5. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, are estimates of the aggregate level of expenditure presented for a multi-year period (at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   a. Yes, multi-year estimates of aggregate expenditure are presented.
   b. No, multi-year estimates of aggregate expenditure are not presented.
   c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

The Mid-term National Fiscal Management Plan was introduced in 2004 and contains aggregate expenditure for 5 years. According to the current law on budgetary and accounting, the submission of the Mid-term National Fiscal Management Plan is not obligatory, however the executive has submitted it with the annual budget documents to the National Assembly. A pending National Finance Law will make it obligatory for the executive to develop the Mid-term National Fiscal Management Plan and submit it to the National Assembly.

   Peer Reviewer TWO Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “c.” It is true that the impact of key policy proposals on expenditures is presented, but the information is quite general and not detailed. In addition, it is sometimes inaccurate.

   IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “b” to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.

The researcher's response to this question was “b.” Yes, the right in law to access government information including budget information is codified, and is available at: http://www.mpb.go.kr/servlet/loadMenu?menuFlag=K590 and http://info.egov.go.kr/io/index_new.html

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: The peer reviewer agrees with the researcher's opinion. The right to access government information, including budget information is codified into the law. Of course, there may be a small and exceptional number of cases in which requests for information are denied by ignorant public servants. Therefore, researcher's marking "a" is appropriate.

Peer Reviewer TWO Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b.” In practice, there are certainly some limitations for citizens when they try to obtain government information. I do not mean that citizens are blocked from obtaining government information — the information is open to all the citizens. However, it is true that citizens, including myself, sometimes do not know how to obtain the necessary information at the right time. The government does not make the information about where and how to obtain the information readily accessible.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer ‘b’ to maintain the consistency of the assumptions used in selecting answers across the countries.
65. Are citizens able in practice to obtain financial information on expenditures for individual programs in a format that is more highly disaggregated than that which appears in the executive's budget proposal if they request it (for example, from a ministry or agency)?

a. In practice, highly disaggregated information is available to the public for all programs except those considered related to national security or military intelligence.
b. In practice, highly disaggregated information is available to the public for programs representing at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures.
c. In practice, highly disaggregated information is available to the public for programs representing less than two-thirds of expenditures.
a. In practice, no highly disaggregated expenditure information is available.
b. Not applicable/other (please comment).

There is no report titled "pre-budget report" released in South Korea. The National Fiscal Management Plan is submitted by October 2, along with annual budget document after the executive proposal is determined. However, the executive releases the tentative plan for the National Fiscal Management Plan to the National Assembly at the beginning of May. This tentative plan is structured similarly to a pre-budget report because it provides information on economic condition, budget composing direction, total budget amount and budget amount by programs. The researcher's response to this question was “d.” See South Korean Constitutional Law Article 54 (1): The National Assembly shall deliberate and decide upon the national budget bill. Article 57: However, the National Assembly shall, without the consent of the Executive, neither increase the sum of any item of expenditure nor create any new items of expenditure in the budget submitted by the Executive.

Peer Reviewer ONE Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b.” The researcher's comments on the Korean law are true, but the practice is quite different. Although the rate of total budget cut by the Korean legislature has been generally less than 1%, a number of amendment in the budget amount by program are found (Annual Budget Amendment, Annex to Summery of 2006 Budget). Politically and legally, the legislature has authority to amend the budget through consultation with the executive.

101. When does the legislature approve the expenditure of contingency funds or other funds for which no specific purpose was identified in the budget?

- Expenditures are approved before the funds are expended, or contingency funds or other funds with no specific purposes are not included in the budget.
- Expenditures are approved after the funds are expended, but before the end of the fiscal year.
- Expenditures are approved after the end of the fiscal year, for example in the next budget.
- Such expenditure takes place without legislative approval.
- Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation and/or comment: The reserve funds are set up by the National Assembly and these funds can only be drawn upon with the consent of the Council of Ministers. Any expenditure from the reserve funds is required to be reported and approved in the settlement of accounts during the next session of the National Assembly.

In BY 2006, a reserve fund of KRW 2.5 trillion was set up—amounting to 1.7 percent of the estimated annual expenditure (p.111, “2006 Estimated Expenditure Plan from the Ministry of Planning and Budget,” Budget Proposal for FY2006); Of this amount, KRW 1.4 trillion (56 percent of the total fund) was allocated as a reserve fund with specific purpose of countering natural disasters, personnel expenses, and fluctuation in currency exchange rate (p.15, the general provisions of Budget- Article 13, Budget Proposal for FY2006).

Provisions for Reference:
*Constitutional law, Article 55(2): A reserve fund shall be approved by the National Assembly in total. The expenditure of it shall be approved during the next session of the National Assembly.
