however they would be altogether probably three percent or less and would deserve a "b." I have decided to give it an "a."

Non-financial data are presented but not for all programs. (An estimate of how much of the expenditure is linked to non-financial data is difficult. A "c" rating is therefore possible).

Researcher Response to this Question was "b"

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "c," not easily accessible as part of budget process.

Government Comment: "A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." There are given information on non-financial data for all expenditure programs, for large programs the information is quite extensive. The data is presented as a part of the ministries reporting to the parliament on the results, in the budget documents from "Relevant Ministries and Departments."

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire: "b." I chose my answer because a) the Government comment falls short of proving that non-financial data are presented for "all" expenditures and b) Peer Reviewer Two's comment does not make it clear that non-financial data are presented for less than two thirds of all expenditure.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "b" as originally suggested by the researcher.

Comment:

Few performance indicators are clearly linked with performance targets other than at a very general level.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: According to the Regulations on Financial Management in the Central Government and Provisions on Financial Management, ministries shall place appropriations at the disposition of subordinate agencies by letters of allocation. The letters of allocation shall contain overall objectives, performance indicators, allocated funds and reporting requirements. Most programs have performance indicators used in conjunction with performance targets. It is an inherent challenge in Norway, as elsewhere, to find relevant performance indicators measuring what is most relevant to measure. As a result we have to conclude that, so far, only some performance indicators are used in conjunction with performance targets. There are, however, continuous work going on, trying to improve the conjunction between performance indicators and performance targets.

Comment:

The National Budget treatment is somewhat aggregated. The information in "Ung Økonomi" (young economy) is very pedagogical but focuses on the younger citizens only.

Researcher Response to this Question was "b"

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." This would include a reference to "Finanstalen," which was associated with the Budget Summary in Table Two of this survey.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a," a good summary of the proposal is always provided.

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." The budget is extensively presented on the budget web portal. In addition to the documents themselves, the portal among other things includes an index of the budget's most important terms and policy areas, and an overview of the budget's consequences for the different counties. The use of press releases, both Norwegian and English, is extensive.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should be changed to "a." I chose my answer because although it is not clear that the "executive makes available to the public a summary that describes the budget and its proposals" in a direct manner the basic openness in budgetary issues in Norway, the amount of information pointed out at various levels of sophistication sums up to a public that is very well informed on budget matters.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "a," as suggested by both Peer Reviewers, the Government, and the researcher.

- c. Yes, but the citizens budget is not very informative.

The treatment in the National Budget is somewhat technical, the Ung Økonomi focuses one particular group and the Pocket budget does contain only a few figures. Also the latter two are not part of the executive's proposal but reflects the enacted budget. Comment:

The ministerial budget proposals contain some non-financial information. In addition, many of the programs are based on white papers, special reports or the like which are referred to in the budget and which contain non-financial information. However such information is not regularly available and often refers to years before the budget year. If requested from a ministry, such information is likely to be given but it would take quite some time and effort to get it. In practice, such information would really only be available for particularly interested and well-informed citizens.

Comment:

Consultations take place occasionally but the executive's budget preparation cycle does not include any routine of consultations with the public.

Researcher Response to this Question was "c"

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." Governments in Norway communicate with the public through the parties that constitute the government (typically party coalitions), and better than in most countries I will presume.

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." The Ministers holds a large number of meetings/consultations during the year, where they meet with NGOs, private persons, local politicians, private companies etc. Both budget topics and other political topics are at the agenda. There are no regulations on who the Ministers can meet and since there are few formal, yearly, consultations large and strong political groups are not systematically favored compared to more marginal groups. The exemption is the yearly consultations held with the large municipal sector. This arrangement has its own website: http://www.regjeringen.no/nb/dep/krd/tema/Kommune-og_fylkesforvaltning/konsultasjoner.html?id=418388&epslanguage=NO

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire: "c." I chose my answer because the question asks for "consultations with the public as part of its process of determining budget priorities. The comments from Peer Reviewer One and Government point out that politicians and the executive are in contact with the public all the time – which is true – but it does not happen as a formalized part of the budget priority process.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "b" to maintain consistency with the criteria used for selecting answers across countries.

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "b." The National Budget is released 3 months before the start of the budget year.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire: "d." I chose my answer because the OBI manual refers to the OECD manual for the definition of a pre-budget statement. The OECD manual requires that the pre-budget statement is released before the release of the executive's budget proposal and as the Government says it "is released three months before the start of the budget year" i.e. at the same time as the executive's budget is released.

For all practical purposes this can be regarded as 3 months. On average the first working day in October is 3 months 1 day in advance of the first working day of the budget year (which is January 2 or later). Only when October 1 is a Saturday (not a working day) will there be less than three months until the first working day of the budget year (October 3 - January 2). Peer Reviewer Two Comment: Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher's original answer "b," which the IBP modified for consistency purposes. Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should be changed as suggested by Peer Reviewer one to "a." I chose my answer because of the clever comment of Peer Reviewer One, and accepting that 2nd January is the first day of the budget year (although I am at a bit of a loss of the situation on the 1st January if somebody would need State funds?) but, if a future OBI will be based on the budget for 2012, Norway will fail the criteria since October 1st falls on a Saturday. IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "a" as suggested by Peer Reviewer One and the researcher.	a

75. Does a legislative committee (or committees) hold public hearings on the macroeconomic and fiscal framework presented in the budget in which testimony from the executive branch and the public is heard?

- a. Yes, public hearings are held on the macroeconomic and fiscal framework in which testimony is heard from the executive branch and a wide range of constituencies.
- b. Yes, hearings are held in which testimony is heard from the executive branch and some constituencies.
- c. Yes, hearings are held in which testimony from the executive branch is heard, but no testimony from the public is heard.

Comment:

See question 75 above. Such hearings also pertain to specific programs and/ ministerial budgets.

Researcher Response to this Question was "b"

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a"; the parliament committees hold extensive hearings with involved interest groups and other.

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "c." There are generally held a large number of hearings, but the executive branch is normally not a part of these hearings. It does however happen that the executive branch participate in some of these hearings. Even though the executive branch rarely appear in public hearings, the executive branch answers numerous (appx. 1 000) questions from the Parliament committees during October and November in relation to the budget process.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire: "b." I chose my answer since the government points out that the executive normally is not a part of the hearings. This would have justified a "c." However the use of "normally" indicates that this may happen in important circumstances and would justify a "b."

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "b" as originally suggested by the researcher.

Comment:

The Storting has unlimited power to propose amendments to budgets and may approve them by a simple majority. In practice this power is curbed by party discipline and depends on the type of coalition government (minority or majority). The initial budget proposal of a minority government will frequently be changed to some extent due to the intervention of Parliament to ensure the passing of the budget proposal.

Comment:

The committees decide on detail presented in the approved budget document. The national assembly vote will take place for the larger "frames." After discussions in the committee for Financial Affairs, the national assembly votes on larger frames for the budget. They vote on 21 spending limits and 2 income limits. The limits are voted on in one collective vote. The different committees will then discuss the allocation within their limits, before they present a suggestion for the national assembly. The national assembly will then in plenary sessions vote over the detailed allocations within each limit. This means that most of the discussions are done in the committees, but all votes are made by the national assembly in plenary sessions.

Comment:

Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” The reports presented by Statistics Norway always compare with the expenditure for same period in the previous year.
The executive’s budget proposal for the coming fiscal year includes an in-year report for the ongoing budget year, which shows accounts by June 30. In second revision of the budget, presented in November/December you will find accounts by September 30. Both documents show accounts for both incomes and expenditures and compare actual year-to-date expenditures/incomes with the enacted budget. The reporting here is however on a very aggregated level.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should be changed as suggested by the Government to “a.” I chose my answer because I agree with the comment of the Government although the high level of aggregation may make the in-year reports of limited interest.

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “b.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "b." As indicated by the researcher, the last month reported was May 2009 when the webpage was visited in July 2009. This is less than two months.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher's answer.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire "c." I chose my answer because although Peer Reviewer One is right that the end of July is less than two months after the end of May, not all data are given by month and the quarterly data only run to the end of March and between the end of March to the end of July there are more than two months.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "c" as originally suggested by the researcher.

92. Does the executive release to the public a mid-year review of the budget that discusses the changes in economic outlook since the budget was enacted?

- a. Yes, the mid-year review includes an extensive discussion of the economy that includes a revised forecast for the full fiscal year and its effects on the budget.
- b. Yes, the mid-year review includes a discussion of the economy, but it lacks some details.
- c. Yes, the mid-year review includes a discussion of the economy, but it lacks important details.

- b. The procurement of goods and services frequently followed an open and competitive process in practice, but there were some reported instances of irregularities.

Comment:

There is constantly worry and rumors about deviations from open and competitive processes. 0.3 per cent of Norwegian municipal staff is reported to have received requests involving corruptive practices. An independent public body (KOFA) handles all instances where private actors complain that irregularities might have taken place.

b

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would include more references and examples. The general rules for this survey exclude local governments, so the answer should concentrate on central government. In addition to KOFA, a credible source is the Office of the Auditor General, which submits its annual report (Dok.nr. 1) on the central government administration to the Storting (parliament) in October BY+1. In the October 2008 report on 2007, violations of the procurement procedures are mentioned for five ministries and a number of sub-branches (p. 22). Most irregularities relate to documentation, but in some cases the rules on detached interest have not been followed. Example: Two procurements to the National Collection Agency of 10.6 mill. NOK and 2.3 mill. NOK were done without bidding (p. 69).

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher's answer.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire: "b." I chose my answer because although Peer Reviewer One has added very valuable information for the answer to this question, there is no information which is convincingly proving that the deviations from rules are significant and justify a "c." On the other hand it is clear that an "a," meaning "no credible reported instances of procurement failing to follow an open and competitive process" was not within reach.

IBP Comment: Taking into account the comments made by Peer Reviewer One, IBP editors chose answer "b" as originally suggested by the researcher.

Comment:

The policy is to concentrate proposals to the Mid-Term Review. However, proposals to the Parliament are sent during the whole year. Important supplemental proposals are related to the appropriations to increase public pensions and the wages of state employees (after negotiations in the Spring). A summary and final proposals are presented in late November or early December from the Ministry of Finance.

Comment:

§11 stipulates that Riksrevisjonen will report annually to the Storting (public) Reports will also contain information on measures taken to rectify the errors pointed out by earlier reports and indicate where ministries have not taken such action.

Researcher Response to this Question was "a"

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would include a reference to the report from the Office of the Auditor General, Dokument nr. 1 (2008-09), to the Storting, http://www.stortinget.no/Global/pdf/Dokumentserien/2008-2009/Dok_1_2008_2009.pdf and point out that the report includes responses from each ministry and comments from the Auditor General to these.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher's answer.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire: "a." I chose my answer because, although helpful, the comment by Peer Reviewer One does not argue that a different rating would be preferred.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "a" as originally suggested by the researcher, with reference to the comment made by Peer Reviewer One.

122. Does either the Supreme Audit Institution or the legislature release to the public a report that tracks actions taken by the executive to address audit recommendations?

- a. Yes, a comprehensive report is released regularly that tracks actions taken by the executive to address audit recommendations.
- b. Yes, a report is released, covering key audit recommendations, but some details are excluded.
- c. Yes, a report is released, but it lacks important details.
- d. No, a report is not produced or it is prepared for internal purposes only (please specify).
- e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:

The regulations stipulate that the annual report to the Storting (which is public) also will report on the measures taken to rectify the errors pointed out in earlier reports and indicate where ministries have not taken such action. It is difficult to say whether the report is "comprehensive" or not (an "a" would be possible here).

Researcher Response to this Question was "b"

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." This should include a reference to the report from the Office of the Auditor General, Dokument nr. 1 (2008-09), to the Storting, http://www.stortinget.no/Global/pdf/Dokumentserien/2008-2009/Dok_1_2008_2009.pdf and point out that the report includes responses from each ministry and comments to these from the Auditor General.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "a." According to §15 in the Regulations of the activities of the SAI they shall report to the parliament on the result of the finding and recommendations from the revision of last years budget and on all cases from previous years that have not been solved by the responsible ministry.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should be changed to "a." I chose my answer because of a) my original doubt whether not this question would justify an "a" and b) the arguments of the two reviewers.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "a" as suggested by Peer Reviewer One, the Government, and the researcher.
