| Budget Summary | - The Citizens Budget was available on the web “Ur budgetpropositionen för 2009: Finansplan och sammandrag,” 22 September 2008. However it has since been replaced with the Citizens budget for the 2010 budget proposal - see http://www.regeringen.se/sb/d/11458/a/131714
The document above was also available in English. |
- There was a webpage with all the major Budget Proposal 2009 documents and information materials are gathered, all dated 22 September 2008. That webpage has since then been replaced with the 2010 budget proposal, and the main budget proposal documents for 2009 were moved to this webpage: http://regeringen.se/sb/d/10169/a/111679 |
| Budget Document Two in Support of the Executive’s Budget Proposal | |
| Budget Document Three in Support of the Executive’s Budget Proposal | |
| Citizens Budget | - Så fördelas budgeten (The way the budget is divided), 22 September 2008
The budget summary for 2009 was found on the web but has now been replaced by the budget summary for the budget proposal 2010: http://regeringen.se/sb/d/12174/a/131850 . The summary for the 2009 budget was presented in the same way.
The webpage is called Utgiftsområden – utveckling (In English: Spending areas – development) |
- Monthly reports on the public debt: Swedish National Financial Authority (Ekonomistyrningsverket): Is found on the same web pages as the budget expenditures above. Go to “månadsutfall,” then select a month on the right hand side, and then press the + sign by “Totala utgifter.”

The in year reports are on the web (not on paper, and are monthly updates. The timelag is about 2 months – i.e. May is the latest month displayed on the web today (July 24th). Please advice. |
| Mid-Year Review | - Not produced
The executive does not release one such mid-year review. However, the Spring Fiscal Bill (Vårpropositionen) - the pre-budget statement - has aspects of a mid-year review but is not designed to specifically show detailed budget performance and macroeconomic data of the past 6 months (it does give some overview of such information though). |

Section Two: The Executive’s Budget Proposal

Notes on abbreviations:
BY = budget year (year for which the budget proposals are being made)
BY+1 = one year beyond the budget year
BY-1 = one year before the budget year

Note 1: The Open Budget Survey research process was carried out over a 12-month period and the final version of the Open Budget Questionnaires reflect decisions made after multiple rounds of discussions between Survey researchers, peer reviewers, and the International Budget Partnership (IBP) (in several countries these decisions also considered comments received from governments). When peer reviewers or governments agreed with the answers provided by researchers, they often provided no comment. Thus for many questions, the section in the questionnaire that should contain peer reviewer comments is left blank. However, if the government did not provide any comments to a question (because it did not dispute the answer), the section within the questionnaire that is meant to reflect government comments specifies the answer that the government agreed with (by default).

Since the IBP continued its discussions with the researchers even after receiving peer reviewer and government comments, for some questions these discussions resulted in a mutual decision to change the answers, even if the peer reviewers and governments agreed with the original answer provided by the researcher. Such changes may have happened as a result of:

1. A more consistent application of the Survey methodology;
2. New information identified by the researcher or by IBP that had a bearing on the answer for a particular question; or
3. Decisions made to ensure cross-country comparability of answers.

For more information on these changes for any question please write to info@internationalbudget.org.
The Executive’s Budget Proposal

Estimates for the Budget Year and Beyond

1. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by administrative unit (that is, by ministry, department, or agency)?

   a. All expenditures are classified by administrative unit.
   b. Expenditures are classified by administrative unit, but some small units are not shown separately.
   c. Expenditures are classified by administrative unit, but a significant number of units are not shown separately.
   d. No expenditures classified by administrative unit are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:
The letters of appropriations (Regleringbrev) are found on the Swedish National Management Authority’s (Ekonomistyrningsverket) homepage:
http://www.esv.se/snabblankar/statsliggaren/statsliggarensockida.4.381a53100408a68b18000656.html

Comment:
The budget proposal is presented by 27 expenditure and 48 policy areas. Many of those can be linked to a specific administrative unit based on their title, but they are not presented by ministry or agency. A classification by agency is made by the government in its letters of appropriation directions (regleringsbrev) to the agencies soon after the budget proposal is approved by Parliament, in December. Strictly speaking the budget proposal’s expenditure areas are therefore not administrative units. However, last year IBP selected answer “b” to maintain consistency with the criteria used for selecting answer across countries, based on the above information. It is therefore reasonable to rate the question the same this time. Also, note that the cutoff date for the documents used in this OBI research was 15 September 2009. This meant that the budget proposal 2010, that was made public just a few days after the cutoff date, could not be used. The budget proposal 2009 is the one in focus in the above research.

Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be that the Treasury budget proposal to Parliament does not include a full breakdown into administrative units, but it is nevertheless included in the executive’s budget to a certain degree, and in the letters of appropriation that are part of the budget process. If the OBI, for consistency reason, has determined that the breakdown should be presented in the budget bill, and does not allow for a time-lag, perhaps the question should be slightly rephrased. Presently, the question actually includes “any supporting document,” and clearly the letters of appropriation are, even if they are presented later in the process. According to the Guide to the Open Budget Questionnaire (p. 9), if I read it correctly, the budget document should be comprehensive, to allow for informed debate, and I think the budget document should be rated higher than “b” (67%). For the purpose of transparency and availability it is much closer to an “a.” My suggestion is that the rating should be “a.”

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.

Researcher Response: I chose answer “b” because as mentioned by the Peer Reviewer Two, the question does not allow for the time lag.

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “b.”

Comment:
The categorization is not fully compatible with the Classification of the Functions of the Government (COFOG - http://unstats.un.org/unsd/cr/registry/regcst.asp?Cl=4). The Executive's Budget Proposal is broken down into 27 expenditure areas (utgiftsområden) and 48 policy areas (politikområden).

However, such a classification of the budget proposal is made by Statistics Sweden ex-post the release of the proposal. See:
http://www.sscb.scb.se/Databaser/makro/Visavar.asp?yp=bergman&xu=sscb&omradekod=NR&huvudtabell=OFMKonsUtgiftAr&omradetext=National accounts&tabelltext=Offentliga+myndigheters+konsumtionsutgifter+(ENS95)+efter+%E4ndam%E5l+COFOG.++%C5r&p preskat=O&prodid=NR0102&deltabell=&deltabellnamn=Offentliga+myndigheters+konsumtionsutgifter+(ENS95)+efter+%E4ndam%E5l+COFOG.++%C5r&innehall=OFMKonsUtgiftFpAr&starttid=1993&stopptid=2006&Fromwhere=M&lang=2&lang db=1

Peer Reviewer One Comment: I agree that “b” is the answer. Moreover, the links to Statistics Sweden show final public consumption with a 3 year lag, not an ex-post classification of the budget proposal.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: In a similar vein to the response under Q1, a more appropriate rating would be “a,” although the standard requirement for functional classification is not met. The classification is fully functional, comprehensive and transparent to allow for and informed debate and the rating, in my opinion, should be based on that, and not on a specific standard. I would suggest that the question is slightly rephrased and the word “compatible” is changed to “fully comparable.” Might be a long shot, but this would avoid that fully transparent, comprehensive system gets an inaccurate “b” rating.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.

Researcher Response: I chose my answer “b” in line with peer reviewer one’s comment. Peer reviewer two is suggesting a change to the question, not to the answer.

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “b.”

3. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by economic classification?

   a. All expenditures are classified by economic classification, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
   b. All expenditures are classified by economic classification, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.
   c. Some, but not all, expenditures are classified by economic classification.
   d. No expenditures classified by economic classification are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:

Comment:
The expenditures are not classified by economic classification in the Executive’s Budget Proposal (i.e. economic classification as defined by the IMF in the Government Finance Statistics Manual 2001). The stated reason for this is to give the agencies flexibility: “To give the agencies the financial flexibility which is necessary for performance management, they receive yearly appropriations which are not subdivided into different expenditure categories. The framework appropriations permit the agencies to carry forward unspent balances from one fiscal year to another. They also permit agencies to borrow against the following year’s appropriation” which is stated on page 5 in the Swedish National Financial Management Authority’s publication “Performance Management in Swedish Central Government”: http://www.esv.se/publikationer/trycksaker/publikationer/performancem anagementinswedishcentralgovernment.5.e1666ffde6cee0580005740.htm
A classification of final public expenditures is made by Statistics Sweden with a three year timelag.

For analytical purposes of the government there are some very highly aggregated presentations of transfers, consumption and investments in the budget proposal. However, it is not what the IMF defines as economic classification, and the government agencies are not obligated to spend according to those figures. An example of such a presentation can be found in the Executives Budget Proposal, expenditure area 26 (Statsskuldsräntor), table 2.3 page 10: http://regeringen.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/072f99a0.pdf

It should be added the Swedish National Financial Authority (Ekonomistyrningsverket) makes an economic classification of the Executive's Budget Proposal. The classification is done in the year after the release of the proposal in relation to the Year-end Report (in April), and the publication of budget expenditure outcomes. See the classification in the Authority's report of March 2009 on the budget outcomes 2008: http://www.esv.se/download/18.56ef3b9111f83d2e87f80002485/SBU+2008.pdf

In June the Authority also releases a report on the time series of the outcome of the Executive's Budget Proposal. It is a part of the Official Statistics of Sweden. The statistics describe revenues, expenditures and balance of the budget final outcome in the form of statistical tables around 12 years back in time. The following is the report of 2008: http://www.esv.se/download/18.7e3e2d4d12042c815f180005806/ESV+2009-22.pdf

Researcher Response to this Question was “d”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: I would perhaps rate this question as “e,” rather than “d.” The basic rationale for the present appropriation structure is to allow for flexibility, within clear limits, as the researcher points out. It would therefore be possible to argue that the present classification is sufficient even in “economic” terms, and a rating “d” indicates otherwise. I suggest a rating “e” would more relevant. See also comments under Q1 and Q2.

Government Comment: A more appropriate response might be “c.” First, a period of 10 years, included the forecasted years, are presented by economic classification in appendix to the budget. Bilaga 2, page 12 Table 16 following the link: http://regeringen.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/bc7025e7.pdf (bilaga 2: http://www.sweden.gov.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/3bb07621.pdf)

Secondly, in the specification documents for the different expenditure areas, there is an overall distribution by economic classification for the BY. Given the flexibility mentioned by the respondent above, the distribution is based on historical outcome data, normally the outcome for BY-2 (for example how much an agency will spend on wages, rents etc), but for appropriations that are only for investments or transfers, the actual economic classification is the one used (for a large part of the transfer system, for example to households and local governments, the full appropriated amount is a transfer – not for administering the transfers. This is the case also for the appropriation for interest on government debt).

A classification of government expenditures according to national accounts standards are always included in the budget. See pp 232-235 in the Budget Bill of 2009 http://regeringen.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/bc7025e7.pdf

Researcher Response: I chose answer “c” because I agree with the government's comment.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “c” in agreement with the government’s comment.

6. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, is more detail than just the aggregate level presented for expenditure estimates that cover a multi-year period (for at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   a. Yes, multi-year expenditure estimates are presented for all individual programs, and for one or more expenditure classification (such as functional, economic, or administrative).
   b. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented for one or more expenditure classification (such as functional, economic, or administrative), but only for some individual programs.
   c. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented, but only for a portion of one or more of the expenditure classifications (such as some functions, or some administrative units) and/or for only some individual programs.
   d. No, multi-year estimates are presented for aggregate expenditure only, or they are not presented at all.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
Yes, details for 2007-2011 are provided for programs (e.g. policy areas) and expenditure areas.
Estimates for the full period (in the budget mentioned for 2009) and estimates for appropriation level (the lowest level that are decided by parliament) for the period 2009 to 2011 are provided.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Agree with “a.” Estimates for the full period (in the budget mentioned by the respondent for 2009) and estimates for appropriation level (the lowest level that are decided by parliament) for the period 2009 to 2011 are provided.
7. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation identify the different sources of tax revenue (such as income tax or VAT) for the budget year?

   a. All sources of tax revenue are identified individually.
   b. Sources of tax revenue amounting to at least two-thirds of, but not all, tax revenues are identified individually.
   c. Sources of tax revenue amounting to less than two-thirds of all tax revenues are identified individually.
   d. No sources of tax revenue are identified individually.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

10. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, is more detail than just the aggregate level presented for revenue estimates that cover a multi-year period (for at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   a. Yes, multi-year revenue estimates are presented for individual sources of revenue, and by revenue classification (such as tax and non-tax).
   b. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented by revenue classification (such as tax and non-tax), but only for some individual sources of revenue.
   c. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented, but only for some individual sources of revenue.
   d. No, multi-year estimates are presented for aggregate revenue only, or they are not presented at all.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

In section 3.4. in the document on expenditure area 26 (Statsskuldräntor) of the Executive's Budget Proposal, sensitivity analysis is presented in relation to the government debt. http://regeringen.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/072f99a0.pdf

Sensitivity analysis in relation to the pension system is found in the Appendix of the budget proposal that relates to the pension system. The pension system is an extra budgetary fund (Ålderspensionssystemet vid sidan av statsbudgeten), page 12. http://regeringen.se/content/1/c6/08/81/69/f6be1640.pdf

Comment:
The OBI 2008 (which was based on the budget proposal of the budget year 2008) had the answer “c” to this question. No sensitivity analysis of the aggregate level was presented in the main document of the Executive’s Budget Proposal. However, sensitivity analyses were presented in the documents of expenditure area 26 and the extra budgetary fund referred to above. Additions to the Executive's Budget Proposal 2009 (on which the Swedish OBI 2010 is based) is that it the main document contains certain sensitivity analysis (see for example section 8.4.2.), and so does its Appendix 3. I would therefore like to upgrade this question to “b.”

It should also be noted that in the main document of the Government's Budget Proposal the Government comments the Audit Report of 2008 (Riksrevisionens årliga rapport 2008). The Audit Report, among other, says that the Government needs to present more sensitivity analyses and alternative calculations in order to show more clearly what uncertainties there are in relation to the budget proposals. The Government, among other, says the following in footnote 66 of the main document of the Executive's Budget Proposal: “The Government's ambition is to progressively present further alternative scenarios and sensitivity analyses in coming proposals.”

Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: Section 8.4.2 includes sensitivity analyses of the long-term sustainability of public finances, not the specific budget proposal. Please review again. In my opinion, given that the question is about “the budget” it still merits a “c.”

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be that several macro analyses are presented and the budget process includes reporting on main targets two times a year. The annual budget includes two core fiscal targets; one is the aggregated expenditure ceiling and the other is defined as a surplus of 1% in the public sector (including municipal and regional expenditure) over the business cycle. In addition, the surplus target has three specific indicators to facilitate monitoring. These targets are closely monitored, widely discussed and this would imply that the rating should be changed from “b” to “a.” For reference http://www.regeringen.se/sb/d/12340/a/124386. Also see item 6 under http://www.regeringen.se/sb/d/11851/a/124381 or bilaga 3 in the budget 2009.
| Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer. |
| Researcher Response: I chose my answer because it is a question of judgment and my answer is between the two peer reviewers’ comments. |
| IBP Comment: IBP editors agree with answer “b” in line with the researcher’s comment. |

16. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present information for at least the budget year that shows how policy proposals in the budget, as distinct from existing policies, affect expenditures?

| a. Yes, extensive information on the impact of policy proposals on expenditures is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates. |
| b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the impact of key policy proposals on expenditures, but some details are excluded. |
| c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details. |
| d. No, information on the impact of policy proposals on expenditures is not presented. |
| e. Not applicable/other (please comment). |

Comment:

Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be that the Budget includes an extensive presentation and discussion on the fiscal situation (which includes aggregated effects of policy proposals on the budget), see chapter 4 in Finansplan. The basic structure of the budget with a clear presentation of expenditure areas also inform the discussion on policy changes in the budget, but I am not sure how clear this presentation is in the budget document? For instance, does the budget document include quantitative estimates on changes to the Unemployment benefits? I still think the scoring should be “a,” but the researcher might want to look into this.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.

Researcher Response: I chose answer “a” because I think it holds in an international comparison.

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “a.”
17. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present information for at least the budget year that shows how policy proposals in the budget, as distinct from existing policies, affect revenues?

   a. Yes, extensive information on the impact of policy proposals on revenues is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
   b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the impact of key policy proposals on revenues, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.
   d. No, information on the impact of policy proposals on revenues is not presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Expenditures by administrative unit areas are presented for 2007-2011, however strictly speaking expenditure areas are not administrative units.

Researcher Response to this Question was “c”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be that the budget documents present the relevant information, which is on expenditure area level, which includes a breakdown into detailed spending. For instance, look the Budget for 2009, area 5 international development, table 2.2 where year 2007 -2012 is presented at ceiling level, which I think would be sufficient to meet the basic rationale for the question, namely relevant and comprehensive information to enable independent scrutiny from the public. The rating should change to “a” or possibly “e.” See also Q1-3.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.

Researcher Response: I chose answer “c” because of the same reasons stated in my comments to Peer Reviewer Two's comments to Q1-3.

Comment:
See the comment to question 3.

Researcher Response to this Question was “d”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: Please see the question above and also see Q1-3.

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b” or “c.” A period of 10 years included the forecasted years is presented by economic classification in appendix to the budget. This is done on an aggregated level but a “d” signals that the Budget Bill lacks all forms of economic classification. Bilaga 2, page 12 Table 16 following the link http://regeringen.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/bc7025e7.pdf or rather http://www.sweden.gov.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/3bb07621.pdf for Bilaga 2. The following is said on page 169:

På kort sikt avser osäkerheten i prognosen främst bedömningen av företagens vinster och hushållens kapitalvinster. På längre sikt avser osäkerheten i prognosen relationen mellan företagens vinster och utbetalda löner, dvs. vinstandelen.

Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: The question is about BY-1, which must be 2008. The Swedish text says that half of the 2007 tax revenue (i.e. BY-2) remains a prognosis. Should it not, therefore be “b” or “c”? See also answer to 32, below?

Comment:
Actual revenue outcomes are presented for the years 2000-2006.

In the OBI 2008, the Government gave the following note worthy comment: “I would add that reason for not reporting BY-2 is that the final tax assessment from the National tax authority is not available at the time of the preparation of the Budget Bill. This is usually the case for most statistics. National Accounts and other data producers need a couple of year to get “final” outcomes, before that outcomes are usually preliminary, with some elements of forecasts in them. This of course differs for different tax-types, with tax bases that use preliminary taxation and taxes that are assessed ex-post. I would be a bit surprised if many other countries answer BY-2 (if so, then they probably use a cash based system, not periodized or accrual ones which is the case in Sweden.”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Adding to the comment above from the Government in OBI 2008, one could add that the sum of cash-based revenues for BY-2 is finalized and published in both the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill as well as in the Budget Bill. As stated in the comment above, the composition is not finalized due to the Swedish accrual system. Total cash-based revenues for the Central government, which is the figure that goes into the budget balance of the Central Government is ready already in April in year t+1.

Comment:

Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” The pension system was reformed in the mid 90s and one of the main accomplishments was the improvement in transparency, and I believe there is consensus around this. Pension systems are notoriously difficult to interpret so this was a good thing. Therefore, the rating of “b” can be disputed, even if the Budget Bill does not fully reflect all aspects of the system. Besides, the Bill includes substantial information on aggregate level. See expenditure area 11 which includes a comprehensive presentation on the Pension system outside the budget as the researcher has indicated.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s original answer “b,” which the IBP modified for consistency purposes.

Researcher Response: I chose answer “a” because I think Peer Reviewer Two’s comment holds in an international comparison.

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “a.”
36. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present information for at least the budget year on intergovernmental transfers?

   b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting key intergovernmental transfers, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.
   d. No, information on intergovernmental transfers is not presented.

   Comment:

   Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

   Peer Reviewer One Comment:

   Peer Reviewer Two Comment: The rating is fine but one of the more muddled areas in the Swedish budget is the Kommunala Utjämningssystemet, which in essence is the system for transfers between rich and poor municipalities, and quite substantial in scope.

   Government Comment: There are other transfers than the general grant noted above. Examples are targeted grants which are part of programmes for education, child care and health care. These are also noted in the budget. See for example: Expenditure area 16, page 130, section 9.1.7 on the link http://www.regeringen.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/33664aa4.pdf

   Researcher Response: I chose answer “a” because the peer reviewers comment do not suggest changing the rating but agree with their comments.

   IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “a.”
37. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present information for at least the budget year on transfers to public corporations?

a. Yes, extensive information on transfers to public corporations is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting key transfers to public corporations, but some details are excluded.
c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.
d. No, information on transfers to public corporations is not presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

The transfers to public corporations are accounted for in each expenditure area document of the Executive's Budget Proposal. For example expenditure area 22 Communications, point 5.3.: http://regeringen.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/5af1f04e.pdf

Comment:
Yes, but not always extensive.

Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be that in essence all significant transfers to corporations are accounted for, albeit not always extensive. Here again it boils down to a question of rating. If the “b” (67%) stands, it should be possible to point to some major cases that are accounted for. Otherwise “b” would not be an accurate estimate. I do not think there are any major transfers unaccounted for, which consequently indicates an “a.” It might be that the presentation could be clearer but, this should affect the rating to such an extent.

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” Transfers like these are always listed as regular items in the budget. Some public corporations have their own appropriations: see for example Expenditure area 24, section 3.9.19, pp.65-66 for AB Göta Kanalbolagen. There is also an appropriation for capital injections in public corporations which can be found in Expenditure Area 24, section 3.9.21, pp.67-68: For both references follow the link:

Financial assets and liabilities are not accounted for in the Executive's Budget Proposal. They are accounted for in the year-end report (Årsredovisning för staten 2008) [http://www.sweden.gov.se/sb/d/11455/a/124502]. In OBI 2008, the Government Commented the following "Financial net debt/wealth is presented in the budget. The Annual Report of Government is much more detailed though." If the comment still stands this year, could the Government give a reference to where in the budget documents? Based on this question, 39 should perhaps have another rating.

Researcher Response to this Question was “d”
Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be that the information is available to the public. However, the reporting structure for areas covered under Q39-40 does not include a requirement to reflect these areas in the budget bill. I am a bit repetitive here but since the information is available and some of these areas include information that often experience marginal changes from year to year, should the rating really be a “d”? Particularly, since the policy documents guiding some these areas, for instance on financial assets and the National Debt Office are very strict (and transparent). So a combination of, annual report, aggregated data in the budget bill and guiding policies would give a comprehensive picture. This is really a question of methodology for the OBI, the current rating is poor, BUT in actual fact the information is available and comprehensive.

Government Comment: The general government assets and liabilities are presented although not very detailed. But the question could merit a “b” or “c.” See the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill 2009, chapter 9, Section 9.3.1, page 145: http://www.regeringen.se/content/1/c6/12/43/09/609d7189.pdf or the Budget Bill 2009, chapter 8, section 8.3.2, pp. 247-248. Researcher Response: I chose answer “c” because the government’s comment is valid. I see Peer Reviewer Two’s point but as he/she says it relates to the methodology, I have to answer the question according to the method used in all OBI countries.

40. Does the executive's budget or any supporting budget documentation present information on non-financial assets held by the government?

Peer Reviewer One Comment: See above.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: Again I refer to my comments on methodology, the information is readily available, it’s accurate, relevant and comprehensive. I can’t see how the rating should be a “d.” Particularly since the (relatively) new pensions system includes a high degree of transparency.

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “c” or “e.” Total pension liabilities are presented as a part of government liabilities (see question 39). See the Budget Bill 2009, chapter 8, section 8.3.2, on page 247-248, table 8.11. http://www.regeringen.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/bc7025e7.pdf.

Civil servants receive their main pension from the same pension system as private employees. The pension system is mandatory, not included in the budget, and a PAYG notional account system financed by employers’ contributions. The government is liable though for a small top-up part that is negotiated between the employer and the unions. Accrued pension rights for this part constitute a liability for the government. A small supplementary labor union-employers organization pension (similar systems for private and public employees) is paid by the central government and is noted in the Annual report the central government.

Comment:
However, all existing tax expenditures are not presented in the above mentioned section. An detailed overview of all tax expenditures is given in the appendix 3 (Analys av utgiftsutvecklingen 2000–2012) of the pre-budget statement (The Spring Fiscal Bill 2009).

Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: I believe that Budget Proposal section 6 includes information on taxes and tax policy, not on tax expenditure. The Swedish tax system generally does not include use of as an instrument tax expenditure (although sometimes the distinction can be muddled). The more appropriate response to this question would be an “e” or possibly “d” if a tax expert could validate to what extent tax expenditure is a problem. Answer “b” as suggested by the researcher indicates something else. There are examples of tax exp in Sweden but it is not reflected.

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” Adding to the full and comprehensive account of all tax expenditures which is referred to above and presented in the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill, tax credits/expenditures that can be connected to a certain purpose (these tax expenditures constitute a majority) are noted and estimated in SEK billion together with that expenditure area in the Budget Bill.
For example expenditure area 14, section 2.3, page 13 and table 2.4
http://www.regeringen.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/10c16c07.pdf
Tax expenditures are reported openly and to get an international comparability, in my opinion, Sweden would qualify for an “a.”

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “a.”

Comment:
According to the law (Lag om statsbudget, § 17), the general principle is that revenues should not be earmarked. An exception is the pension fund fee (Ålderspensionsavgiften), of which the major part is directed to the “AP-fond.”

Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: This rating is not correct in my opinion. The researcher has pointed to the general principle and I would therefore suggest an “e” rating. I can’t see why it should be a “b.”

Government Comment: A “b” might be appropriate even though there are very few earmarked revenues since it breaches the general principle of the Budget Law. Agencies are sometimes allowed to keep their own revenue for services delivered which are not included in the budget. To be able to do this, they need the approval of the government. These revenues are generally fees for some kind of service that they produce. These fees are also reported in the annual report of the agencies.

Researcher Response: I chose answer “b” because of the government's comment.

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “b.”

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.
49. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation explain how the proposed budget is linked to government’s stated policy goals for a multi-year period (for at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   a. Yes, extensive information on the link between the budget and the government’s stated policy goals over a multi-year period is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
   b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the major policy goals, but some details are excluded.
   c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.
   d. No, information on the link between the budget and the government’s stated policy goals over a multi-year period is not presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

50. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present non-financial data, such as the number of beneficiaries, for expenditure programs?

a. Non-financial data are presented for all programs.
b. Non-financial data are presented for programs representing at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures.
c. Non-financial data are presented for programs representing less than two-thirds of expenditure.
d. No non-financial data are presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:

Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would possibly be “b.” Echoing the peer reviewer from the 2008 OBI, “It is true that data of this type are presented for transfer systems, but this would normally not be the case for subsidized consumption expenditure (e.g., the number of visitors to museums or that State Opera).” But if there are other aspects such as international comparability an “a” might work.

Researcher Response: I chose my answer “a” because of the international comparison referred to by the government.

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “a.”
51. Are the non-financial data presented useful for assessing how an expenditure program is performing?

   a. The non-financial data are very useful for assessing program performance.
   b. The non-financial data are mostly useful for assessing program performance.
   c. The non-financial data are somewhat useful for assessing program performance.
   d. No non-financial data are provided or they are not useful for assessing program performance.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   See question 50.

   Comment:
   The non-financial data provided in the budget are useful and provide information on expenditure programs. However, more information would be required for a meaningful analysis of the budget programs.

   Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

   Peer Reviewer One Comment:

   Peer Reviewer Two Comment: I can’t argue here but there are plenty of in-depth analyses on a variety of policy issues (for instance 2009 has a gender appendix). It would be helpful to be a bit more specific. Could the researcher give examples on what is missing?

   Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.

   Researcher Response: I chose answer “a” because the answer to the question is up for interpretation. Peer reviewer rightfully asks for examples of what is missing and it leads me to think that it depends on what is to be assessed (which makes it difficult to give an example) and that the information presented may very well hold in an international comparison.

   IBP Comment: IBP editors chose to maintain answer “b” after a thorough revision of the comments. Unlike other similarly performing countries, program-level information is not particularly detailed to assess the effectiveness of programs.
52. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation contain performance indicators for expenditure programs?

   a. Performance indicators are presented for all programs.
   b. Performance indicators are presented for programs representing at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures.
   c. Performance indicators are presented for programs representing less than two-thirds of expenditures.
   d. No performance indicators are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:
For an example of an expenditure area which contains performance indicators (resultatinmaktare) see section 5 in expenditure area 16 (Utbildnings- och universitetsforskning)

Comment:
An overview of the expenditure areas show clearly formulated indicators (national or international) in one or more (a stricter criteria could have been applied, but this is what I went by) of the policy areas of the following 16 out of 27 expenditure areas: 1, 2, 4, 7, 9, 10, 12, 13, 14, 16, 17, 18, 19, 21, 23, 24. It can certainly be discussed which expenditure areas should be in or out in this overview (and the peer reviewers will most likely contribute with good comments on this). What I thought of when making the list was that an ordinary citizen should easily be able find the indicators. One should not have to interpret whether the result analysis (which is found in each expenditure area and most policy areas) is based on performance indicators or not.

Adding together the budgeted sum for each of the above mentioned expenditure areas does not get us over the two-third limit. The total is around SEK 481 000 000 which out of the budget of around 769 000 000 is 63%.

A notable change from OBI 2008 is discussion in the Executive Budget documents regarding the need to further develop performance indicators. An example of that is expenditure area 25 (Allmänna bidrag till kommuner), section 2.6, page 12, which says that national indicators will be developed to measure quality and effectiveness from the perspective of citizens and beneficiaries:
“Ett annat exempel är Socialstyrelsens uppdrag att utveckla ett nationellt system för öppna jämförelser inom vården och omsorgen om äldre. I uppdraget ingår bl.a. att utveckla nationella indikatorer på kvalitet och effektivitet ur medborgarnas och brukarnas perspektiv.”

It should also be noted that the government gave the following information in the OBI 2008: "Non-financial information is published more extensively in the annual report of agencies."

Researcher Response to this Question was “c”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: I agree with the classification. Performance-related indicators could be designated as such, to improve the possibilities for the public to assess this in a straightforward manner.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be that the budget document includes indicators sometimes mainly focused on areas where the governments make policy changes, new initiatives etc. For instance under Exp area 11 which is large, new goals and indicators are presented (3.3). It also includes a discussion on major issues in the Exp area. The budget is essentially a policy document and gives an opportunity to the Government to present their initiatives. It is not a document which presents a comprehensive picture, including a range of performance indicators. This kind of information is however available in for instance regleringsbrev etc. The rating “c” is therefore too low. The simple argument is that Exp area 11 includes indicators and a discussion and the total tally exceeds 67%. The more accurate argument is that info is available in many sources.

Government Comment: Maybe consider a “b” since some of the expenditure areas would be extremely hard to base on national performance indicators and not meaningful to count as part of total expenditure. Including the same expenditure areas as the researcher but excluding Government debt payments (Expenditure area 26) and Membership Fee to the European Union (EA 27), for both of which it would be hard to develop meaningful performance indicators, it would get us over the two thirds-limit.

Researcher Response: I chose my answer because I think the peer reviewers have valid points and taken together, and also considering an international comparison the rating should be a “b.”

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “c” in light of the initial researcher’s comment. In response to the government’s comment, it can be noted that performance indicators can be set towards all spending areas including debt service (e.g. via debt reduction targets or debt service levels) and EU membership (e.g. via performance on national spending in co-funded areas or the EU on the whole). In support of reviewer two’s comment, it can be maintained that performance indicators seem to focus towards new policy initiatives and maybe less towards existing programs. Option “c” remains.
53. Are the performance indicators sufficiently well designed, such that one can assess whether there has been progress toward meeting policy goals?

   a. All performance indicators are well designed.
   b. Most performance indicators are well designed.
   c. Some performance indicators are well designed, but most are not.
   d. No programs have performance indicators, or they are not well designed.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:

b. Most performance indicators are used in conjunction with performance targets.
c. Some performance indicators are used in conjunction with performance targets, but most are not.
d. No performance indicators are used in conjunction with performance targets.

Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: Some clarification could be useful here. For example, I had a hard time identifying performance targets in the section on education.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: See comment in the above question. The rating should be based on facts and it will be hard to establish facts in relation to this question.

Government Comment: Maybe consider a “b” depending on how strict the interpretation of “All performance indicators…” should be. Echoing the Peer reviewer from OBS 2008, “There are indicators with no associated targets, e.g., the number of crimes of various categories.”

Researcher Response: I chose answer ”b” because it is a matter of judgment as Peer Reviewers One and Two point out. Also, the government comment makes sense if the question is to be interpreted strictly.

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “b.”
55. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present information on policies (both proposals and existing commitments) in at least the budget year that are intended to benefit directly the country’s most impoverished populations?

a. Yes, extensive information on policies intended to alleviate poverty is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
b. Yes, information is presented, highlighting the impact of key policies intended to alleviate poverty, but some details are excluded.
c. Yes, some information is presented, but it lacks important details.
d. No, information on policies intended to alleviate poverty is not presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
There is no one report or section in the budget proposal by the Swedish government in the sense described by the question. However, several appropriations - such as the ones cited above - are intended to benefit those in Sweden with lesser means. Many parts of the social security system for example are directed towards people with the least, or no, income.

Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: I am not certain that this is applicable. The budget bill frequently includes a discussion and analysis on distribution of income of various proposals, but if this is an example of poverty alleviation, it is a different matter. I suggest an “e” rating.

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.

Researcher Response: I chose answer “a” because I think that, with the information provided, this is the closest Sweden can come to fit into an international comparison related to this question. Poverty is relative and Sweden does account for the relatively poor in Sweden in the above citation.

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “a.”

Comment:
The above is a not very appealing webpage. The citizen's budget accounted for in the OBI 2006 and 2008 was much more appealing to the eye than the above. It was a published booklet with color pictures and easy to read information gathered in one piece. The publication was among other distributed to all libraries and could be downloaded on the Government web. The Government's decision to go digital instead of producing that publication in the OBI 2010 period is modern. The information is accessible since a great majority of Swedes have Internet. Although the webpage is not of the quality of the former publication it should be counted as a citizen's budget.

<td>Reading the Guide to the Open Budget Questionnaire, the question asks whether the executive releases to the public such an internal timetable. In keeping with the questionnaire’s theme of open budgets, I would agree with then rating but perhaps adjust it to a “b” since I don’t think important details are missing. I would also put a question mark to the question itself. The rating indicates that a budget process open to all gives 100%. I don’t think this is feasible. One reason is that the process sometimes is erratic and details change. In addition, more important argument is that the process, as part of the different roles in a democracy, is the prerogative of the executive and should include an element of non-transparency particularly at negotiation stage.</td>

Comment:
The Executive is a coalition of four conservative political parties. Consultations and negotiations are primarily held between them, and not with the parties in the opposition.

Researcher Response to this Question was “c”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: This is the standard for many parliamentary democracies. It could equally well be “b.”

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: The coalition includes small parties in government. The Guide to the Open Budget Questionnaire specifies “small parties,” which could be interpreted as sufficient for “a.” The question would benefit from more clarity, for instance “small parties in opposition.”

Government Comment: Since the four parties in the Government also constitute a majority in the parliament it is quite logical that the negotiations are within and between the parties in the coalition in order to pass the budget. It is hard to understand why the question was marked “b” in 2008 and “c” now since the parliamentary situation is identical.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: I do not agree with this rating. It would not be possible for a Swedish Government to formulate a budget in isolation. All parties in the government involve a wide range of constituencies in the consultation process as it is part of the democratic process. The rating should be “a.”

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would maybe be “b” or “c” with the same arguments as in the Government comment in the OBS 2008 in which it is argued that in democracies with high political participation there are a lot of possibilities for citizens to influence the budget. Furthermore, I would like to add that the assumption underlying the question might signal that it is more “open” that certain vested interests (trade unions, churches, civil society organizations are mentioned in the Guide to the Open Budget Questionnaire) should have direct access to the Government. This could be questioned.

Researcher Response: I chose answer “d” because none of the reviewers have provided example of where or how the government holds consultations with the public (NGOs, think tanks, researchers, social partners etc and as specified in the Guide to the Open Budget Questionnaire). The Swedish budget process is indeed transparent but there are no organized ways of taking into account views of the public. My original answer can be upheld.

IBP Comment: IBP editors agree with answer “d” and the fact that there is no evidence for organised consultations.
71. When does the executive release a pre-budget statement to the public?

a. The executive releases a pre-budget statement at least four months in advance of the start of the budget year.
b. The executive releases a pre-budget statement at least two months (but less than four months) in advance of the start of the budget year.
c. The executive releases a pre-budget statement, but it is released less than two months before the start of the budget year.
d. The executive does not release a pre-budget statement.

According to the law, the budget proposal must be submitted by the government to the Parliament on 20 September at the latest each year (except for election years when the absolute deadline is 15 November). In 2008, it was released on 22 September (because the 20th was a Saturday) and the budget year starts on 1 January. The budget proposal is released to the legislature at 17.00-18.00 hours on the day before the budget day, when it is officially released (so that they can prepare for the debate to be held in Parliament on budget day). However, much of the budget proposal’s content is debated publicly and partly presented on the government’s homepage in advance of that date.

Comment:
The Standing Committee on Finance holds public hearings twice a year (around October and March) in which testimonies on the macroeconomic and fiscal framework are heard from the head of the Central Bank. However, no special invitation is extended to the public to participate in the discussion, and generally no one from the public make their voice heard at the meetings. The hearings are, however, made public on the Parliament's webpage.

The latest hearing was held on 26 February 2009: http://riksdagen.se/webbnav/index.aspx?nid=5160&utskutfrID=957&utskutfrm=200809

See also the following Government comment in OBI 2008: “FYI it could also be added that the Riksbank (the Central bank) and KI (National Institute of Economic Research www.konj.se) makes forecasts that are publicly discussed and compared with the government’s view. So even if the use of hearings is not that developed as in some other countries, there is in my view and compared with other countries, good information available from different actors to be able to compare the government’s view on economic and also fiscal development."

Comment:
The process around the budget bill in Sweden:
- 20 September, the executive presents its budget proposal to Parliament (Riksdag).
- The Parliament has until the end of November to determine the total limit for central government expenditure, as well as the limits for each expenditure area.
- In mid-December, the Parliament decides how the money for each expenditure area is to be allocated.
- The Parliament also takes a decision regarding the estimate of central government revenue.

The Parliament thus decides the limit of the government expenditure in November - i.e. in November it has the authority to set a higher or lower expenditure ceiling. Then in December when the Parliament decides on the budget for each expenditure area, it can no longer go beyond the ceiling it set in November. Any amendment of the budget of course also needs a majority in Parliament.

In sum, the legislature cannot make amendments which entail increasing expenditure above the set ceiling in December, and it cannot make amendments without a majority in Parliament. However, the sequence of voting in parliament does not limit the power of parliament. It is the Parliament that sets the expenditure ceiling in November. Then it has to follow that decision in December. If the question is to be taken literally, the Parliament does not have unlimited powers in December, but it is a consequence of its own November decision. A less strict interpretation, which I now find more reasonable is “a.”

Comment:
Most of the agencies’ activities are financed by the appropriations (anslag) of the enacted budget. However,
a) A large number of agencies provide services of different kinds for which they charge user fees. User fees are directly related to the services provided and must not, in the long run, exceed the estimated full cost of those services. The reason for putting a charge on a service provided is that the general public should not pay through general taxation for activities which are primarily of interest or benefit to specific organizations or individuals.
b) Expenditures which are not taken from appropriations by the commercially run agencies (affärsverken) are not included in the in-year reports. Currently, there are four such agencies: Luftfartsverket, Sjöfartsverket, Statens järnvägar (only partly), and Svenska kraftnät. Only the activities which are financed by appropriations are covered in the in-year reports (see the comment for question 84). The expenditures related to a) and b) are accounted for in the year-end report (Årsredovisning för staten).

Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

Comment:
The executive does not release mid-year review. Hence the answer is “d.” However, the Spring Fiscal Bill (Vårpropositionen) has aspects of a mid-year review, but is not designed to specifically show detailed budget performance and macroeconomic data for the past 6 months as specified in the Guide to the Open Budget Questionnaire. (it does give some overview of such information though). The Spring Fiscal Bill is a primarily a pre-budget statement.

Agencies are, however, obligated to produce a mid-year review (delårsrapport) covering the period 1 January to 30 June if:
- their expenditures exceed one billion SEK
- their revenue only come from sources other than appropriations
- their revenue coming from other sources than appropriations exceed 30 million SEK

The deadline for the agencies’ submission of their mid-year reviews to the government is 15 August. Not all agencies have their “delårsrapport” on their homepage. The “delårsrapporter” are available from the agencies on request.

In the OBI 2008, the Government gave the following comment to question 71. The last sentence is the reason why I rate this question “d.” The Spring Fiscal Bill is not intended to be a mid-term review, but contains aspects of it.

“In the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill, there is a macroeconomic update, estimates of expenditures and revenues given the new updated on expenditure area level. This information is then updated for the Budget Bill in the autumn (in both the spring bill and the budget bill for the present year and forecasts for the coming 3 years). Also, in both the Spring Bill and the Budget bill, there are updates of the implementation for the present year, including changes in macroeconomic and volume parameters and the effect of those on expenditure estimates (for the present year and the 3 coming years), and they both also include a supplementary budget for the present year. I agree that the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill is a pre-budget, but it also includes aspects of what you define as a mid-term review.”
Researcher Response to this Question was “d”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: I think that the Spring Policy Fiscal Policy bill satisfies most of the requirement for a midyear review, as defined by the OBI. It could be a “b” in my opinion.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: These comments relate to question 92-95. I disagree with the statement that there is no mid-year review. The spring bill in April includes a supplementary budget which in essence is a mid-year review. Normally it is enacted in June together with the spring bill (see http://www.regeringen.se/content/1/c6/10/22/20/645d8a9c.pdf)

The spring bill (http://www.regeringen.se/sb/d/11851/a/124409) includes substantial fiscal information, forecasts etc, and a explicit reporting on the main macro fiscal goal. In addition, a supplementary budget is presented at the same time, and that Bill includes a detailed follow-up on expenditure under each area, as well as a forecasts http://www.regeringen.se/content/1/c6/12/43/21/41fd878d.pdf, table 1.1. Moreover Ekonomistyrningsverket, as indicated above by the researcher, agencies have an obligation and a mandate to independently report on expenditures, monthly and quarterly. Similarly the national debt office produces actual and forecasts on net lending. A more appropriate response to these question would therefore be “a.”

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a” or “b.” As well as in the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill there are strong elements of a mid-year review in the Budget Bill for year t+1 where there is a follow up of the current budget year as well. See: http://regeringen.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/bc7025e7.pdf
Chapter 5 on pp 103-131: Forecast for main macroeconomic indicators are revised for the current budget year 2008.
Chapter 6 on pp. 166-187: New forecasts and explanations for tax revenues for 2008
Chapter 7 on pp. 227-231: A quite extensive follow-up on the expenditure side with new forecasts based on outcomes and related to the original for the year 2008.
Chapter 8 on pp 239-260: New forecast for the budget balance, net lending and debt for the current budget year (2008)

Researcher Response: I chose my answer “d” because neither the Spring Bill nor the actual budget bill qualifies as mid-year reviews according to the OBI methodology. However, it should be noted that these two documents contain a relevant number of information required by questions 92-95. But in order to maintain consistency with the overall methodology, they should not be accepted. The Spring Bill is published in spring and does not cover the first half year of spending/revenues as required by the Guide to the Open Budget Questionnaire. The Budget Bill is published in September but cannot be counted because it is the budget proposal and not a separate document. If the budget bill itself was to be accepted, there would be no point to publish a mid-year review that should normally come out before the publication of the budget bill. This answer also holds for the reasons above.

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “d.”

Comment: When a ministry, department or agency needs more money than anticipated in the central government budget approved in December, Parliament can amend the budget by proposing additional money in the budget. This is known as a supplementary budget. The government submits its proposed changes in April and September. In practice, decisions on supplementary budgets are taken by Parliament in relation to the government’s presentation of the Spring Fiscal Bill (in April) and Budget Bill (in September).

Researcher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: The question is not really clear. Expenditures can be shifted within an expenditure area without legislative approval. The government can also draw on the budget margin. However the aggregated expenditure ceiling, as well as the ceilings for expenditure areas (if I recall correctly) must have legislative approval. None of the answers “a-d” would apply. The question is relevant but given the alternatives I would recommend “e.”

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.

Researcher Response: I chose answer “a” because I interpret it a bit differently from the peer reviewer (see my comment above).

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “a.”
97. During the past year, have there been credible reported instances in which the procurement of goods and services has not followed an open and competitive process in practice?

a. There were no credible reported instances of procurement failing to follow an open and competitive process in practice during the past year.
b. The procurement of goods and services frequently followed an open and competitive process in practice, but there were some reported instances of irregularities.
c. The procurement of goods and service followed an open and competitive process in many instances, but there were significant reported examples of irregularities.
d. No, the procurement process was not open and competitive in practice.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:
Stefan Elg at Allego (www.allego.se) says there has been a number of reported instances brought to court in the past year. He says he has seen a tendency of an increased number of such reported instances in the second quarter of 2009. He says that this is most likely a result of the economic crisis and the tendency of companies to focus on public sector customers when the private sector economy is in crisis. He says that there is an increased demand for knowledge about the procurement processes. There is also an increased competitiveness among the companies taking part in the procurements, which may be a contributing factor to the increased number of instances reported. Stefan Elg also added that the regulations surrounding procurements have improved in Sweden in recent years, which makes way for increased transparency.

The database NOU (National Board for Public Procurement: http://www.nou.se) found at the Swedish Authority’s (Konkurrensverket) homepage presents information on public procurements: http://www.kkv.se/t/Page____2096.aspx

Comment:
Question to the IBP: The fact that instances are reported may be an indicator of good transparency. Regulations are in place and people know about them. Does this question get at what it wants to have answered?

Researcher Response to this Question was “b”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: It depends what is meant by instances and who brings the cases to courts.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: The rating “b” should indicate at least a couple of proven irregularities to be credible. If those are not available, I suggest “a.”

Government Comment: Government did not dispute researcher’s answer.

Researcher Response: I chose answer “b” because the Allego Rättsfallsdatabas (In English: Legal Cases Database) noted 10 cases in July 2009 where public procurements were judged to be redone. The month was picked just as a sample to support the answer to the question and to provide an answer to Peer Reviewer Two's comment. If all such cases were to be counted in the past year (-i.e.: OBI 2010 period August 08 to August 09), the number would be significant. The high number indicates two things. 1) A number of procurements are being done in a “non-transparent” way, and 2) Many people in Sweden know where, and have clear channels, to turn to when they believe procurements were not handled in line with transparency. Therefore, the numbers of cases are high.

100. When does the legislature approve the expenditure of contingency funds or other funds for which no specific purpose was identified in the budget?

a. Expenditures are approved before the funds are expended, or contingency funds or other funds with no specific purposes are not included in the budget.
b. Expenditures are approved after the funds are expended, but before the end of the fiscal year.
c. Expenditures are approved after the end of the fiscal year, for example in the next budget.
d. Such expenditure takes place without legislative approval.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:

Comment:
There is one contingency fund in the Executive’s Budget Proposal. See expenditure area 26 (Statsskuldsräntor m.m.) http://regeringen.se/content/1/c6/11/16/79/072f99a0.pdf, section 4.1, page 17, Unforeseen Expenditures (Oförutsedda utgifter). The fund amounts to SEK 10 million (0.000013 of the total 2009 budget proposal). When approving the budget proposal, the Parliament authorizes the government to spend the fund on matters that are of great urgency. Apart from emergencies the fund should only be used if the expenditures cannot be covered by other appropriations. The money spent is accounted for in the following year’s executive budget proposal. The expenditures of the fund are not presented to the legislature before the following year's budget proposal.

In 2006/07, SEK 10 million were budgeted for this fund out of which 9.8 million was spent. In 2007/08 the budgeted amount of 10.8 million was spent.

See also the Peer Reviewer One's comment in OBI 2008: "More important then the contingency fund mentioned is the budgeting margin, which amounts to a few per cent of the budget at the aggregate level (increasing over time)."

Researcher Response to this Question was “c”

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: Both the contingency fund and the budget margin are approved ex ante, for a logical reason. These expenditures are by nature “unplanned” and cannot be specified, but the amount is approved and capped. The rating could be “a,” if the first half of the answer under “a” is used. Expenditures are approved before the funds are expended. However, if the second half or contingency funds or other funds with no specific purposes are not included in the budget is included, it gets muddled. I suggest “e” and possibly a revision of the answer.

Government Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “a.” Echoing the Government in OBI 2008, the lack of contingency reserves is a part of the strict budget discipline. Funds for such events are not pre-authorized in general but instead, if unforeseen events occur, funds will be transferred by the government from other appropriations in the first instance.
As a second option the government can increase total spending to cover the need. Both these options need parliamentary approval. Using the extremely limited amount SEK 10 million (around 0.0013 % of total expenditures) mentioned in the comment above to give a response “c” does not tell the right story on how we work with contingencies.
A correction: The comment on the Budget margin in OBI 2008 was from the Peer reviewer, not the Government.

Researcher Response: This is tricky as the peer reviewers suggest variety of answers. Just looking at the question and answers, I think the answer that matches the best is “c.” Taking into account the fact that the amount of the contingency funds is very limited the answer “c” is misleading in an international comparison on transparency. I therefore reconsider my answer to “a,” according with the government peer reviewers comment.

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments, IBP editors chose answer “a.”

114. Must a branch of government other than the executive (such as the legislature or the judiciary) give final consent before the head of the Supreme Audit Institution (SAI) can be removed from office?

   a. Yes, the head of the SAI may only be removed by the legislature or judiciary, or the legislature or judiciary must give final consent before they are removed.
   b. No, the executive may remove the head of the SAI without the final consent of the judiciary or legislature.
   c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

118. Does the SupremeAudit Institution employ designated staff for undertaking audits of the central government agencies pertaining to the security sector (military, police, intelligence services)?

a. The SAI employs designated staff, and the staffing levels are broadly consistent with the resources the SAI needs to fulfill its mandate.
b. The SAI employs designated staff, but the staffing levels are a cause of some constraints to the SAI in fulfilling its mandate.
c. The SAI employs designated staff, but the staffing levels pose a significant constraint on the SAI in fulfilling its mandate.
d. The SAI does not employ designated staff for auditing of the security sector, or does not undertake audits of the security sector.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
The Swedish State Audit Institution (Riksrevisionen) conducts such audits and has enough staff to do it. However, the institution does not employ designated staff for this purpose. Notable in relation to this is that staff responsible for yearly audits will not have the same area of responsibility for more than 7 years in accordance with EU regulations. The only possible answer is “d,” but if a “d” indicates non-transparency in the final index, then it is misleading.

Researcher Response to this Question was “d”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: I agree with the comment.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Government Comment: Echoing the Government comment in OBI 2008: The proper response (as you ask for designated staff) is “d.” On the other hand, a “d” gives the impression that the sector is audited properly since the “d” alternative includes the possibility of no auditing at all, which is not the case in Sweden.

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “e” to maintain comparability across countries.

120. Does a committee of the legislature view and scrutinize the audit reports?

- a. Yes, all audit reports are scrutinized.
- b. Yes, most audit reports are scrutinized.
- c. Yes, some audit reports are scrutinized.
- d. No, audit reports are not scrutinized.
- e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:

The mid-year report audits from the agencies are not always scrutinized, but the year-end audits are. There is no specific committee in Parliament that scrutinizes audit reports. Each standing committee handles reports specific to its area of responsibility.

It should be noted that many SAI’s reports are not year-end audits but efficient audits which are published continuously.

Reseacher Response to this Question was “a”

Peer Reviewer One Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “b,” based on the explanation given in the researcher’s comment above.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

Researcher Response: I chose answer “b” because I think Peer Reviewer One is right.

IBP Comment: Based on a review of comments and further discussions with the researcher, IBP editors agreed on answer “b.”
121. Does the executive make available to the public a report on what steps it has taken to address audit recommendations or findings that indicate a need for remedial action?

   a. Yes, the executive reports publicly on what steps it has taken to address audit findings.
   b. Yes, the executive reports publicly on most audit findings.
   c. Yes, the executive reports publicly on some audit findings.
   d. No, the executive does not report on steps it has taken to address audit findings.

Comment:
The government also reports on audit recommendations and findings in the expenditure area documents of the Executive’s Budget Proposal. The contents of the reports vary. I believe this question was rated “b” in OBI 2009. It should have been “a” since the question does not ask if the information reported on is extensive or not. It only asks if it is there.

Comment:
In the OBI 2008, I answered the below to this question, and having talked to the Defense Committee this year I find that the answer still holds:

“All audit reports of the annual accounts are sent from the Swedish National Audit Institution (Riksrevisionen) to the Government - not directly to the Parliament or a relevant Parliamentarian committee. Exceptions are those audit reports that concern agencies which are directly accountable to the Parliament (such as the Swedish Central Bank, the Swedish National Audit Institution, etc.). Those are sent directly to the Parliament.

To have an example to follow-up on I used one of the most secret parts of the public sector, the National Defense Radio Establishment (Försvarets radioanstalt/FRA). I talked to a number of people at the Parliament, the Parliaments Defense Committee, and the Ministry of Defense. It turned out that they did not remember the Defense Committee ever asking the government to give them the audit report for FRA. The defense committee said that they thought they would get access to the audit report if they asked for it. I therefore sent a hypothetical question to the Defense Ministry asking whether they would release the above mentioned audit report to the Defense Committee if it asked for it. Maria Gillberg at the Defence Ministry answered that the FRA audit report is not secret and would be handed over to the Defence Committee should it ask for it.”

Based on the comment above, I come to the conclusion that the best possible answer is “a.”

Government Comment: Regarding the mid-year review the peer reviewer has pointed to the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill as containing some elements of such a document. Since this is released in mid-April with outcomes for a maximum of three months of the budget year I would rather point to the follow up in the Budget Bill for year t+1 where there is a follow up of the current budget year as well. Government Comment: Since the publication “Finansplan och sammandrag – Särtryck ur budgetpropositionen för 2009” was printed and distributed through different channels and sent to the public upon request as well as its availability at the entrance of the Ministry of Finance I believe that it merits a “Yes” rather than a “No.” Furthermore it was also translated into English and able to obtain why this should be changed to a “Yes.”
