Section Two: The Executive's Budget Proposal

Notes on abbreviations:

BY = budget year (year for which the budget proposals are being made)

BY+1 = one year beyond the budget year

BY-1 = one year before the budget year

Note 1: The Open Budget Survey research process was carried out over a 12-month period and the final version of the Open Budget Questionnaires reflect decisions made after multiple rounds of discussions between Survey researchers, peer reviewers, and the International Budget Partnership (IBP) (in several countries these decisions also considered comments received from governments). When peer reviewers or governments agreed with the answers provided by researchers, they often provided no comment. Thus for many questions, the section in the questionnaire that should contain peer reviewer comments is left blank. However, if the government did not provide any comments to a question (because it did not dispute the answer), the section within the questionnaire that is meant to reflect government comments specifies the answer that the government agreed with (by default).

Since the IBP continued its discussions with the researchers even after receiving peer reviewer and government comments, for some questions these discussions resulted in a mutual decision to change the answers, even if the peer reviewers and governments agreed with the original answer provided by the researcher. Such changes may have happened as a result of:

1. A more consistent application of the Survey methodology;
2. New information identified by the researcher or by IBP that had a bearing on the answer for a particular question; or
3. Decisions made to ensure cross-country comparability of answers.

For more information on these changes for any question please write to info@internationalbudget.org.

Interview with journalists and, civil society organizations.

Researcher Response to this Question was "c"

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "Availability of financial information to citizens strongly depends on the nature of programmes." For example, it is impossible in practice for a citizen to obtain such information for security-related programmes. The correct answer to this question would be closer to "d," namely "In practice, limited highly disaggregated expenditure information is available."

Researcher Response: I chose my answer because the law of access to information is already granted in the Constitution and Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA), but it was not executed. Under the pressure of many civil society organizations, social groups and some political parties, to realize the constitution and implement the CPA, there has been some improvement in provision of access to governmental information.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "c" based on the researcher's assertion that they has been some improvement in gaining access to such information.

65. Are citizens able in practice to obtain non-financial information related to expenditures (for example, number of beneficiaries, number of persons employed by the program, etc.) for individual programs in a format that is more highly disaggregated than that which appears in the executive's budget proposal if they request it from a ministry or agency?

- a. In practice, highly disaggregated non-financial information is available to the public for all programs except those considered related to national security or military intelligence.
- b. In practice, highly disaggregated non-financial information is available to the public for programs representing at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures.
- c. In practice, highly disaggregated non-financial information is available to the public for programs representing less than two-thirds of expenditures.
- d. In practice, no highly disaggregated non-financial expenditure information is available.
- e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: My comment to question 64 applies here. A second important example would be energy-related programmes.

Researcher Response: I chose my answer because the law of access to information is already granted in the Constitution and Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA), however it was not executed. Under the pressure of many civil society organizations, social groups and some political parties, to realize the constitution and implement the CPA, there was some improvement in provision of access to governmental information.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "c" based on the based on the researcher's assertion that they has been some improvement in gaining access to such information.

Comment:

Two reasons

- 1. The social pressure (Please compare with questions 64,65)
- 2. The GFS system of budgeting, which now implemented in Sudan has given some room for public to have access to information and discuss in some issues in the national budget.

Researcher Response to this Question was "c"

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "d." The public is normally not consulted but the populace sometimes make public demands.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I agree that the response should be changed to "d" based on Peer Reviewer One's comment.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "d" since the researcher and the peer reviewer agree that the executive does not typically consult with the public as a part of the budget process.

Researcher Response to this Question was "a"

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be "c." The executive has the upper hand in passing what it deemed important even with the objection of the legislature.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I chose my answer because as I illustrated in my citation that there is no limitation in law, please see the citation.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer "d" because based on this citation the legislature may not make any changes to the executive's budget and it is basically only able to approve or reject the budget as a whole.
