National Budget Presentation (a summary of the Budget)
Publicly Available, but not on the Internet |
The Budget volumes were released in small numbers (to the press, accounting firms and other institutions) during the Press 'Lockup' on 18th November. They were available on the Internet a day or so later.
The Appropriation Bills and other draft Budget legislation were also released during the Budget "Lock-up" to the Press and other institutions at the time of the presentation of the Budget to the Legislature, but not (for 2009) released on the Internet, namely:
Appropriation (Recurrent Expenditure 2009) Bill 2008
Appropriation (Development Expenditure 2009) Bill 2008
Appropriation (National Parliament 2009) Bill 2008, Appropriation (Judicial Services 2009) Bill 2008
Customs (2009 Budget Amendment) Bill 2008 Income Tax (2009 Budget Amendment) Bill 2008 and Stamp Duties (2009 Budget Amendment) Bill 2008 |

Table 2. Key Budget Documents Used: Full Titles and Internet Links
| Budget Document Two in Support of the Executive’s Budget Proposal | Medium Term Development Strategy 2005 - 2010
(This is not updated, although to be reviewed in 2009; however, Volume 1 of the Executive Budget Proposal does include Chapter 6 on the strategy, relating allocations in the 2009 Budget to that strategy and some detail on monitoring implementation in relation to the strategy under the MTDS Performance Management Framework) |
| Budget Document Three in Support of the Executive’s Budget Proposal | Medium Term Debt Strategy 2009 - 2013
(This is updated annually to cover new financial and macro-economic forecasts, and for 2009 highlights extensive new issues. It is also included in Volume 1 of the Executive Budget Proposal) |
| Citizens Budget | Not Produced |
| Enacted Budget | Produced but Not Available.
Certified copies of the 2009 National Appropriation and related Budget legislation remain unavailable publicly (and to the bureaucracy) having not yet been released from Parliament. The Budget was passed two weeks after it was tabled, on 2nd December 2008. This interval is standard and there is routinely little debate on the Budget, with the Government, with apparent connivance from the Parliamentary Speaker, limiting opportunity for debate. The Budget is standard passed in totality, without any alteration. It appears not yet even to have been certified, however, by the Speaker's office. The Treasury Department aims to make it available on their internet site once available to them, as they did for the 2008 Budget (certified in March 2008). The Legislative Counsel's Office (which drafts Government initiated legislation) also has an arrangement whereby it makes all legislation available in electronic form, through the University of the South Pacific's PACLII website. (Reporting on the 2009 Budget received inadequate coverage in the press, as one of the two dailies, the Post Courier, wasn't reporting the Budget process having been expelled from the pre-Budget lockup by the Treasurer as a 'punishment' for undue prior speculation on the Budget!) |

So, with the Monthly outturn reports, March’s was out on 13 July, but the report for Jan-Feb was not out till 23rd Sept, May’s on 28th Sept, June’s on 14th Oct, and then July, August and Septembers’ were all released together on 15th December. The Treasury’s quarterly Economic Monitor was also not released in 2009 at all, with no edition since late 2008.
The Bank of Papua New Guinea’s Quarterly Economic Bulletin, which also provides aggregated Fiscal data, is consistently about 2-3 months before release (partly as they also widely distribute properly printed copies, as well as web based and the printing time holds them up, whereas Treasury in practice only provides the outturn reports on the web, and used to provide the Bulletin also in small numbers printed in-house)...so their QEB for March was out 22 June and June was out on 6th Oct |

| Audit Report | Produced but Not Available to the Public (made available too late)
2006 (2007 less than 50%, partially available on internet)
The Supreme Audit Institution (the Auditor General) had recently set up its website but has only placed the annual audit reports for the Statutory bodies and State-owned enterprises on the internet, to date, neither the Overall Audit, nor that of the National Government nor Provincial or Local Level Government yet. Hard copies of 2006 Audit Reports are available publicly from the Auditor General's Office and are in a few institutional libraries.

Section Two: The Executive’s Budget Proposal

Notes on abbreviations:
BY = budget year (year for which the budget proposals are being made)
BY+1 = one year beyond the budget year
BY-1 = one year before the budget year

Note 1: The Open Budget Survey research process was carried out over a 12-month period and the final version of the Open Budget Questionnaires reflect decisions made after multiple rounds of discussions between Survey researchers, peer reviewers, and the International Budget Partnership (IBP) (in several countries these decisions also considered comments received from governments). When peer reviewers or governments agreed with the answers provided by researchers, they often provided no comment. Thus for many questions, the section in the questionnaire that should contain peer reviewer comments is left blank. However, if the government did not provide any comments to a question (because it did not dispute the answer), the section within the questionnaire that is meant to reflect government comments specifies the answer that the government agreed with (by default).

Since the IBP continued its discussions with the researchers even after receiving peer reviewer and government comments, for some questions these discussions resulted in a mutual decision to change the answers, even if the peer reviewers and governments agreed with the original answer provided by the researcher. Such changes may have happened as a result of:

1. A more consistent application of the Survey methodology;
2. New information identified by the researcher or by IBP that had a bearing on the answer for a particular question; or
3. Decisions made to ensure cross-country comparability of answers.

For more information on these changes for any question please write to info@internationalbudget.org.
The Executive’s Budget Proposal

Estimates for the Budget Year and Beyond

1. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by administrative unit (that is, by ministry, department, or agency)?

   a. All expenditures are classified by administrative unit.
   b. Expenditures are classified by administrative unit, but some small units are not shown separately.
   c. Expenditures are classified by administrative unit, but a significant number of units are not shown separately.
   d. No expenditures classified by administrative unit are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
All including small units that are classified by the administrative units are shown in the Executive’s Budget (Recurrent Estimates Revenue & Expenditure, Volume 2 & 3) for 2009. The allocation to the Trust Funds is not fully detailed by administrative unit.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.
2. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by functional classification?

   a. All expenditures are classified by functional classification, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
   b. All expenditures are classified by functional classification, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.
   c. Some, but not all, expenditures are classified by function.
   d. No expenditures classified by function are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
The break up does not however fulfill international standards.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.
3. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by economic classification?

a. All expenditures are classified by economic classification, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
b. All expenditures are classified by economic classification, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.
c. Some, but not all, expenditures are classified by economic classification.
d. No expenditures classified by economic classification are presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
Estimates of Recurrent Expenditure in the 2009 Budget (Volume 2) are broken up by basic economic classification. It does meet the international classification for developing countries. The windfall component of past Supplementary Budget(s) allocated through Trust Funds are not classified and deemed outside the normal annual Budget process for the purpose of expenditure planning.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.
4. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for individual programs for the budget year?

   a. Program-level data are presented for all expenditures.
   b. Program-level data are presented for at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures.
   c. Program-level data are presented, but for less than two-thirds of expenditures.
   d. No program-level data are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:
2009 National Budget - Development Budget, Volume 2 part 2, and Volume 3 (Public Investment Plan)

Comment:
Program level data is presented in the development budget, but details under the Supplementary (or “windfall budgets, resulting from high commodity prices until third Quarter 2008) have not been provided. These activities have not been planned in detail and funds have been set aside under trust funds to provide a longer planning and implementation lead-in time.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: The Recurrent Budget also details expenditure for individual programs in the 2009 National Budget – Recurrent Budget, Volume 2 Part 1 (National Government Departments) and Volume 2, Part 2 (Statutory Authorities and Provincial Governments).
5. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, are estimates of the aggregate level of expenditure presented for a multi-year period (at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   a. Yes, multi-year estimates of aggregate expenditure are presented.
   b. No, multi-year estimates of aggregate expenditure are not presented.
   c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:

Comment:
The aggregate expenditure forecasts are provided by the Government for a 5 year period and guided by the current revenue, historic expenditure and priorities and targets under the Medium Term Development and Fiscal Strategies.

Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: Yes, agreed but it is hard to find it in the overall document. It does not appear until page 179.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire. I chose my answer because the aggregate expenditure forecasts (and breakup) are provided for the period in the tables, with some explanation also provided in the text. They could perhaps have provided more explanation, highlighting risks and perhaps sensitivity analysis.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “a” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.
6. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, is more detail than just the aggregate level presented for expenditure estimates that cover a multi-year period (for at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   a. Yes, multi-year expenditure estimates are presented for all individual programs, and for one or more expenditure classification (such as functional, economic, or administrative).
   b. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented for one or more expenditure classification (such as functional, economic, or administrative), but only for some individual programs.
   c. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented, but only for a portion of one or more of the expenditure classifications (such as some functions, or some administrative units) and/or for only some individual programs.
   d. No, multi-year estimates are presented for aggregate expenditure only, or they are not presented at all.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:

Comment:
Broad policy instruments indicating the priorities of government are prepared and shown, however, and aggregates forecast expenditure. More detailed expenditure estimates are only presented for development programs (in Volume 3), particularly with respect to donor funded or joint-funded programs.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.
7. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation identify the different sources of tax revenue (such as income tax or VAT) for the budget year?

   a. All sources of tax revenue are identified individually.
   b. Sources of tax revenue amounting to at least two-thirds of, but not all, tax revenues are identified individually.
   c. Sources of tax revenue amounting to less than two-thirds of all tax revenues are identified individually.
   d. No sources of tax revenue are identified individually.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:

Comment:
Sources of tax revenues are clearly identified and based on this the budget estimates are prepared for 2009 and aggregated forecasts for subsequent years.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.
8. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation identify the different sources of non-tax revenue (such as grants, property income, and sales of goods and services) for the budget year?

   a. All sources of non-tax revenue are identified individually.
   b. Sources of non-tax revenue amounting to at least two-thirds of, but not all, non-tax revenues are identified individually.
   c. Sources of non-tax revenues amounting to less than two-thirds of all non-tax revenue are identified individually.
   d. No sources of non-tax revenues are identified individually.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.
9. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, are estimates of the aggregate level of revenue presented for a multi-year period (at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   a. Yes, multi-year estimates of aggregate revenue are presented.
   b. No, multi-year estimates of aggregate revenue are not presented.
   c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: I agree; however, in terms of transparency, the information is available but difficult to find.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire. I chose my answer because the aggregate revenue forecasts (and breakup) are provided in the tables and the text, even if more explanation could perhaps be provided, assessment of risks and perhaps sensitivity analysis.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.
10. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, is more detail than just the aggregate level presented for revenue estimates that cover a multi-year period (for at least two years beyond the budget year)?

a. Yes, multi-year revenue estimates are presented for individual sources of revenue, and by revenue classification (such as tax and non-tax).

b. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented by revenue classification (such as tax and non-tax), but only for some individual sources of revenue.

c. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented, but only for some individual sources of revenue.

d. No, multi-year estimates are presented for aggregate revenue only, or they are not presented at all.

e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.
11. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present data on the total government debt outstanding for the budget year?

   a. Yes, the data reflect the outstanding debt both at the start of the budget year and at the end of the budget year (and thereby reflect the net borrowing requirement of the budget).
   b. Yes, the data reflect the outstanding debt at the end of the budget year.
   c. Yes, the data reflect the outstanding debt at the start of the budget year.
   d. No, data on the outstanding debt are not presented.

Comment:
Interest payments on debts are presented in relation to the Medium Term Fiscal and Debt Strategies and the planned reduction of debt and improvement in its composition (notably to longer term, lower interest and reduced foreign exchange risk). The details are available in the Budget document, although it would be preferable if one didn’t have to wade through details of interest rate, new debt, amortizations.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.
13. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present information related to the composition of government debt (such as interest rates on the debt, maturity profile of the debt, currency denomination of the debt, or whether it is domestic and external debt) for the budget year?

a. Yes, extensive information related to the composition of government debt is presented.
b. Yes, key additional information is presented, but some details are excluded.
c. Yes, some additional information is presented, but it lacks important details.
d. No, additional information related to the composition of government debt is not presented.

Comment:

Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b,” perhaps even as low as “c.” The FX denominated debt is absent, maturity date is absent and Chapter 10, as cited, is proposed policy not actual results.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire. I chose my answer because, although there is extensive policy discussion of the issues and approach to shifting debt composition, and there is some detail of the composition of domestically and externally financed public debt, there is limited breakup of the external debt in relation to maturity, interest rates etc.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “b” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s original answer “a,” which the IBP modified for consistency purposes.
14. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present the macroeconomic forecast upon which the budget projections are based?

   a. Yes, an extensive discussion of the macroeconomic forecast is presented, and key assumptions (such as inflation, real GDP growth, unemployment rate, and interest rates) are stated explicitly.
   b. Yes, the macroeconomic forecast is discussed and most of the key assumptions are stated explicitly, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, there is some discussion of the macroeconomic forecast (and/or the presentation of key assumptions), but it lacks important details.
   d. No, information related to the macroeconomic forecast is not presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

15. Does the executive's budget or any supporting budget documentation show the impact of different macroeconomic assumptions (i.e., sensitivity analysis) on the budget (including expenditures, revenues, and debt)?

   a. Yes, extensive information on the impact of macroeconomic assumptions on the budget is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
   b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the impact of the major macroeconomic assumptions, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.
   d. No, information on the impact of different macroeconomic assumptions on the budget is not presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
The budget figures are based upon currently conservative export commodity prices, in recognition of their past volatility. There is some, though limited, sensitivity or scenario analysis in the Budget documents notably on revenue with different commodity prices (Volume 1) and alternative approaches to debt management. A major effort has been focused upon what constitutes 'normal' revenue (utilizing a set formula), and differentiating from short term windfall revenue during boom years, to ensure consistent and sustainable core recurrent expenditure.

   b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the impact of key policy proposals on expenditures, but some details are excluded.

Comment:
There is some explanation in Volume 1 in relation to adjusted revenue and the cost of new expenditure commitments, like new sub-national financing arrangements, sector programmes (in Chapter 7) and some measures related to the revised Medium Term Fiscal and Debt strategies and progress with alignment of expenditure with the Medium Term Development Strategy priorities (although the latter five year plan is not annually revised, and subject to a forthcoming review).

Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate answer might be “c.” I think it is fair to say that the information is there but it is not presented in such a way as to meet the Q.16 criteria.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire. I chose my answer because some detail is provided on the expenditure implications of new policies, such as the equitable sub-national resource allocations, etc, in Chapter 5. It’s true that it could be more systematically provided, and perhaps in a summary table.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “b” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.

Estimates for Years Prior to the Budget Year

18. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the year preceding the budget year (BY-1) that are classified by administrative unit (that is, by ministry, department, or agency)?

   a. All expenditures are classified by administrative unit for BY-1.
   b. Expenditures are classified by administrative unit for BY-1, but some small units are not shown separately.
   c. Expenditures are classified by administrative unit for BY-1, but a significant number of units are not shown separately.
   d. No expenditures classified by administrative unit are presented for BY-1.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
Note that BY-1 comprises only appropriations (original or revised) not actuals, which apply only to BY-2. Information on aggregate actuals is publicly available to August from the fiscal outturn reports at the time of the Executive Budget (and for the whole year in March 2009 in the Final Budget Outcome). Expenditure under the Supplementary Budgets administered through Trust Funds are not yet fully classified or specified. At the time of the Budget only summaries of actuals to August BY-1 are available in summary, in the August Fiscal Outturn Report.

Researcher Response to this Question was “c”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: The actuals only apply to BY-2. One of the key problems with PFM in PNG is that accounts remain open and active too long after the end of the financial year, which is why only actuals of 2+ budget years can be presented. I would suggest “d.”

Researcher Response: I chose my answer “c” because a breakup is provided in relation to the estimates, although these are not updated in the Executive Budget and are not provided in detail in supporting documentation or other available government reports.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “a” to maintain consistency of assumptions in selecting answers across countries. See question 1. All expenditures are reported by administrative unit.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s original answer “c,” which the IBP modified for consistency purposes.
19. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the year preceding the budget year (BY-1) that are classified by functional classification?

a. All expenditures are classified by functional classification for BY-1, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
b. All expenditures are classified by functional classification for BY-1, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.
c. Some, but not all, expenditures are classified by function for BY-1.
d. No expenditures classified by function are presented for BY-1.

Comment:
The Budget documents only show the appropriations (original or revised) for BY-1, except for estimates of aggregates in Volume 1 (and in the in-year fiscal outturn reports); actuals only apply for BY-2. Concerns exist over the reporting of the programmes managed through Trust Accounts allocated in successive Supplementary Budgets; the Executive Budget Volume 1 provides details of Trust Account expenditure (for Sector Trust Accounts and the District Service Improvement Programme Trust Accounts) and explicitly refers to the Mid-Year Economic and Fiscal Outturn Report for more details of Supplementary Budget Trust Account expenditure.

The practice is similar to that in the previous period, but researcher reassessment has led to a change in response.

Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: The actuals only apply to BY-2. As previously mentioned, one of the key problems with PFM in PNG is that accounts remain open and active too long after the end of the financial year, which is why only actuals of 2+ budget years can be presented. I would suggest “c.” The reviewer does not really clarify the extent to which BY-1 contains a mixture of real and updated estimates for the FY. Issues of management controls over trust accounts also contribute to a suggested “c” rather than “b.”

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire. I chose my answer because the Executive Budget does provide extensive estimates, although these figures are largely not updated, and updated figures in other Budget documents are not broken down into detail at the project level. It’s touch and go whether this should be “b” or “c,” and as reviewer 2 suggests it would be useful to have the books closed earlier and more extensive updates of estimates provided (which are largely available), if not yet the actual.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “b.” As in question 18, this question does not ask about actuals.

Government Comment: BY-1 data comprises revised appropriations current as at publication of budget documents.
22. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, how many months of actual data are reflected in the expenditure estimates of the year prior to the budget year (BY-1)?

   a. All BY-1 estimates have been updated from the original enacted levels to reflect six or more months of actual expenditure.
   b. All BY-1 estimates have been updated from the original enacted levels, but reflect less than six months of actual expenditure.
   c. Some BY-1 estimates have been updated from the original enacted levels to reflect actual expenditure.
   d. The BY-1 estimates have not been updated from the original enacted levels, or no BY-1 estimates are presented.

The figures appear to be comprehensive, but actual transfers tend to be significantly different or long deferred. The NEFC fiscal report highlights provincial revenue (including grants from National Government) and the application of equalization payments under Intergovernmental Relations (Functions and Funding) Act 2008. The fiscal report provides "the “how” and “why” of the distribution and level of funding to Provincial Governments and Local-level Governments in the 2009 budget."

For analysis purposes, all budget documents are submitted in detail to the Department of Treasury and are stored on dummy votes in the computer system and can be looked up if needed (though not generally available publicly). Corporate bodies' funds are transferred as grants; therefore details are not shown in the Budget documents. It should be noted that much funding for public corporations is provided from the Governments holding entity (the Independent Public Business Corporation - IPBC), which is less than transparent with its receipts and outgoings, including the basis upon which the modest funding is released as dividends to Government).

2009 National Budget Economic & Development Policies Volume 1

Comment:
There is almost no information provided on non-financial assets, except for reference to the plan to develop a whole of government balance sheet committee to better manage the State's overall assets and liabilities, and reference to financing of the 19.5% stake in the proposed new LNG project and guidelines for government investment. Information on the State's equity in various utilities and other SOEs is not shown in the Budget and hard to obtain from other sources, notably the State's holding companies, IPBC and Petromin.

Comment:
It merely mentions that strategies are to include better coordination of debt/contingent liability and introduce a whole of Government risk-management framework and asset-liability management framework, which will need to address the likely increased debt or contingent liabilities associated with the planned LNG project. Otherwise reference is only in terms of debt and debt reduction, including reference to repayment of superannuation funds - noting specific contingency liabilities, including the significant loan guarantees built up in the past, particularly pre-2000, and purportedly recorded by the Treasury.

Comment:
Details of donor project funding is provided in Volume 3 (on the PIP), although some analysis of trends in domestic and overseas funding, notably for MTDS priorities, is provided in Volume 1. In the past much donor assistance was ex-Budget, nowadays the amounts are at least reflected in the Budget even if some of the funding by some donors is still managed outside the normal Budget process.

Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: Agreed, Volume 1 Economic and Development Policies, including Tables 32, 44, 51, 52 and 54 provide details of GoPNG and Donor funding. It does not go to the level of individual projects but perhaps that was contained in the 2009 Recurrent Estimates, Volume 2, where the link was broken.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire. I chose my answer because this information is provided in detail at the project level, as indicated, in the three volumes of the Executive Budget. Note: this comprises the Development (rather than the Recurrent) Budget, since PNG no-longer receives budget support, and currently only receives project or programme support (in different forms, including under some SWAps) from its development partners.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “a” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s original answer “a,” which the IBP modified for consistency purposes.

Comment:
Significant amounts of revenue are payable into earmarked Trust Accounts. These are mostly listed in Volume 2 part 2, with details of revenue received included. The list and revenue details are not considered comprehensive, including funds at the sub-national level or multiple agency trust funds. Some Statutory authorities, such as the National Fisheries Authority, have been allowed to collect fees, e.g. fisheries licenses, as though it were deemed institutional revenue, as if it were a commercial entity. The subsequent payment of 'dividends' by the NFA to the State, comprising fees minus NFA costs only, are then recorded as revenue.

   b. Three percent or less, but more than one percent, of expenditure is dedicated to secret items.
   c. Eight percent or less, but more than three percent, of expenditure is dedicated to secret items.

Comment:
Income and expenditure and associated measures are specified in relation to the Medium Term Development, Fiscal and Debt Management Strategies, past performance and current economic conditions, but not in detail by administrative or functional category. Chapter 7 discusses the rationale and progress with aligning expenditure with priorities. Volume 2 parts 1-3 fail, however, to provide programme specific justification on the basis of priorities. This provides details of the linkages with the Medium Term Development, Fiscal and Debt Management Strategies, and a current review of performance in relation to the MTDS, although the documents recognize the very limited progress in achieving progress with respect to MTDS (and MDG) objectives and basic social indicators. The MTFS and MTDebtS are being annually updated, whilst the 2005-2010 MTDS is currently being reviewed and revised for a further five year term. Some longer term planning is also being undertaken under a Long Term Development Strategy, as specified. There remains some disconnect between strategies, rhetoric and the provision of details (and needed base-line data) and effective implementation.

52. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation contain performance indicators for expenditure programs?

Comment:
So-called Performance Indicators are provided for about 2/3 of allocations in the recurrent and development budget, but they are mostly very vague and largely fail to comply with the definition of performance indicators. (Various respective sector agencies have their own performance indicators and targets and the project submissions include some more specific indicators, in some cases).

The practice is similar to that in the previous period, but researcher reassessment has led to a change in response.

Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “c.” I looked through the citations and I could not locate any performance indicators that I would classify directly as KPIs. Perhaps I have missed the references that the reviewer has used. However, I would suggest it would be closer to a “c.”

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire. I chose my answer because there are performance indicators provided from more than 2/3 of programs/projects in the development budget and in the recurrent budget. I agree it is touch and go whether it should be “b” or “c,” and consider that a much more rigorous application of standards for performance indicators should be applied by GoPNG to make the exercise of providing indicators useful.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “b” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s original answer “b,” which the IBP modified for consistency purposes.
53. Are the performance indicators sufficiently well designed, such that one can assess whether there has been progress toward meeting policy goals?

a. All performance indicators are well designed.
b. Most performance indicators are well designed.
c. Some performance indicators are well designed, but most are not.
d. No programs have performance indicators, or they are not well designed.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
The performance indicators for programmes provided in the Budget documents (Volume 2 part 3) are insufficient to make any real assessment of programme performance. The information that is available is general in nature and inadequate to measure performance. Volume 1 of the 2009 Budget does specify that 3 new initiatives have been introduced since 2007 to improve monitoring of development progress: - (i) the MTDS Performance Management Framework for application in 2007 to assess progress in relation to the MTDS priorities; (ii) PNG info under preparation to assess performance in relation to the MDGs (for application in 2008); and (iii) the Results Based Monitoring System to monitoring projects/programs under the PIP for introduction in 2009. No results are, however, provided in relation to programmes in the 2009 Budget with respect to ongoing programs.

Comment:
Some specific sectoral performance indicators are available in the budget documents, as developed in sector strategies and corporate plans. Sectoral or respective agencies design performance indicators according to the expenditure priorities of government (such as the Medium Term Development Strategy, or individual sector strategies). Some evidence of Performance reported in the 2009 second quarterly review templates do measure against the indicators reflected in the budget documents.

b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the impact of key policies intended to alleviate poverty, but some details are excluded.

Comment:
At least 2 of the MTDS priorities are focused on aspects of poverty alleviation and some effort has been made to aligning the budget to these priorities, notably improved funding (ostensibly) for district services and for functional grants for basic services for poorer provinces (equalization), based upon the recommendations from the National Economic and Fiscal Commission (NEFC -www.nefc.com.pg ) - an independent Constitutional Office, established to facilitate greater equity in provincial allocations. The District Support Improvement Programme also enables extra funding to reach all Districts in accordance with their priorities, although the programme is fraught with potential financial abuse. Little or no consideration is given in the Budget, however, to alleviating poverty in disadvantaged or vulnerable households, other than addressing issues like HIV/AIDS.

Additional Key Information for Budget Analysis & Monitoring

Please note that the questions in this section ask about information that is generally available to the public. The information need not be included in the executive’s budget proposal or supporting documents, but may be found in other documents issued by the executive.

56. Does the executive make available to the public a description of the tax rate or fee schedule for all revenue sources, including commercial projects involving the private sector?

   a. Yes, extensive information on tax rates, fees, royalties and other revenues sources is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
   b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the rates and fees for major revenue sources, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.

Comment:
All information to do with standard prevailing tax rates and changes, or fee schedules etc is made available to the public, though not as readily accessible to ordinary citizens (usually without access to computers) as it should be. Details of rates applicable to respective projects (notably some mining and other investments) which have secured exclusive arrangements are not readily available, or only available in the National Gazette, which is circulated only in printed form and only to subscribers. Volume 1 and 3 of the Budget, plus the Budget Speech, provide details of ongoing tax changes contained within the Budget. (Private accounting firms and the Chambers of Commerce often make the information more widely available, both FOC and at a cost for more detailed material).

Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b.” The fact that specific mining royalty agreements are only available by subscription and that those in the community without access to the internet (which would be quite high in PNG) cannot readily obtain data revenue rates (taxes, royalties, charging) means that a “b” answer is more appropriate.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire. I chose my answer because, although the information is readily available, in recent years some new natural projects have been obtaining exclusive taxation/investment conditions, somewhat a variance with the standard conditions and, although details of these rates are publicly available they have become harder to obtain, particularly since arrangements are handled in some cases through a State-owned enterprise, rather than directly through the conventional mandated State institutions.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “b” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s original answer “a,” which the IBP modified for consistency purposes.

They are not presented in the annual budget or associated documents, except for some details on the composition of specific program funding and overall debt and debt servicing aspects from donor-funded projects. Some details are provided in press statements following decisions by the Executive, but these are not comprehensive. Comment:
The Budget speech provides a clear summary of planned Budget measures. The press and accounting firms (and policy think tanks - like the INA) widely summarize and critique the Budget, utilizing respective Budget volumes (obtained during the Budget 'lock-up' and from the website), disseminating it to the wider community. During the year the Treasury (and other Departments) also uses the CIMC Forums and other venues to explain the composition and progress with budget implementation. Some components are reported upon more rigorously than others.

   There is no single simplified Citizens Budget, designed to extend understanding and ownership of the budget process. The PowerPoint presentation to the press at the Budget Lockup, and subsequent material presented to the CIMC regional and National forums (public consultations, which include key financial Departments - including Treasury, Finance, Planning and Rural Development) are the nearest there is to a “Citizens Budget,” although it is a summary rather than a clear non-technical presentation.

The Fiscal Responsibility Act [and the Central Banking Act] imposes obligations on the Treasury [and the Central Bank] to provide public information in an accessible form on planned Budget Strategies and their outcome and mid-term reviews, [as well as Monetary policy papers from the Bank of PNG]. PNG does not have an access to information law. It does have media freedom legislation (as required under the Constitution), but the material about budgets, particularly affecting provincial and local level government, are generally unavailable at the local level.

Researcher Response to this Question was b”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “d.” I have looked at the Fiscal Responsibility Act and it does provide a rationale for the budget strategy paper, “to assist public understanding of the fiscal situation.” However, this is different to allow citizens in law to access government information. There is no FOI legislation in situ.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire. I chose my answer because, whilst there is not yet FoI legislation, the Fiscal Responsibility Act imposes requirements upon the Government to release Budget information in a timely manner; likewise the Auditor General is required to provide audits to be tabled in Parliament, whereupon it becomes a public document and the Constitution mandates various other freedoms, including with respect to the media. In the absence of the FoI (which might not enhance the provision of Budget detail, but would enhance the capacity to demand it) and the difficulty in practice in obtaining information, I have downgraded the answer from the original “b,” to a “c.” In practice the public (and officials) have great difficulty in obtaining Budget and expenditure details, particularly on the development and sub-national budgets and expenditure.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “c” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s original answer “b,” which the IBP modified for consistency purposes.

Comment: Members of the legislature, namely the Plans and Estimates Committee, get one briefing on aspects of the Budget a day in advance of its tabling. Otherwise they are meant to be tabling of mid-year progress reports (e.g. the mid-year outcome), but this barely happens. The effort needs to be made both by the Executive and Legislature and the effort seems to be lacking on both parts. Some Members attend public events, such as the CIMC National Development Forum to gain prior briefings on the broad Budget parameters. Comment:
The Plans and Estimates Committee has a single briefing a day before the Executive tables the Budget. There is no public hearing. The Budget is merely presented by the Minister and the Opposition is given two weeks to present official Budget statements on the proposed budget before, some possible debate and it is voted upon by the legislature and enacted. Once tabled (and during the press 'lock-up' immediately prior to the presentation) the public has an opportunity to comment (e.g. in the press and during radio talk back shows and some Budget breakfasts etc.) but no formal hearings are provided with the legislature. Comments from the press and public (including local research institutes and accounting firms) are provided after the tabling of the Executive's Budget Proposal and maybe inform Ministerial or opposition addresses and wider public opinion. The Budget is normally approved in its totality, without any amendment (and often with little chance of debate).

Legislative committees are not given the opportunity to hold hearings with the executive or comment on the proposed budget, in public or closed sessions, except during the brief Plans and Estimate Committee hearing immediately prior to the Tabling of the Budget. The Public Accounts Committee has the opportunity to oversee application of the Budget during the year, and hold public hearings with relevant branches of the executive, but as their work is based upon the output of the Auditor General it is largely addressing expenditure in earlier years.

Comment:
Parliament is empowered to amend the annual Budget appropriation and taxation laws, but there are a few largely technical restrictions, for example whereby it is only permitted for a Minister to submit/amend legislation with the impact of increasing taxes. In practice the Budget is presented in its totality and accepted (or in theory rejected) on this basis. Where the Government has the numbers, the Budget is invariably pushed through without significant debate and without amendment. Prior modifications in theory may occur in the Plans and Estimates Committees prior to its presentation to the full Legislature (but in practice this is unrealistic as the Committee only meets a day or even a few hours before the Budget’s presentation to the full Legislature). If the Opposition had the numbers to push through amendments on the floor, they would almost invariably use them to reject the Budget in its entirety and then seek to topple the Government in turn.

Refer to Fiscal Responsibility Act 2006
Monthly Fiscal Outturn Reports listing of details expenditure by economic functional and administrative classifications as per the budget appropriation.

Comment:
In addition to the Budget itself, there is a legal reporting requirement under the Fiscal Responsibility Act 2006 to provide an end of year Fiscal Outturn Reports in the first quarter after the fiscal year ends and a mid-year report, six months after the commencement of the next fiscal year. These provide expenditure by administrative unit. The Treasury also provides a 'monthly' Fiscal Outturn Report, although in practice only 7-9 reports are produced annually; these provide aggregated expenditure details, broken up into recurrent and development expenditure, subdivided by National and Provincial Departments, Interest Payments and Fees and respective major components.

In practice during 2008, aggregated reports were provided at least monthly, although for 2009 it slipped below monthly, and some can be a bit sporadic in timing. There is also a Treasury Economic Monitor which is produced quarterly and includes a quarterly fiscal report, although there hasn't been an issue since the third quarter of 2008.

Comment:
The Fiscal Outturn Reports and Treasury Economic Monitor make comparisons for all (aggregated) expenditure with the original estimates of the budget year for that period. It should be noted that in many cases the information really only shows funds being released rather than actual expenditure by respective line agencies, etc. Significant changes may have been made on the basis of executive discretion, notably as a result of quarterly reviews. The Treasury Economic Monitor has been sporadic in publication, whilst the Central Bank quarterly reports have largely been more timely (and often used as de-facto macro-economic data, in view of weakness, particularly in the production of national accounts by the National Statistical Office).

Comment:
Yes in the monthly-bi-monthly Fiscal Outturn Reports and in Central Bank QEB reports. There maybe a significant lag (e.g. 3 months before the quarterly reports are issued by the Central Bank) which manages Government securities for the Treasury. The lag of data provision from the Treasury is sometimes greater, with reporting sporadic, though perhaps improving. With the introduction of the Fiscal Responsibility Act, some 6 monthly reporting from Treasury has received more attention.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

IBP Comment: Further communication with the researcher revealed that none of the in-year reports were released within the acceptable timeframe (see extended comment in Section 1, Table 2) so all questions in this section are rated "d."

Government Comment: This should be a "c" as borrowings are captured in the Debt Strategy and appear in Volume 1 of Budget Books annually.
90. Do in-year reports released to the public on actual borrowing present information related to the composition of government debt (such as interest rates on the debt, maturity profile of the debt, and currency denomination of the debt) for the budget year?

   a. Yes, extensive information related to the composition of government debt is presented.
   b. Yes, key additional information is presented, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, some additional information is presented, but it lacks important details.
   d. No, additional information related to the composition of government debt is not presented, or such in-year reports on borrowing are not released.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
The Treasury’s in year reports do not present important details like interest rates on the debt, maturity profile and so on. [The Central Bank’s QEB provides details of quarterly changes in debt and sources, but not specific interest rates applied, though they can to some extent be reduced, e.g. from their reported interest relates on Government bonds].

91. For in-year reports on actual expenditure released to the public by the executive, how much time typically elapses between the end of the reporting period and when the report is released (e.g., are quarterly reports released less than 4 weeks after the end of the quarter)?

a. Reports are released 1 month or less after the end of the period.
b. Reports are released 2 months or less (but more than 1 month) after the end of the period.
c. Reports are released more than 2 months after the end of the period.
d. In-year reports are not released.

92. Does the executive release to the public a mid-year review of the budget that discusses the changes in economic outlook since the budget was enacted?

Comment:
During recent volatile economic years, with global swings in commodity prices and the global economic crisis, PNG has heavily revised its annual budget. Until 2008 this also entailed multiple supplementary budgets, sometimes mid-year, in response to substantially altered economic conditions (notably increased commodity prices) entailing substantial increases in revenue and necessitating legislative approval for additional expenditure.

96. Does the executive seek input from the legislature when the executive shifts funds between administrative units (except when the amounts are below a certain minimal level specified in law or regulation)?

- a. Yes, the executive seeks approval from the legislature before shifting funds between administrative units.
- b. Yes, the executive gives prior notification to the legislature before shifting funds, giving the legislature an opportunity to block or modify the proposed adjustment.
- c. Yes, the executive seeks legislative approval, but only after the shift of funds has been implemented.
- d. No, the executive shifts funds between administrative units without seeking input from the legislature, or the amount allowed under the law or by regulation is significantly large enough to undermine public scrutiny and accountability (please describe arrangements below).

Comment:
The executive does not seek input from the legislature to shift funds between administrative units. New allocations may be made may be made for defined special purposes (emergencies etc) using the mandated “Secretary's Advance,” although in many cases these allocations do not comply with such criteria. Secretary's advance applies to amounts up to amounts up to 230 million kina, with Executive approval from Cabinet for larger shifts (notably following quarterly budget reviews) so long as the amounts remain within the total approved appropriation. The executive must secure approval from legislature (through Supplementary Budgets - as has occurred repeatedly during 2005 - 2008) where the amount exceeds the approved budget ceiling and extra allocations are needed, or made possible by surplus and major increases in revenue. Under the Fiscal Responsibility Act net new borrowing is restricted.

Researcher Response to this Question was “d”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: Agreed-Note previous comments on the use of trust accounts to circumvent expenditure rules and instances of unauthorized diversion of funds undermining budget integrity.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire I chose my answer because of the grounds specified in the comment and in view of the extensive use of Trust Funds over recent years, further circumventing sound process in practice (if not also in principle).

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “d” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

Government Comment: The Appropriation (Recurrent Expenditure 2009) Act 2008, and the Appropriation (Development Expenditure 2009) Act 2008 provide for the Secretary for Treasury to approve movements between activities of up to ten per cent of each of the Recurrent (K575,507,430) and Development (K138,900,000) budgets, with some movements excluded from this total, e.g., movements from the “Treasury miscellaneous” vote to an implementing agency or trust. The Secretary’s Advance has K20 million appropriated for unbudgeted expenditure. There is no defined purpose or criteria that these payments or movements must meet.
97. During the past year, have there been credible reported instances in which the procurement of goods and services has not followed an open and competitive process in practice?

   a. There were no credible reported instances of procurement failing to follow an open and competitive process in practice during the past year.
   b. The procurement of goods and services frequently followed an open and competitive process in practice, but there were some reported instances of irregularities.
   c. The procurement of goods and service followed an open and competitive process in many instances, but there were significant reported examples of irregularities.
   d. No, the procurement process was not open and competitive in practice.

The Auditor-General's 2008 report (for Statutory authorities and SOEs) specifies “Property being acquired or disposed of without proper procedures being followed,” whilst the major programmes, notably the District Service Improvement Programme (DSIP) and National Agricultural Development Programme (NADP) have been widely reported in forums and the press as often failing to follow due process for procurement (e.g. see references from the CIMC National and Regional Development Forum reports)

   Comment:
   Although, procurement of goods and services is required to follow open and competitive processes, extensive irregularities exist at the National and particularly the certain project, notably district and local levels, where the rules fail extensively to be followed, including owing to lack of knowledge of public tendering processes, lack of lack of capacity and in some cases inclination, (as highlighted in the PAC report).

Comment:
Supplementary Budgets are proposed by the Executive after the Executive identifies substantial variations (shortfalls requiring extra revenue or, as in 2005, 2007 and 2008, surpluses requiring additional appropriation) in revenue (or expenditure) from the budget amount, and revised budget ceilings or other variations are required.

99. In most years, how large are supplemental budget requests relative to the size of the original budget?

b. Supplemental budgets are generally equal to more than 2 percent, but less than 5 percent, of the original budget.
c. Supplemental budgets are generally equal to more than 5 percent, but less than 10 percent, of the original budget.

Comment:
Supplementary Budgets (to cater for higher than forecast revenue) occurred between 2005 and 2008, with exceptionally high commodity export prices and high minerals revenue. From 2005 to 2008 the supplementary budgets have appropriated the equivalent of about 16% of total Expenditure and net lending, and markedly higher in 2007 and 2008. Hitherto Supplementary budgets have been associated with balance of payments and fiscal crises and the need for additional revenue raising measures, and/or with changes of Government and associated policies. Using a formula, the exceptional or “windfall” revenue in the Supplementary Budgets (and in the annual Budgets, notably in the boom years of 2007/8) has been transferred into sectoral and other Trust Accounts, able to be expended over a longer period than the normal annual Budget period.

The release and its timing are determined in law under the Fiscal Responsibilities Act 2006.

Once again, despite slippage in some areas, progress has been made by the staff of the Treasury and a few other Public bodies, to provide timely and reliable information to the Executive, Legislature and the wider public. The problems largely lie with the imprecise planning and documentation, monitoring and efficiency of public expenditure, including and especially of funds held outside normal processes, notably in Trust Accounts.

The Final Budget Outcome report is required to be completed by the end of the first quarter of the following year, as a prompt working instrument. It is compiled before the audit process takes place and as such any adjustments made are not effected in this report. There has been a major ongoing lag in the production of annual audit reports, although the Auditor-General's office has been shortening the lag and reducing the number of tardy Departments/Agencies. The last full annual government Audit available is for 2006, although some of the Statutory Authorities are complete to 2007.

   b. The explanation focuses on departmental totals (or functional totals) or some lower level of detail (but not the program level in all cases).
   c. The explanation focuses on a higher level of aggregation than departmental totals (or functional totals).

It is largely provided at the Departmental, provincial or institutional level, (and could be considered for ‘b’) although no explanation for variance is provide, merely the raw numbers. Some of the variations specified are at the programme and functional levels, including on Trust Funds, although there is limited explanation. Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b.” The key word here is ‘extensive’ which I do not believe is the case in the 2008 FBO report. Whilst the FBO is a good budget report, the absence of ‘extensive’ details for variances leads me to consider that a ‘b’ is a more appropriate response.

Researcher Response: I suggest the answer should remain as I indicated in the questionnaire. I chose my answer because I consider it fairly extensive in terms of both quantitative and narrative description and explanation of the variation. I agree with Peer Reviewer Two that there is room for improvement, including even greater detail, but as an exercise which is provided in a timely manner at the end of the 1st Quarter of BY+1 it seems reasonable thorough, and I fear more detail might entail payoff in timeliness.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “a” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

Comment:
The SAI’s Annual audit report is completed about 18 months after year end, but the SAI is unable to provide audits for many Departments and Agencies long beyond this, largely because the financial statements have not been submitted. The public release is further held up by delays in tabling the reports in the legislature. The latest audit of Departments for 2006 & 2007 shows: Audit mandate 2007 2006 2005 2004 National Departments 33 18 27 33 33 Other audits 25 3 3 3 3 Public Accounts 1 1 1 1 1 The SAI specifies "the reduction in the number of audits carried out in 2006 and 2007 compared with 2004 and 2005 was a strategy designed to address the issue of an inadequate number of audit staff, and was based on a risk management approach to focus on higher risk departments and agencies, and for the audit of controls and governance to become an essential part of all audits.” The latest report for public bodies, statutory authorities on their website is 2007, but for most of Government, including the Departments, the 2007 report remained unavailable by 15 September 2009. Status of Audits of public bodies for 2007 (as provided by the SAI) is:

Comment:
Most remain unaudited with delays in tabling the reports in Parliament. Apart from inadequate funding of the SAI, the major failure lies with the respective public bodies which have failed to comply with the legal required to submit accounts for audit in a timely manner. As stated by the Auditor-General “out of 99 public entities (excluding those audits that are done by private auditors) only 32 entities submitted their financial statements for the fiscal year 2007 for my audit and inspection up to the time of preparing this Report while 67 entities have failed to comply with this provision”

113. Does the annual audit report(s) that is released to the public include an executive summary?

   a. The annual audit report(s) includes one or more executive summaries summarizing the report’s content.
   b. No, the audit report(s) does not include an executive summary, or such reports are not released to the public, or was released more than 24 months after the end of the fiscal year.
   c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
The report does provide a summary of findings; however most of the SAI's report is not released within the 24months period, and the components which are released (namely on Statutory Authorities and State-owned enterprises) only provides audits for about 1/3 of the respective organisations, largely because the rest have failed to submit financial statements.

114. Must a branch of government other than the executive (such as the legislature or the judiciary) give final consent before the head of the Supreme Audit Institution (SAI) can be removed from office?

a. Yes, the head of the SAI may only be removed by the legislature or judiciary, or the legislature or judiciary must give final consent before they are removed.

b. No, the executive may remove the head of the SAI without the final consent of the judiciary or legislature.

c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
Since the Auditor General (the SAI) is an independent Constitutional Office holder, he/she cannot be dismissed from office during his/her term of office, except for when in compliance with the Organic law, which falls outside the purview of the executive Government, even if the Executive may be responsible for instigating proceedings.

115. Does the Supreme Audit Institution release to the public audits of extra-budgetary funds?

a. Yes, the SAI releases to the public audits of all extra-budgetary funds.
b. Yes, the SAI releases audits representing at least two-thirds of, but not all, extra-budgetary funds.
c. Yes, the SAI releases audits representing less than two-thirds of all extra-budgetary funds.
d. No, the SAI does not release to the public audits of extra-budgetary funds, or it does not audit such funds, or such a report was released more than 24 months after the end of the fiscal year.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
By law, the Auditor General's office is required to audit all expenditures of government (including sub-national government) as per the annual budget of the fiscal year and as such any extra-budgetary funds are audited and released to the public as part of the report. However, the delay in completing the full audit of accounts (including extra-budgetary funds) demonstrates the distinction between legislative powers and duties and the practical reality, with the SAI constrained by inadequate resources and respective government agencies slow and uncooperative in the release of accounts, as highlighted in successive reports from the SAI and the Parliamentary Public Accounts Committee (PACs). The major growth of extra-budgetary funds (notably in Trust Accounts set up under successive Supplementary Budgets from 2006-2008) have not yet been audited in practice and, particularly the District Funds, will prove challenging, in terms of resources available to the SAI and likely limited records.

A few publicly-owned commercial or semi-commercial institutions and authorities (including Petromin Ltd, the National Development Bank and the Mineral Resources Authority) have been deemed in law not to be public bodies and themselves specify that they fall outside the oversight of the Public Finances (Management) Act 1995, and hence outside the purview of the SAI; however, this is legally contestable as the Constitutional powers granted the SAI are broad-ranging.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: This should be a “c” as funds are still picked up as they are reflected in Public Accounts. If this isn't the case, it is still raised as anything within the domain of public accounts is raised with the Department of Finance.
116. Beyond the established year-end attestation audits, does the Supreme Audit Institution (SAI) have the discretion in law to undertake those audits it may wish to?

a. The SAI has full discretion to decide which audits it wishes to undertake.
b. The SAI has significant discretion, but faces some limitations.
c. The SAI has some discretion, but faces considerable limitations.
d. The SAI has no discretion to decide which audits it wishes to undertake.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:
Though these companies are registered under the Companies Act, the SAI's responsibility to audit them is by virtue of Sections 48 and 63 of the Public Finances (Management) Act and Section 3 of the Audit Act.

Comment:
The Auditor General is an independent institution and is Constitutionally and legally empowered, and has the legal discretion to undertake special audits if it so wishes, or perceives a potential issue needing to be examined.
Apart from the normal annual auditing powers (over Departments, Statutory Authorities and State-owned companies using public moneys), the Auditor-General is vested with various other powers including full and free access to all accounts and records that relate directly or indirectly to:
- The collection, receipt, expenditure or issue of public moneys;
- The receipt, custody, disposal, issue or use of stores or other property of the government
The Public Finances (Management) Act of 1995 also gives the Auditor General powers to examine the above accounts with the object of ensuring that:
- All accounts have been properly maintained
- All applicable laws have been observed as far as collections and custody of public moneys including assessment and collection of revenues; and
- Expenditure of public money has been authorized as provided by law and has been spent to accomplish the purpose for which they were appropriated.
However, some recent amendments (which may not comply with the Constitution) have restrained the SAI from examining the books of a few entities with respect to compliance with the Public Finances (Management) Act and the Salaries and Conditions, as the SAI highlights "the impact some legislative changes have had on my Constitutional responsibility. These legislative changes, although well intentioned, have resulted in the exclusion of my Office as the external State Auditor, from the audit of these organizations. Consequently, my Office is not in a position to present a report on these organizations to the Parliament, hence, the exclusion of these entities from my audit portfolios.”

117. Who determines the budget of the Supreme Audit Institution?

- a. The budget of the SAI is determined by the legislature or judiciary (or some independent body), and the funding level is broadly consistent with the resources the SAI needs to fulfill its mandate.
- b. The budget of the SAI is determined by the executive, and the funding level is broadly consistent with the resources the SAI needs to fulfill its mandate.
- c. The budget of the SAI is determined by the legislature or judiciary (or some independent body), but the funding level is not consistent with the resources the SAI needs to fulfill its mandate.
- d. The budget of the SAI is determined by the executive, but the funding level is not consistent with the resources the SAI needs to fulfill its mandate.
- e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:

Comment:

The budget is determined by the legislature but as part of the total budget presented by the Executive; so in effect it is determined by the executive. The SAI is under - resourced (underfunded and staffed) to be able to fulfill its mandate effectively, including expanded tasks of overseeing expenditure at the Provincial, District and Local level. It finds it hard to recruit and retain enough competent auditors, attracted to private sector positions. Therefore, it has not effectively executed its annual audits for the many years, whilst funding to - and by - implementing agencies has also been inadequate for the preparation of accounts for audit.

118. Does the Supreme Audit Institution employ designated staff for undertaking audits of the central government agencies pertaining to the security sector (military, police, intelligence services)?

- a. The SAI employs designated staff, and the staffing levels are broadly consistent with the resources the SAI needs to fulfill its mandate.
- b. The SAI employs designated staff, but the staffing levels are a cause of some constraints to the SAI in fulfilling its mandate.
- c. The SAI employs designated staff, but the staffing levels pose a significant constraint on the SAI in fulfilling its mandate.
- d. The SAI does not employ designated staff for auditing of the security sector, or does not undertake audits of the security sector.
- e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

The Auditor Generals office has approximately 50 staff on strength, which is inadequate to carry out required audits extending to the provinces and local levels. No specific staff are employed to audit central agencies or security institutions, which may be handled by any of the AG's staff. There is high staff turnover leaving for high salary remunerations (and sometimes accommodation provided) offered by the private sector. The AG's office also commissions private auditing firms to carry out some of its task.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Auditor General has 100 staff on strength, not 50.
119. Does the Supreme Audit Institution maintain formal mechanisms of communication with the public to receive complaints and suggestions to assist it in determining its audit program (that is, to identify the agencies, programs, or projects it will audit)?

- a. Yes, the SAI maintains mechanisms of communication with the public, and received more than 100 communications from the public during the past year.
- b. Yes, the SAI maintains mechanisms of communication with the public, and received less than 100 but more than ten communications from the public during the past year.
- c. Yes, the SAI maintains mechanisms of communication with the public but it receives very little (less than ten) or no information from the public on potential subjects for audit.
- d. No, the SAI does not maintain any formal mechanisms of communication with the public.
- e. Not applicable.

The Auditor-General has made an effort to better inform the public on its function. The auditing function is not well understood by the PNG public, although the Consultative Implementation Monitoring Council (CIMC) Forum process (2006-2008) has helped increase the level of awareness, but requires a much wider exercise in awareness building on budgets and budget responsibility. It has established its own website, which provides some background information, including access to a portion of the 2007 audits (notably of some statutory bodies)

120. Does a committee of the legislature view and scrutinize the audit reports?

   a. Yes, all audit reports are scrutinized.

   d. No, audit reports are not scrutinized.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
The SAI is an independent Constitutional Office, but it is obliged to submit its report for tabling in the Legislature, all audit reports are tabled in Parliament for discussion and endorsement before they can be accessed by the public. The Parliamentary Public Accounts Committee (Legislative Committee), which was resurrected in 2002 scrutinizes and utilizes the reports for following up public hearings. The PAC is also severely under-resourced and has been less effective latterly than when first resurrected.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: This should be an "a," as once it is scrutinized it goes to the Public Accounts Committee which decides which department is to be called for public hearings. The Auditor General has no control of the Public Accounts Committee.
121. Does the executive make available to the public a report on what steps it has taken to address audit recommendations or findings that indicate a need for remedial action?

   a. Yes, the executive reports publicly on what steps it has taken to address audit findings.
   b. Yes, the executive reports publicly on most audit findings.
   c. Yes, the executive reports publicly on some audit findings.
   d. No, the executive does not report on steps it has taken to address audit findings.

Comment:
Implementation of the recommendations is a concern; however, the Public Accounts Committee hearings, public forums (as with the CIMC) and media publicity and some increased funding have raised the profile and added pressure on the Executive. The Public Accounts Committee does publicize its analysis and findings on the audit reports actively. It has also cooperated with a few other agencies in a few cases which have led to extensive prosecutions.

122. Does either the Supreme Audit Institution or the legislature release to the public a report that tracks actions taken by the executive to address audit recommendations?

   a. Yes, a comprehensive report is released regularly that tracks actions taken by the executive to address audit recommendations.
   b. Yes, a report is released, covering key audit recommendations, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, a report is released, but it lacks important details.

Comment:

Tabling of the audit reports are publicized through the media, and the PAC (legislature) provides a report specifying problems and any action taken, if any, but there is generally little subsequent follow up. The SAI has powers to prosecute directly if there is no action, but this power seems not to have been used. Some cases may also be taken up by another Constitutional Office Holder, such as the Ombudsman Commission, under its administration of the Leadership Code.

123. Are audit reports of the annual accounts of the security sector (military, police, intelligence services) and other secret programs provided to the legislature (or relevant committee)?

   b. Yes, legislators are provided audit reports on secret items, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, legislators are provided audit reports on secret items, but they lack important details.

Comment:
Audits are carried out on all expenditures of government including the security sector (over the years, they have often been the least accountable) and are made available to the public as part of the annual audit report. They have now a website where details can be accessed once reports have been tabled in Parliament.

Once again, despite slippage in some areas, progress has been made by the staff of Treasury and a few other Public bodies, to provide timely and reliable information to the Executive, Legislature and wider public. The problems largely lie with the imprecise planning and documentation, monitoring and efficiency of public expenditure, including and especially of funds held outside normal processes, notably in Trust Accounts.
