Drawing on internationally accepted criteria developed by multilateral organizations, the Open Budget Survey uses 109 equally weighted indicators to measure budget transparency. These indicators assess whether the central government makes eight key budget documents available to the public online in a timely manner and whether these documents present budget information in a comprehensive and useful way.

Each country receives a composite score (out of 100) that determines its ranking on the Open Budget Index – the world’s only independent and comparative measure of budget transparency.

How has the OBI score for Jordan changed over time?

!Chart showing the change in OBI score for Jordan from 2006 to 2017

How comprehensive and useful is the information provided in the key budget documents that Jordan publishes?

!Chart showing the availability and comprehensiveness of budget documents

Jordan's score of 63 out of 100 is substantially higher than the global average score of 42.
Transparency alone is insufficient for improving governance. Public participation in budgeting is vital to realize the positive outcomes associated with greater budget transparency.

To measure public participation, the Open Budget Survey assesses the degree to which the government provides opportunities for the public to engage in budget processes. Such opportunities should be provided throughout the budget cycle by the executive, the legislature, and the supreme audit institution.

The questions assessing participation in the Open Budget Survey 2017 were revised to align them with the Global Initiative for Fiscal Transparency’s new principles on public participation, which now serve as the basis for widely accepted norms on public participation in national budget processes. Therefore, data on the extent of public participation in budgeting in the Open Budget Survey 2017 cannot be compared directly to data from earlier editions.

Jordan’s score of 11 out of 100 indicates that its provides few opportunities for the public to engage in the budget process. This is lower than the global average score of 12.

To what extent do different institutions in Jordan provide opportunities for public participation?
The Open Budget Survey examines the role that legislatures, supreme audit institutions, and independent fiscal institutions play in the budget process and the extent to which they are able to provide effective oversight of the budget. These institutions play a critical role — often enshrined in national constitutions or laws — in planning budgets and overseeing their implementation.

These indicators were revised to better assess the role of formal oversight institutions in ensuring integrity and accountability in the use of public resources. Therefore, data on the role and effectiveness of oversight institutions in the Open Budget Survey 2017 should not be compared directly to data from earlier editions.

To what extent does the legislature in Jordan provide budget oversight?

The legislature provides limited oversight during the budget cycle. This score reflects that the legislature provides limited oversight during the planning stage of the budget cycle and limited oversight during the implementation stage of the budget cycle.

The main barriers to effective legislative oversight are:

- A debate on budget policy by the legislature does not take place prior to tabling of the Executive's Budget Proposal.
- The Executive's Budget Proposal is not approved by legislators before the start of the budget year.
- A legislative committee does not examine or publish reports on in-year budget implementation online.

To what extent does the Supreme Audit Institution in Jordan provide budget oversight?

The supreme audit institution provides weak budget oversight.

- Under the law, it has significant discretion to undertake audits as it sees fit.
- However, the head of the institution is not appointed by the legislature or judiciary and can be removed without legislative or judicial approval, which undermines its independence.
- Finally, the supreme audit institution is provided with insufficient resources to fulfill its mandate, and its audit processes are not reviewed by an independent agency.

Oversight by an Independent Fiscal Institution

Jordan does not have an independent fiscal institution (IFI). While IFIs are not yet widespread globally, they are increasingly recognized as an important source of independent, nonpartisan information. IFIs take a variety of different institutional forms. Common examples include parliamentary budget offices and fiscal councils.

RECOMMENDATIONS

For more detailed information on the survey findings for Jordan, please see the Open Budget Survey Data Explorer at survey.internationalbudget.org.

How can Jordan improve transparency?

Jordan should prioritize the following actions to improve budget transparency:

- Provide more data on the macroeconomic forecast and on the financial position of the government in the Executive’s Budget Statement.
- Provide more information on comparisons between original macroeconomic forecast and actual outcome as well as comparisons between planned nonfinancial outcomes and actual outcomes in the Year-End Report.
How can Jordan improve participation?

Jordan should prioritize the following actions to improve public participation in its budget process:

■ Pilot mechanisms for members of the public and executive branch officials to exchange views on national budget matters during both the formulation of the national budget and the monitoring of its implementation. See fiscaltransparency.net/mechanisms/ for examples of such mechanisms.

■ Hold legislative hearings on the Audit Report, during which members of the public or civil society organizations can testify.

■ Establish formal mechanisms for the public to participate in relevant audit investigations.

How can Jordan improve oversight?

Jordan should prioritize the following actions to make budget oversight more effective:

■ Ensure the legislature holds a debate on budget policy prior to tabling of the Executive’s Budget Proposal and approves recommendations for the upcoming budget.

■ Ensure a legislative committee examines and publishes reports on in-year budget implementation online.

■ Require legislative or judicial approval to appoint and remove the head of the supreme audit institution.

■ Consider setting up an independent fiscal institution to further strengthen budget oversight.

The Open Budget Survey uses internationally accepted criteria developed by multilateral organizations from sources such as the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), the International Organisation of Supreme Audit Institutions (INTOSAI) and the Global Initiative for Fiscal Transparency (GIFT).

It is a fact-based research instrument that assesses what occurs in practice through readily observable phenomena. The entire research process took approximately 18 months between August 2016 and January 2018 and involved about 300 experts in 115 countries. The Open Budget Survey 2017 assesses only events, activities, or developments that occurred up to 31 December 2016. The survey was revised somewhat from the 2015 version to reflect evolving methods for disseminating budget information and to strengthen individual questions on public participation and budget oversight. A discussion of these changes can be found in the Open Budget Survey Global Report (see link below).

Survey responses are typically supported by citations and comments. This may include a reference to a public document, an official statement by the government, or comments from a face-to-face interview with a government official or other knowledgeable parties.