Citation and/or comment:

The researcher’s response to this question was “d.”

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “c.” The Medium Term Fiscal Policy contains analysis of dependence of the Kazakh economy on oil and gas revenues, and outcomes of this analysis are used as a base for estimating the level of revenues and the level of transfers to the National Fund. However, there is no analysis of different scenarios and their impact on other budget categories such as expenditure and debt.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “d”. In the budget, there is a short graphic representation of the share of the oil export in total export. However, this fact can hardly be considered as the only macroeconomic assumption.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “d” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries. The question specifically seeks information on any discussion in the budget on the impact of different macroeconomic assumptions and this information is not available in the budget documents in Kazakhstan.

   b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the impact of key policy proposals on expenditures, but some details are excluded.

23. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, are estimates of the aggregate level of expenditure presented for years that precede the budget year by more than one year (that is, BY-2 and prior years)?

   a. Yes, such prior-year estimates of aggregate expenditure are presented.
   b. No, such prior-year estimates of aggregate expenditure are not presented.
   c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation and/or comment: In the Medium Term Fiscal Policy Report for 2006-2008, (refer to page 12) prior-year data for aggregate expenditure is presented by functional classification and is presented as a share of GDP (along with the GDP volume) for 2003-2005. Further, actual outcomes for BY 2003 and 2004 and the estimates for BY 2005 are presented in this Report.

24. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, is more detail than just the aggregate level presented for expenditure estimates that cover years preceding the budget year by more than one year (that is, BY-2 and prior years)?

   a. Yes, such prior-year expenditure estimates are presented for all individual programs, and for one or more expenditure classification (such as functional, economic, or administrative).
   b. Yes, such prior-year estimates are presented for one or more expenditure classification (such as functional, economic, or administrative), but only for some individual programs.
   c. Yes, such prior-year estimates are presented, but only for a portion of one or more of the expenditure classifications (such as some functions, or some administrative units) and/or for only some individual programs.
   d. No, such prior-year estimates are presented for aggregate expenditure only, or they are not presented at all.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation and/or comment:

   The researcher’s response to this question was “b”: Prior-year estimates are presented for functional expenditures only, and program level data are partly presented. Refer to the Medium-Term Fiscal Policy Report (pages 20 - 56). During parliamentary discussion of the executive’s budget detailed program level data are presented for members of parliament (MPs) and experts, who are involved in the discussion.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “e.” In the Medium Term Fiscal Policy for 2006-2008, expenditure estimates are presented for all functional groups but no program-level information is available. This does not fit correctly into the response options provided. Refer to Table 5 of the Medium Term Fiscal Policy.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b” as program level data is presented. Please see pages 20-56 of the Medium-Term Fiscal Policy Report.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “b” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

33. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present information related to the government debt for the year preceding the budget year?

   a. Yes, extensive information is presented on the level and composition of government debt for the year preceding the budget year.
   b. Yes, information on the level of debt is presented, but some important details about the composition of the debt are excluded.
   c. Yes, but only information on the level of debt is presented.
   d. No, information related to the government debt for BY-1 is not presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation and/or comment:

   The researcher’s response to this question was “d”: The Medium-Term Fiscal Policy Report, in Chapter 8 entitled, Management of State and State Guarantee Debt contains some information on debt. For example, figure 2 presents Government Debt for 2000-2004 in billion Tenge and as a share of GDP. External debt data for 2004 is presented and classified by donor countries and agencies. But, for 2005 (the year preceding the budget year) there are not actual (at least for half-year) or estimated (for whole year) government debt data.

   Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b.” I do not understand why the researcher selected “d”, as it seems to contradict with what (s)he wrote in the comment: the Medium-Term Fiscal Policy provides information about the level of the government debt and the share of external debt for 2000-2004, but no information on interest rate, maturity profile, and currency denomination of debt is presented.

   Peer Reviewer TWO Comment:

   IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “d” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries. The question seeks 2005 debt data (BY-1) and not 2004. Since debt data for 2005 is not available in Kazakhstan, we have marked it “d.”
34. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, what is the most recent year presented for which the debt figures reflect actual outcomes?

   a. Two years prior to the budget year (BY-2).
   b. Three years prior to the budget year (BY-3).
   c. Before BY-3.
   d. No actual data for government debt are presented in the budget or supporting budget documentation.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation and/or comment:

The researcher’s response to this question was “a”: The Medium-Term Fiscal Policy Report, in Chapter 8 entitled, Management of State and State Guarantee Debt contains some information on debt. For example, figure 2 presents actual Government Debt for 2000-2004 in billion Tenge and as a share of GDP. External debt data for 2004 is presented and classified by donor countries and agencies. However, no explanations of interest rate, maturity profile, and currency denomination of debt is presented.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” Medium-Term Fiscal Policy indicated actual debt level for 2004 which corresponds to BY-2.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “e,” as relevant documents have debt figures but does not reflect any outcomes as requested in the question.

Comprehensiveness

35. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present information for at least the budget year on extra-budgetary funds?

   a. Yes, extensive information on extra-budgetary funds is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
   b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting key extra-budgetary funds, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.
   d. No, information on extra-budgetary funds is not presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation and/or comment:

   The researcher’s response to this question was “c”: In 2004, Kazakhstan had one extra-budgetary fund – the National Oil Fund. The new Budget Code applicable from 2005 has included the oil fund within the budget system. However, the Budget Code accords special treatment to the Oil Fund. In the executive’s budget there is very little information on the Oil Fund — the information provided includes the amount transferred from the budget to the fund.

   Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “d.” Since 2005, the National Fund is no more extra-budgetary but became an integral component of the budget system. In 2006, there are no extra-budgetary funds in Kazakhstan, and therefore, no information on them is included.

   Peer Reviewer TWO Comment: The National Oil Fund is an extra-budgetary fund.

   IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “c” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries. In our discussions with the researcher, we were informed that the National Oil Fund is in fact an extra-budgetary fund in Kazakhstan.

36. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present information for at least the budget year on intergovernmental transfers?

   c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: Apparently, expenditure arrears exist in Kazakhstan's budget system, but it is hardly possible to assess the real scope of the problem. In any case, there is clearly no indication of expenditure areas in the executive budget or supporting budget documentation, so response “d” seems to be correct in this case.

   d. No earmarked revenues are identified individually.

Citation and/or comment:

The researcher’s response to this question was “d”: A portion of revenue income from oil companies that are identified by the Government are earmarked in Kazakhstan. Income taxes from these companies’ are transferred to the national budget based on the oil prices of $19/barrel. Any surplus revenue, generated whenever the oil prices exceeded $19/barrel, is transferred to the National Oil Fund.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “e.” According to the Budget Code, no revenues are earmarked in Kazakhstan with the exception of official earmarked transfers. At the national level, there are no official earmarked transfers classified as revenues (these exist only at the oblast budget level only), and transfers from the donor-oblasts to the national budget are not earmarked. Since this questionnaire focuses on the national level only, “Not Applicable” seems to be the more appropriate response.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment:

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “d” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries. In our discussions with the researcher we were informed that revenues are earmarked from oil company taxes, but this information is not provided to the public.
47. What percentage of expenditure in the budget year is dedicated to spending on secret items relating to, for instance, national security and military intelligence?

   c. Eight percent or less, but more than three percent, of expenditure is dedicated to secret items.
   d. More than eight percent of expenditure is dedicated to secret items, or the percentage is not available to the public.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation and/or comment:

The researcher’s response to this question was “c”: Expenditures on national security amount to 3.2% of the total expenditures. However, it is difficult to identify expenditure on secret items.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “d.” There is no such category in the executive budget as “secret items.” While I am convinced there are budget allocations on these within broader “national security” category.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “d”. In the yearly budget we have sums for national security, and we could figure out the percentage. But, separately the percentage is not given. Note that information on military intelligence is not available.

Citation and/or comment: The Medium-Term Fiscal Policy Report presents some information, which can be considered as performance indicators. However, this information is not presented for BY 2006, but is more general in the period that it covers. For example, (refer to page 25) an indicator is provided in the form of a statement that provides for equal access of all children to preschool education during 2005-2010. Detailed program level data which the executive presents to parliament during budget consideration contains performance indicators. However, this information is not available to the public.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: There are no concrete performance indicators in the Medium-Term Fiscal Policy, such as “by 2006 X number of pre-school kindergartens should be built”, etc. The policy uses broad definitions, like the one used by the researcher as an example, and it is difficult to use them as success criteria.

Citation and/or comment:

The researcher’s response to this question was “d”: Unlike in 2004 when the budget summary was published in the Panorama newspaper, in 2005 the Budget Summary has not been made publicly available.

Researcher Response to Peer Reviewer: I do not agree with both the peer reviewers. Response to PR1: The information provided in the press release or interview with the Minister of Finance does not reflect the main budget ideas. Response to PR2: We cannot use the speech given by Minister Korzhova, as she was appointed in January. We are considering the Budget Proposal for 2006, which was under discussion in Parliament in September – November 2005.

The Summary of Budget Proposal is Poyasnitelnaya Sapiska k Budgetu which accompanied the executive’s Budget Proposal to Parliament. However, this is not publicly available. I personally received a copy of this report as an expert involved in the discussion of the budget in parliament, not as a member of the lay public.

The Budget Proposal which is publicly available in the website of the Ministry of Economy and Budget Planning place budget proposal does not include a Budget Summary.

Usually, the budget is presented to Parliament by a representative of the executive (such as the minister or vice-minister of economy and budget planning). The speech given by this official is published by newspapers and quoted by journalists. Unfortunately, the publication of this speech is not normal practice in Kazakhstan.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “c.” The budget summary should not be confused with the citizens budget. The latter does not exist in Kazakhstan but the summary – in a form of a press release of the Ministry of Finance or an interview with the minister – is always available to public.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b.” A summary that describes the budget and its proposals are available at www.minfin.kz/index.php?uin=1146042272chapter=1148523862lang=rus which is the speech of the Finance Minister Ms. Korzhova N.A. In addition, the respective information is available at electronic version of the paper Kazakhstan Pravda www.kazpravda.kz/?uin=1087809884&chapter as well as the www.government.kz.”

64. Do citizens have the right in law to access government information, including budget information?

   a. Yes, the right has been codified into law, and citizens are generally able in practice to obtain government information, including budget information.
   b. Yes, the right has been codified into law, but it is sometimes not possible for citizens in practice to obtain government information, including budget information.
   c. Yes, the right has been codified into law, but it is frequently or always impossible in practice to obtain access to government information, including budget information.
   d. No, the right to access government information has not been codified into law, or this right does not include access to budget information.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation and/or comment:

The researcher’s response to this question was “c”: The right to access government information has been codified in the Constitution, which provides for access to information in Article 20, which states that “everybody has a right to get and distribute information by any way, not prohibited by law.”

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b.” Article 18 of the Constitution says that “State authorities...are obliged to provide every citizen with an opportunity to get acquainted with documents, decisions and sources of information that affect his rights and duties”. Refer also to the laws of the RoK on (1) legal acts, (2) administrative procedures, (3) consideration of citizens’ requests. Also, the Letter of the Ministry of Justice regarding formal publication of the legal acts. However, in practice it takes a lot of time and effort to obtain access to budgetary information. In some cases, this access will not be granted.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment:

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “c” to maintain consistency with the guidance provided to researchers for correctly completing the questionnaire in the Guide to the Open Budget Questionnaire.

Citation and/or comment:

The researcher’s response to this question was “a”: Every spring, the president addresses citizens (the Poslaniye Presidenta Narodu Kazakstana) and describes his main budget priorities. However, the address does not cover all information required in the OECD’s Best Practices on Budget Transparency regarding pre-budget statements.

Researcher Response to Peer Reviewer: According to the Budget Code, responsibilities of the President (article 55, point 4) are “to define main directions of budget policy on the budget year each year in The address to the Kazakhstan people (or the Poslaniye Presidenta Narodu Kazakstana).”

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “d.” I disagree that Address by the president to the people of Kazakhstan can be regarded as a pre-budget statement. It does not cover many key issues outlined in the OECD’s Best Practices, namely: inflation rate, total revenues and expenditures, the current account, the total level of deficit or surplus. This is a more politically strategic document rather than a pre-budget statement—in OECD terms.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment:

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “a” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries. In Kazakhstan, a pre-budget statement is available in the form of the presidential address. However, the information contained in this speech is grossly inadequate and constitutes a poor pre-budget statement. IBP is using the following guidelines in assessing a pre-budget statement: The pre-budget statement encourages debate on the budget and how it affects the economy. Ideally, the pre-budget document reflects the culmination of the strategic planning phase of the budget process, where the executive broadly aligns its policy goals with the resources available under the budget’s fiscal framework, before detailed program funding decisions are made. It also creates appropriate expectations for the budget itself, which is particularly important when the budget submission occurs close to the start of the fiscal year and the time for debate is therefore limited.

In terms of macroeconomic parameters, a pre-budget statement should present all key economic assumptions, such as the projected rate of GDP growth, the rate of employment and unemployment, the current account, and the inflation and interest rates. It should also highlight at least the aggregate levels of revenue, expenditure, deficit or surplus, and debt.

Although a pre-budget statement is unlikely to include detailed, programmatic proposals, it should include a discussion of broad policy priorities, particularly on the expenditure side (sometimes it can be ill-advised to give advance information about revenue proposals). The discussion could be organized by sector or by administrative unit.
73. Does the pre-budget statement describe the government’s macroeconomic and fiscal framework?

   a. Yes, an extensive explanation of the government’s fiscal and macroeconomic policy is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
   b. Yes, an explanation is presented, highlighting key aspects of the fiscal and macroeconomic framework, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, some explanation is presented, but it lacks important details.
   d. No, an explanation is not presented, or the executive does not release to the public a pre-budget statement.

Citation and/or comment:

The researcher’s response to this question was “d”: The presidential address (described in the comment for Question 72) is not a clear budget address and lacks macroeconomic and financial information and it does not reflect general level of revenue, expenditures, budget deficit or surplus, government debt.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “d.” I disagree that address by the president to the people of Kazakhstan can be regarded as a pre-budget statement. 83. What is the most detail provided in the appropriation (expenditure budget) approved by the legislature?

   a. The approved budget includes program-level detail.
   b. The approved budget includes departmental totals and some additional details (for instance, sub-department totals or major programs).
   c. The approved budget includes only departmental totals.
   d. The approved budget includes less information than departmental totals.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation and/or comment:

The researcher’s response to this question was “b”: During the budget discussion, the executive submits program level data to Parliament. When approved by the legislature, the budget does not contain program level detail, there are departmental totals and major programs.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” The expenditure part of the budget provides information on programs within administrators.

Executive’s Implementation of the Budget

84. How often does the executive release to the public in-year reports on actual expenditure (organized by administrative unit, economic classification and/or function)?

   a. In-year reports on actual expenditure are released at least every month.
   b. In-year reports on actual expenditure are released at least every quarter.
   c. In-year reports on actual expenditure are released at least semi-annually.
   d. In-year reports on actual expenditure are not released.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation and/or comment:

   The researcher’s response to this question was “a”: In-years reports are published every month in the Statistical Bulletin of the MoF (all of them available at the web site of the Ministry of Finance: www.minfin.kz/index.php?uin=1119501016&lang=rus and contain comparisons with the forecast amount, percentage of performance and comparison with same period of previous year. However, it doesn’t explain significant divergences and brief commentary to data. Also, you can download from the website short version of reports.

   Researcher Response to Peer Reviewer: There are two monthly reports available on the MoF web-site. One of the reports, published in the Statistical Bulletin (also can be downloaded from the website) is disaggregated and contains comparisons with the forecast amount, percentage of performance and comparison with same period of previous year. A second report is a shortened version of the monthly report with aggregated data.

   Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: It should be noted that monthly reports published by the Ministry of Finance on its website are highly aggregated, and do not cover some issues outlines in the OECD’s Best Practices, namely: a comparison with the forecast amounts of money and explanation of significant divergences, a brief commentary to numerical data. Hence, decision should be made whether we should consider monthly reports as produced.

Citation and/or comment:

The researcher’s response to this question was “c”: In-year reports released to public on actual borrowing present information related to composition of government debt with dividing on internal and external, external with detail to which institution or country are available, internal with detail to what kind of internal debt (securities issued by the MoF). However, such data as interest rates on the debt, maturity profile of the debt are not available.

Citation and/or comment: The Budget Code provides a framework for budget revision and adjustment. Please see the following:

Article 114 (Republican Budget Revision)
1. The revision of the Republican budget shall be carried out on the basis of the RK Government proposals and/or Members of the Parliament of the RK according to the legislative acts.
2. The proposals for the republican budget revision shall be considered by the republican budget committee.
3. The requirements established by this Code for development and approval of the Republican Budget shall also apply in the case of its revision.

Article 117: Budget Adjustment
1. Budget adjustment – introduction of amendments and additions into the Governmental resolution of the Republic of Kazakhstan or local executive body on implementation of the republican budget law or Maslikhat decision on the local budget for a relevant fiscal year without its revision at the Parliament of the Republic of Kazakhstan or Maslikhat.
2. The republican budget adjustment shall be admitted in cases:
   1) Of formation, liquidation, reorganization, change of functions of state bodies and state institutions subordinate thereto;
      The adjustment shall consist in a merger, division or assignation of appropriate budget programs related to the specified cases within the total amount of the budget programs approved (adjusted) by the law on the republican budget for the appropriate financial year;
   2) Of increase in volume of government debt repayment;
   3) Stipulated by this Code.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: According to Article 113 of the Budget Code, if the revenue shortfall exceeds 10 percent of the budget, the Budget System Law requires the initiation of a formal budget amendment by the legislative body. Budget revision should follow the same procedure of obtaining approval from the legislature. Only budget adjustments, as specified in Article 117, can be conducted without their consideration at the Parliament.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment: In this question I agree with the researcher as on this issue, we rely on Budget Code only.

Citation and/or comment: The researcher’s response to this question was “c”: The legislature approves the volume of contingency funds for which no specific purpose was identified in the budget. In the budget report, the government explains the use of contingency funds and the parliament approves this report.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” According to Article 17-8 of the Budget Code, “Contingency reserves are expensed within the limits pre-approved in the republican budget for the current budget year. Their expenditure is regulated by decrees of the government which become void at the end of the budget year.” Limits can be increased only by the parliament at the suggestion of the government as part of the current budget amendment.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment:

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “c” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries. The question is seeking to assess whether or not expenditures made during the year from the contingency funds have adequate legislative oversight and not whether the setting up of the fund requires legislative approval.
Executive’s Year-End Report and the Supreme Audit Institution

102. How long after the end of the budget year does the executive release to the public a year-end report or another document that discusses the budget’s actual outcome for the year?

   a. Reports are released six months or less after the end of the fiscal year.
   b. Reports are released 12 months or less (but more than six months) after the end of the fiscal year.
   c. Reports are released more than 12 months after the end of the fiscal year.
   d. The executive does not release a year-end report.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation and/or comment:

The researcher’s response to this question was “a.”

Researcher Response to Peer Reviewer: I disagree with the comment that ‘limited printed copies of the Year-End Report (a report by the Minister of Finance) are presented to members of parliament.” The Year-End Report is submitted by the government at the end of the financial year but before 1 May. Along with this Report, the government also submits an explanatory note to the budget, information on formation and utilization of the National Fund, on grants received and spent by state institutions. The Year-End Report’s format reflects the format of budget itself: it presents an analysis of the article by article implementation of the Law on the national budget with the basic data and actual implementation. The Report is comprehensive and contains detailed explanations. All members of parliament are provided with a copy of these reports. The Year-End Report, published in the Statistical Bulletin of the MoF in January of the year following after the budget year and can be therefore regarded as a shortened version of the Year-End Report – i.e. response “d” is not quite appropriate. However, this version of the report lacks all major information, that is why “d” has been selected in all following questions.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: “A” is an appropriate response to this question but with following reservations: Full text of the Ministry of Finance’s Year-End Report is not available to general public (it is presented to members of parliament and SAI only). Highly aggregated numerical information on the budget execution in published in the Statistical Bulletin of the MoF in January of the year following after the budget year and can be therefore regarded as a shortened version of the Year-End Report – i.e. response “d” is not quite appropriate. However, this version of the report lacks all major information, that is why “d” has been selected in all following questions.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment:

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “a” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.
103. In the year-end report, or another document released to the public by the executive (please specify below), have the data on the actual outcomes been audited?

   a. Yes, all data on actual outcomes have been audited.
   b. At least two-thirds, but not all, of the data on actual outcomes have been audited.
   c. Less than two-thirds of the data on actual outcomes have been audited.
   d. None of the data on actual outcomes has been audited, or a year-end report is not released.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation and/or comment:

The researcher’s response to this question was “c”: In the Year-End Report, some data on the actual outcomes have been audited. In accordance with the Budget Code the Government submits to the Parliament and the Accounts Committee an annual report on the implementation of the national budget for the past year and supplementary documents not later than 1 May. The Accounts Committee submits to the Parliament a report on implementation of the national budget. The report of the Government to the Parliament also present results of the internal audit carried out by the Ministry of Finance. The Accounts Committee has a limited technical opportunity to audit all budget expenditures.

Researcher Response to Peer Reviewer: The full Year-End Report with detailed comments and explanation is not available to public. However, the Year-End Report with comparison with projected budget, percentage of implementation, comparison with previous years is published in the Statistical Bulletin.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “d.” I think this question refers to the year-end report produced by the executive and not by the SAI. Full text of the report produced by the executive (with all explanations) is not available to the public, therefore “d” seems to be a more appropriate response.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment:

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “c” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries. In our discussions with the researcher, we were informed that the executive’s Year-End Report had been consulted for the purposes of answering this question and not the SAI report.
104. Does the year-end report, or another document released to the public by the executive (please specify below), explain the difference between the enacted levels (including in-year changes approved by the legislature) and the actual outcome for expenditures?

   b. Yes, an explanation is presented, highlighting key differences, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, some explanation is presented, but it lacks important details.
   d. No, an explanation is not presented, or such a report is not released.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation and/or comment: A detailed report on budget execution with explanations presented by the government to the Parliament is not public available. The Ministry of Finance publishes a year-end report in the Statistical Bulletin and places this report on its web site with preliminary and factual data. However, this report does not contain a narrative text and only contains figures.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment:

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment: The Year-End Report is released and is publicly available at the MoF web-site and the Statistical Bulletin in pdf format however the it contains only figures without any explanations.

105. What level of detail is the focus of the explanation of the differences between the enacted levels and the actual outcome for expenditures presented in the year-end report, or another document released to the public by the executive (please specify below)?

   a. The explanation of the differences between the enacted expenditure levels and the actual outcome focuses on the program level.
   b. The explanation focuses on departmental totals (or functional totals) or some lower level of detail (but not the program level in all cases).
   c. The explanation focuses on a higher level of aggregation than departmental totals (or functional totals).

   The researcher’s response to this question was “c”: In 2005, the new Budget Code has included the National Fund of the Republic of Kazakhstan (NFRK), which is an extra-budgetary fund, within the budget process. However, special mechanisms have been included for the execution of this fund. A short year-end report on National Oil Fund is presented to the Legislature. Some information is also available to the public on the NFRK’s Internet page, in Annual report of National (Central) Bank, and in the Statistical Bulletin of the MoF.

   Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “d.” I do not think we can regard the National Fund as an extra-budgetary one anymore as its status has changed in 2005.

   Peer Reviewer TWO Comment:

   IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “c” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries. In our discussions with the researcher, we were informed that the National Oil Fund is in fact an extra-budgetary fund in Kazakhstan.

112. How long after the end of the fiscal year are the final expenditures of national departments audited and (except for secret programs) released to the public?

   a. Final audited accounts are released to the public six months or less after the end of the fiscal year.
   b. Final audited accounts are released 12 months or less (but more than six months) after the end of the fiscal year.
   c. Final audit accounts are released more than 12 months, but within 24 months of the end of the fiscal year.
   d. Final audited accounts are not completed within 24 months after the end of the fiscal year or they are not released to the public.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation and/or comment: The Accounts Committee released a report on the government budget execution to the public, six months after the end of the fiscal year; this is a requirement under the Budget Code.

Citation and/or comment: The accounts committee releases an audit report with an executive summary to the public at the end of a budget year. However, audit reports on departmental expenditures are not fully audited and when available, such reports generally include an executive summary.

115. Must a branch of government other than the executive (such as the legislature or the judiciary) give final consent before the head of the Supreme Audit Institution (SAI) can be removed from office?

   a. Yes, the head of the SAI may only be removed by the legislature or judiciary, or the legislature or judiciary must give final consent before they are removed.
   b. No, the executive may remove the head of the SAI without the final consent of the judiciary or legislature.
   c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation and/or comment:

   The researcher’s response to this question was “c”: The head of the Accounting Committee is appointed and removed by the president without consultations with executive, legislature and judiciary. According the Constitution of Kazakhstan, the President is not a head of executive branch.

   Researcher Response to Peer Reviewer: Citation in English from Constitution is incorrect - “the chief executive officer of the Republic,”- in Russia, there are “Vysshee dolzhnostnoe litco’ – which does not mean “chief executive”. In reality, the head of executive branch – prime minister does not have authority to remove the head of SAI.

   Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b.” This is tricky, as, according to the Constitution, president stays above all three branches of power providing coordination between them. At the same time, the Constitution says that president is “the chief executive officer of the Republic”, and he actually serves as the chief executive of the state. Taking into account the concept behind this question (i.e. the ideal situation of the SAI being independent of the executive) it would be more appropriate to respond “b.”

   Peer Reviewer TWO Comment:

   IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “b” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.
116. Does the Supreme Audit Institution release to the public audits of extra-budgetary funds?

   a. Yes, the SAI releases to the public audits of all extra-budgetary funds.
   b. Yes, the SAI releases audits representing at least two-thirds of, but not all, extra-budgetary funds.
   c. Yes, the SAI releases audits representing less than two-thirds of all extra-budgetary funds.
   d. No, the SAI does not release to the public audits of extra-budgetary funds, or it does not audit such funds.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation and/or comment:

   The researcher’s response to this question was “d”: The Accounts Committee does not audit the National Oil Fund as it is not provided with the authority to conduct such an audit by the Budget Code. Instead, the Oil Fund is audited by “Big Five” international audit companies (in practice - by Ernst & Young). Ernst & Young submits its report to the executive, and not to the SAI. Since the National Oil Fund started its operations, none of the audit reports have been published in a national newspaper or submitted to Parliament. The 2004 Report, published in a national newspaper, also was not supported by an auditor's report. The consolidated 2002 and 2003 auditor's report was posted on the web site of the Ministry of Finance only in 2005, though it is dated January 20, 2004.

   Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “e.” Since 2005, there are no extra-budgetary funds in the Republic of Kazakhstan with the National Fund legally being part of the budgetary system.

   Peer Reviewer TWO Comment:

   IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “d” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

117. Beyond the established year-end attestation audits, does the Supreme Audit Institution (SAI) have discretion in law to undertake those audits it may wish to?

   a. The SAI has full discretion to decide which audits it wishes to undertake.
   b. The SAI has significant discretion, but faces some limitations.
   c. The SAI has some discretion, but faces considerable limitations.
   d. The SAI has no discretion to decide which audits it wishes to undertake.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation and/or comment: The Accounts Committee does not audit the National Oil Fund as it is not provided with the authority to conduct such an audit by the Budget Code. Instead the Oil Fund is audited by international audit companies.

   Under the new Budget Code, the Accounts Committee has significant discretion to undertake audits.

   Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: The above-mentioned limitations are implicit from the fact that the SAI reports to (and therefore depends on) the president. Also, the SAI does not have sufficient research capacity to audit all budget programs.

   c. Yes, a report is released, but it lacks important details.
   d. No, a report is not produced or it is prepared for internal purposes only (please specify).
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation and/or comment:

   The researcher’s response to this question was “b”: The Accounts Committee reports are available on its website: www.esep.kz. Since 2003, the report contains a chapter of the Government’s measures to respond to the recommendations made by Accounts Committee on improvement budget procedures. However, this report is not comprehensive. Accounts Committee does not audit state owned companies. In the past few years, significant budget resources have been withdrawn for establishment of different joint stock companies. The Accounts Committee does not provide audit of finances allocated from budget due to limited authority.

   Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” The Year-End Report contains a special chapter that lists actions undertaken by the government following the SAI’s recommendations. It also lists those recommendations which have been missed by the government. I find this section comprehensive and do not see why the researcher has chosen “b.”

   c. Yes, legislators are provided audit reports on secret items, but they lack important details.
